No fear of flying for Wendy

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A ground hostess?

What in the world is a ground hostess anyway?

For 19-year-old Wendy Wenk, a former automobile mechanic, it is a dream job.

At Palwaukee Airport in Prospect Heights, Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue, she parks airplanes and takes pilots' food and fuel orders. She is a stewardess of sorts at this small airport where the closest thing to a commercial airliner to land there was Arnold Palmer's Lear jet.

She is having the time of her life, and in just three years, Wendy has obtained a private pilot's license. She now is preparing to compete in cross-country air races.

THE SKY, FOR Wendy, is not just a place for clouds. It is a playground where she escapes in her plane to enjoy the view and soar through the air for the thrill of it.

But, it wasn't always that way. When George Priester, owner of Palwaukee Airport, asked her to take the job, Wendy was working as a gas station attendant.

"When I started here, I didn't like riding as a passenger in either of my parents' private planes. They have been private pilots for 15 years," she said.

And then, flying got into her blood.

"I would meet with the visiting pilots for lunch and they'd tell me about their experiences in the air. I began to realize how much fun people had flying planes and thought I would give it a try," Wendy said.

SHE WAS TAKING flying lessons and was just about ready to take a test for her private pilot's license when Wendy had her first and only mishap.

"I was in a rented plane and coming in for a landing at Palwaukee when I lost it somehow and my nose gear collapsed when I hit the runway. I wasn't

A MAJOR WATER transmission line is now being installed along Wilke Road in Arlington Heights to reinforce the village's water system. The DiPaolo Co., Niles, is expected to complete installation of the 24-inch water main within a month. Cost is $303,000.

Women voters back housing project in court

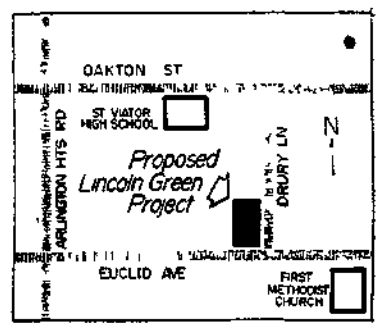

by BILL HILL

Legal briefs supporting the proposed Lincoln Green low-income housing proposal in Arlington Heights have been submitted to the U. S. Supreme Court by the local League of Women Voters and the American Society of Planning Officials.

The acceptance of the "friends-of-the-court" briefs by the court has been opposed by Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel.

The Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect chapter of the League of Women Voters is joined by its county, state and national organizations, as well as the Arlington Heights Clergy Fellowship, the American Jewish Committee and the Minority Industrial Relations Council Inc., in submitting the brief. Its arguments support philosophically the position of the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., which for five years has fought the Village of Arlington Heights over its refusal to rezone land near St. Viator High School for the Lincoln Green project.

The Supreme Court is expected to hear the case beween April 19-28.

THE CASE OVER the housing development corporation proposal to build the 190-unit townhouse development was accepted by the Supreme Court in December after the village appealed a decision by the 7th Circuit U. S. Court of Appeals that ruled that the development should be built because the village's rejection of the project was racially discriminatory.

The village contends that the issue should not involve the 14th Amendment of the U. S. Constitition, because

Wilke Road water main completion within month

The DiPaolo Co. of Niles is expected to complete installation of a new water main along Wilke Road within a month.

William Bachem, of the Arlington Heights Engineering Dept., said installation of the 24-inch water main is about 60 per cent complete.

When completed, the transmission line will run north from the new well at Wilke and Kirchoff roads to Hawthorne Street opposite Arlington Park Race Track.

Cost of the project is $303,000

Bachem said the new water transmission line will reinforce the water system in the village. It also is designed to improve water distribution.

The first segment of the main, from the new pumping station still under construction to Kirchoff Road, is needed for the operation of the new well. The second stretch, from Kirchoff Road along Wilke Road to Hawthorne Street, is needed to reinforce the water system in that area.

Walker looks down, but he may not be out

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Here is what a defeated Gov. Dan Walker did not say, but was thinking Wednesday when he had to force the words, "Congratulations to Mike Howlett" through his teeth.

He talked about reviewing his options, but refused to state them.

His options are:

- Staying neutral in the November general election fight between Howlett and James R. Thompson.
- Backing Thompson in the race against Howlett.
- Backing Howlett in the race against Thompson (Walker aides got a big laugh from that one).
- Forming a third party in Illinois to run against Howlett and Thompson.

Look at the 700,000 votes Gov. Daniel Walker says he piled up in Illinois Tuesday and then look at his aides. People in the highest levels of the Walker camp already have started to sound out the third party idea.

BESIDES REFUSING to explain his options, the governor also said there are several questions that must be answered before he makes a decision on his political future.

Those questions are:

- What did Howlett do for Sun Steel to earn $15,000 per year for the last 15 years?
- Why did Howlett pay income taxes on $100,000 in campaign contributions several years ago?
- Is it illegal for owners of stock in a harness racing organization to make a campaign loan to a political candidate?

If the answers to those questions, which will come from several on-going investigations, show Howlett did something wrong, the third party bid becomes more realistic.

In the aftermath of the apparent end of the Walker attack on Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization, an observer gets the impression that while the votes have been counted, Walker may be a long way from being out.

HE MAY JUST mount a third party movement, something that is legal in Illinois, just to give Daley one more battle royale. Walker needs 25,000 signatures on petitions and a full slate of candidates, including people running for trustee to the University of Illinois before Aug. 2 to start a third party.

He proved Tuesday he has a lot of friends who do not mind being thrashed at the polls, so it appears all he really needs is the signatures.

Walker probably could not win in a three-way race, but he could get enough Democratic votes to give Thompson a good chance at beating Howlett.

He also may need the third party ruse to give some way of avoiding the liabilities of being a lameduck governor for the next nine months.

WALKER, WHO MADE much sound and fury with the legislature in his first three years could be the lamest of the lame ducks in the eyes of the lawmakers who know Walker is on his way out soon.

Without the third party movement, Walker's anticipated thundering over the state budget and other legislative matters will sound very hollow.

And while the Walker-Howlett race might be the most interesting to ponder, there are some items of note to mention in other races around the area.

In the 10th Congressional District, Samuel H. Young and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, go into their "rubber match," in what has been a six-year campaign in the district.

YOUNG PROVED to be the top vote getter in three-way Republican race Tuesday. He showed, despite some claims by party regulars in the district, that he is the man the people want to face Mikva in November.

In the Republican presidential primary, Ronald Reagan supporters, even with strong name recognition in their favor, failed to win a single delegate-candidate in the 12th Congressional District. U.S. Rep. Philip M.

Howlett sues to stop Walker probe

by KURT BAER

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett filed suit Wednesday against Gov. Daniel Walker to stop an investigation of $100,000 in loans Howlett received in 1972 from a company owning race track stock.

The investigation is politically motivated and was ordered by Walker to discredit Howlett during the recent gubernatorial primary campaign, the suit charges.

The suit asks the Cook County Circuit Court to prevent the Walker administration from pursuing the probe.

Instead, it requests the court appoint "independent fact finders of unquestioned impartiality" to conduct the investigation.

THE LOANS ARE being investigated by Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano and others at Walker's request because Illinois law prohibits race track stockholders from contributing to political campaigns.

Howlett received the loans from the Nationwide Acceptance Corp., Chicago, which owns 6,844 shares of stock

River Trails to fire 30 school teachers

Thirty nontenured teachers in River Trails Dist. 26 are being fired and the board of education is considering closing one of the district's five elementary schools. Supt. John Fridland says the teachers that are sent dismissal notices will not be rehired in the fall. Many school districts fire all nontenured teachers in the spring, then rehire some of them in the summer because of resignations and retirements. Fridlund also has recommended the closing next fall of Park View School, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, to offset declining enrollment and decreasing revenues. easing revenues.

Probation ordered in vandal case

A 13-year-old Mount Prospect youth has been placed on one year's probation for his part last December in the $100,000 vandalism spree at Gregory School, 400 E. Gregory St., Mount Prospect. The youth, a student at the school, was sentenced Wednesday in the Niles branch of Cook County Juvenile Court. Two other youths, ages 13 and 14, entered guilty pleas to charges of damage to property in connection with the Gregory School vandalism and for their involvement in vandalism resulting in $25,000 damage at Dunton School, 1200 S. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights. The Dunton School vandalism took place during the same weekend as the Gregory School incident. The two youths will be sentenced April 28.

No link in shooting: police

Rolling Meadows police say apparently there is no link between the March 2 murder of a former city resident and an attempt on his life last October. Police Chief Lewis Wednesday said the bullets that killed Thomas Sitkowski, 35, last week in Chicago, did not match the ones recovered after a shooting incident last Oct. 21, which left him wounded in his Rolling Meadows apartment, 2310 Algonquin Rd. A state social worker, William Coughlin, 30, has been charged with the murder of Sitkowski, who had moved to unincorporated Maine Township after the October shooting. No one has been charged in connection with last fall's shooting.

June start for work on super mall

Construction will begin in June on the proposed $3 8 million shopping mall which is part of the $12 million downtown Des Plaines Superblock redevelopment project. Construction of a 10-story office building began last year. The three-story shopping mall, which will house 40 stores, is expected to open early in 1977.

Sheriff took payoffs: deputy

A former Lake County chief deputy sheriff Wednesday testified in federal court that since 1971 thousands of dollars in payoffs were made by Lake County businesses to former Sheriff Orville S Clavey Jerome P. Schuetz testified under a grant of immunity in the extortion and tax evasion trial of former Lake County Board Pres. Ronald R Coles Coles was indicted April 24 for allegedly extorting $19,700 from four tavern owners while he was the county's liquor control commissioner and county board president. Clavey was found mentally incompetent to stand trial on extortion charges and was committed in January to a medical facility in Missouri for 90 days. Under questioning, Schuetz said Clavey received most of the payments in cash and later split them with him.

Cancer detection program available

"Cancreech," a new program to screen and detect persons with a high risk of developing cancer, has started at Evanston Hospital.

One of only three such programs in the country, Canscreen uses a patient's medical history, a physical evaluation and laboratory tests to assess cancer risk factors.

The procedure, which is open to Northwest suburban residents, is intended to help prevent cancer by informing the patient of his or her personal cancer risks.

Evaluations and test results are sent to each patient's personal physician

Patients seeking an appointment for cancer detection screening can call Evanston Hospital, 2650 Ridge Ave., Evanston, at 492-6960 for an appointment.

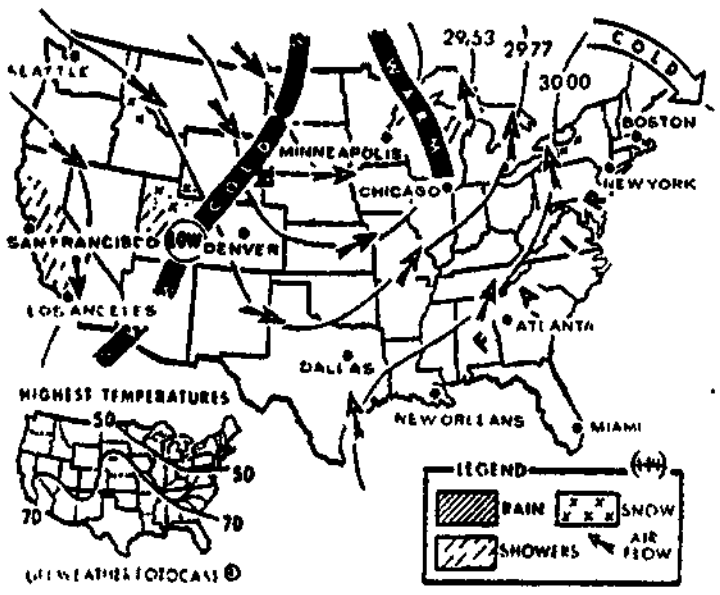

The fee is $40. Additional tests that may be required as a result of the evaluation and personal history are not included in the initial charge.

Final arguments due today in Patty trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Testimony ended in Patricia Hearst's bank robbery trial Wednesday after her mother told the jury that Patricia was a "warm and loving girl" before her kidnaping and certainly not a bitter, rebellious young woman looking for a cause.

Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey put Mrs. Catherine Hearst on the stand as the very last witness and the jurors listened in fascination to her soft southern accent as she told of a close family life but acknowledged that her daughter was "strong willed."

Her testimony brought the case to a close except for final arguments Thursday by Bailey and U.S. Atty. James L. Browning.

U.S. Judge Oliver J. Carter will instruct the jury Friday and then the seven women and five men will retire to reach a verdict on the bank robbery charge.

If she is convicted of bank robbery, she faces a maximum penalty of 25 years in prison.

In any event she still faces trial in Los Angeles on charges of kidnaping and assault with a deadly weapon.

Miss Hearst looked on intently as her 57-year-old mother testified that they were close and shared a "mutual enthusiasm for art."

The bulk of Mrs. Hearst's testimony sought to discredit Dr. Joel Fort, a prosecution psychiatric witness who testified that Miss Hearst joined the Symbionese Liberation Army voluntarily and took part in the Hibernia bank robbery "of her own free will."

Fort was perhaps the most important government witness in attempting to knock down the defense contention that Miss Hearst was brainwashed and terrorized by her kidnapers.

Mrs. Hearst said that Fort, a veteran of 270 criminal trials, came to their home to talk about their daughter and at the end of the evening suggested to her that she get in touch with prosecutor Browning in an attempt to reach a "plea bargaining" settlement and avoid a public trial.

"Dr. Fort told me he had much sympathy for Patty and that she was a kidnap victim," said Mrs. Hearst.

"He said the worst thing they could do to her was to have a public trial and that the problem was that Bailey likes to try cases and Browning wants to be a federal judge."

Fort had testified that it was Mrs. Hearst, not he, who had made the remarks about Bailey and Browning. The prosecutor on cross examination asked Mrs. Hearst about his wanting to be a judge.

"I didn't say it, Mr. Browning," Mrs. Hearst said with a beaming smile, "but I am an establishment person and I think it very laudable if you want to be a federal judge."

Mrs. Hearst said Fort had told her "everybody has forgotten about Patty" and suggested that she go to see Browning personally.

"I said I didn't think Browning wanted to see me because he was the prosecutor, but Dr. Fort said he was the United States attorney and was interested in justice and would be glad to see me," she said.

Mrs. Hearst said that as a result of the conversation she telephoned William Coblentz, an attorney with a long relationship with the Hearsts.

"Mr. Coblentz said he thought it would be a grave error to see Mr. Browning. He said it would never be kept confidential in the U.S. Attorney's office and would be given to the newspapers and it would look like he had tried to fix the case."

Arafat talks, but fighting flares in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Palestinian guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat ended a round of peace talks in Damascus Wednesday and political sources reported "slow progress" in reaching another settlement to Lebanon's civil war.

Fighting, meantime, flared across the capital as rival militiamen paid little heed to the peace efforts and blasted away at one another with rocket, mortar and machinegun fire. The six-day toll for the latest round of strife climbed to 176 dead and about 400 wounded.

Arafat and other ranking guerrilla leaders returned to Beirut from two days of talks in Damascus with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Political sources said they had been working out the details of a settlement that would trade the resignation of Lebanon's hard-line Christian President Suleiman Franjieh for the dissolution of a Moslem army rebellion and other concessions by leftists.

"Some progress has been made but the Syrians are not in a hurry. They've told everybody they want time to work out a settlement that will stick," the sources said.

Fighting that tapered off in the morning picked up again after nightfall in the city's uptown hotel district. Moslem leftists brought up a big recoilless rifle and slammed several shells into the Christian-held Holiday Inn, tearing gaping five-foot holes into the side of the building, witnesses reported.

Christian Phalangist militiamen seized the deserted foreign ministry building in suburban Beirut following the leftist occupation of the interior ministry and the premier's office.

Clashes also spread southeast of the capital as rival villages began setting up roadblocks and shelling each other with mortars.

The latest crisis was touched off last Thursday when Brig. Gen. Aziz Ahdab, the Moslem commander of the Beirut garrison, announced he was assuming power and demanded the resignation of President Suleiman Franjieh, a Christian.

The situation was complicated by formation of another rebel group, the so-called Lebanese Arab army made up of Moslem army deserters and headed by Lt. Ahmed Kahtib, who also demanded Franjieh's resignation.

Franjieh defied the rebel demands and appeals by parliament to quit.

Yasser Arafat

The rebel groups indicated they would halt efforts to oust Franjieh by force pending outcome of the Damascus talks.

ELSEWHERE IN the Mideast Wednesday, reports from Jerusalem said Israeli soldiers shot three Arab youths in one of the worst days of rioting in the occupied West Bank since Israel seized the territory from Jordan in 1967.

Israeli national radio said 60 persons were arrested in Jerusalem and scores more in other towns as street protests swept across the West Bank.

Arab informants reported demonstrations near the Mount of Olives in the old city of Jerusalem and the West Bank towns of Bethlehem, Nablus, Jericho, Hebron, Abu Dis, Halhul, Beit Sahur and Beit Jala.

Israel imposed curfews in Jericho, Hebron and Halhul. Ramallah was placed under curfew Monday. The national radio said the West Bank unrest "shows no signs of abating."

Defuse London subway train bomb

LONDON (UPI) — Explosive experts defused a suspected Irish Republican Army bomb in a subway car Wednesday, the third planted on London's transportation system in 30 hours, and ordered a daily search of all trains nationwide.

A cleaner found the bomb in a plastic case beneath a seat as the train was being prepared for the morning rush hour at Neasden depot in northwest London.

It was the third lucky escape for London's two million daily subway riders in as many days.

Late Tuesday a bomb exploded aboard an empty train at Wood Green station in northeast London only minutes before it began its run into London to pick up hundreds of soccer fans after an evening match.

Police said the device was similar to one that blew up on a city-bound train at West Ham at the start of Monday evening's rush hour, injuring nine persons, including the suspected bomber. He was captured after fatally wounding the motorman while trying to escape.

Police ordered all rolling stock on the subway system and Britain's 30,000-mile rail network to be searched every morning before going into service.

Railway workers who inspect the tracks regularly have been asked to look out for suspicious objects. A British Transport Police spokesman denied reports that police were also involved in searching the tracks.

The Irish Republican Army issued a new threat Saturday that it would bomb targets in Britain. The 250-mile London subway network, with 99 miles of track underground in narrow tunnels has long been regarded as the most vulnerable public target.

More than 60 persons have died in a succession of IRA bomb attacks in Britain since August, 1972.

London Transport has begun posting warning notices in its 4,000 subway cars and its 6,600 buses.

"Look out for any unattended packages and bags. If you see one report it at once to London Transport staff," they say. "Keep your luggage with you."

The latest wave of incidents, 14 so far, began in mid-February after the death in an English jail of IRA hunger striker Frank Staff. The attacks have continued despite the capture of two suspected bombers injured in premature explosions.

Battle brews to succeed Wilson

LONDON (UPI) — Five cabinet ministers tossed their hats into the ring Wednesday in the battle to succeed Harold Wilson as Labor party leader and prime minister. Foreign Secretary James Callaghan, 64, was odds on favorite.

Callaghan, like Wilson a man of the center, was first to file as a contender.

Others announcing their candidacy were two left-wingers, Energy Secretary Anthony Wedgewood "Tony" Benn, 51, and Employment Secretary Michael Foot, 62.

Home Secretary Roy Jenkins, 55, and Environment Secretary Anthony Crosland, 57, both considered moderates, said they, too, were accepting nomination.

Political informants said Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, 58, would also soon announce his candidacy.

The fight thus shaped up as a battle between the traditionally feuding Labor party left and right wings.

The balloting will be among the 316 Labor party members of parliament. To win a candidate must get more than 50 per cent in the first round. If no candidate does, runoff ballots will be taken.

No U.S. prisoners alive in S.E. Asia

There is no evidence that any American prisoners of war are still alive in Southeast Asia, the CIA reported Wednesday on the basis of previously classified information. Senate panel begins tax cut hearings

Treasury Secretary William Simon said Wednesday the administration still wants additional tax cuts at midyear for both individuals and businesses, but remains committed to equal reductions in projected federal spending. Simon had no surprises for the Senate Finance Committee on its first day of hearings on tax cuts and tax "reform." He called the House-passed tax revision bill "clearly a step in the right direction." The Committee plans a month of hearings before it begins writing its own tax bill. The legislation then would face a lengthy Senate floor fight and a conference committee to iron out differences with the House bill. In the meantime current tax cuts expire on July 1.

Rogers Morton to head Ford Campaign

Rogers Morton, President Ford's political counselor, will be named shortly to succeed Howard Callaway as Ford's campaign manager, informed sources said Wednesday. The sources said Morton will head The President Ford Committee and will run Ford's campaign. Morton was chosen after acting campaign manager Stuart Spencer reportedly turned down the post. Callaway was temporarily suspended as manager following allegations he used his position to influence the lease of government lands to expand his ski resort.

The Navy proposed Wednesday to eliminate three air facilities that officials said would save $56 million and affect about 12,200 military and civilian personnel — including the elimination of 4,200 civilian jobs. Federal Trade Commission lawyers and the country's three largest car rental companies have agreed on settlement of charges that the firms conspired to monopolize nationwide airport car rental facilities, a spokesman said Wednesday. The spokesman said the settlement now will be considered for approval by the full commission. The Avis Rent-A-Car System Inc. announced the settlement. The other agencies are the Hertz Corp. and National Car Rental.

The British and French also announced they went to court in their battle for landing rights in New York.

Downtown plan ruling due today

A plan for improving the central business district in Arlington Heights will be selected tonight by the village's downtown improvements subcommittee.

The committee will choose from three final schemes developed by Village Planner Joseph Kesler. Its choice will then be reviewed by the full committee headed by Trustee August Bettman and then sent to the village board for final approval.

Today's meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

THE THREE FINAL schemes up for review tonight call for the construction of pedestrian malls on Campbell, Davis and Miner streets, closing them to all vehicular traffic except emergency vehicles.

Semi-malls that will allow vehicular traffic to be built on Vail, Dunton and Evergreen avenues, according to the plans.

The major differences between the three plans are the size and location of parking garages.

The most costly plan calls for the construction of a four-level garage on air rights over the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks.

"This would be a bold solution to connecting our two downtown areas, but it would be a strong focal point for our business district," Kesler said.

KESLER ENVISIONS the garage as a versatile structure that in addition to serving as a "bridge" for both pedestrian and vehicular traffic, could also provide space for retail stores on the lower level and office space on top.

The least costly alternative would have about 10 double-deck parking garages on scattered sites in the business district.

"This would enable people to walk less and it would cost less, but it would consume a lot of land," Kesler said.

The lower tier of the two-tiered garages would be partially below ground level, and the tops would be landscaped so they would be "barely noticed," Kesler said.

THE THIRD PLAN calls for the gradual construction of four 500-car parking garages with two located on each side of the railroad tracks.

It also suggests one or two pedestrian underpasses be built to help connect the two business districts.

After one plan is selected, the village's planning department will begin to detail the plans, conduct a traffic study and design new storefronts for Campbell street stores, Kesler said.

Cost estimates and financing alternatives also will be developed, he said.

Women voters back housing plan

IT "is a garden-variety zoning controversy."

"The only real question is the reasonableness of the zoning restriction, which both on its face and in fact is not aimed at any racial minority," Siegel says in the brief he filed with the Supreme Court.

Siegel reported to the village board this week that he has drafted objections to the two "friends-of-the-court" briefs sent to the Supreme Court.

THE BRIEF submitted by the League of Women Voters was prepared by the law firm of Friedman & Koven, which donated its time to the project, according to Irvana Wilks, president of the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect chapter.

It also includes Abe Fortas, who was once nominated for a position on the Supreme Court, as being involved with the preparation of the brief.

The brief merely presents the League of Women Voters' philosophy, Mrs. Wilks said.

"We're not attempting to try MHDC's (development corporation's) case. We just thought we could be an objective voice, and since we're a local organization, we hope that the court will listen to us," she said.

The position of the local League is that "if a community wants businesses to come in to improve their tax base, it should bear the responsibility of housing the individuals employed in these businesses," Mrs. Wilks said. "We see a need for this housing and are only asking that the zoning change be allowed."

THE AMERICAN Society of Planning Officials also prepared a legal brief for the case for philosophical reasons.

Conrad Bagne, who wrote that brief, said that it is not unusual for the organization to take such action when cases involve municipal planning. He said the brief "presented a middle ground," though also admitted that "in this case we come out on the side of the developer."

"We feel the decision of the village to deny rezoning of the property was improper," Bagne said.

"We feel the community has the right to determine what the character of the community should be, but when the effect reaches outside the community to perpetuate housing segregation, the community should have the burden to say what particular aspects of its planning process concludes that the development should not go ahead," he said.

"As a spokesman for planners, we want to ensure that local comprehensive planning is not thrown by the wayside. It is the purpose of ASPO (society of planning officials) to see that community planning functions properly," Bagne said.

Youth gets probation in school damage case

A 13-year-old Mount Prospect youth has been ordered to serve one year on probation for his part in a $100,000 vandalism spree at Gregory School last December

The youngster, a student of the school, 400 E Gregory, was sentenced during an appearance Wednesday in Niles Juvenile Court.

Kenneth Zschach, juvenile investigator for the Mount Prospect police said two other youngsters, ages 13 and 14, entered guilty pleas to charges of damage to property in the Gregory school vandalism as well as causing $25,000 damage at Dunton School, 1200 S. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights the same weekend

The two will be sentenced April 28 in juvenile court following a background investigation, Zschach said.

All three were arrested Dec. 29 after Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights juvenile authorities traced their identities through students at both schools

In the Gregory School attack, which occurred Dec. 27, vandals smashed windows and broke and damaged several pieces of equipment.

Jaycee fund raiser to benefit hospital

The Arlington Heights Jaycees will sell discount coupon books Saturday to help raise money toward the purchase of a $30,000 thermoscope for Northwest Community Hospital.

The book, costing $2, has coupons from 35 local merchants good for discounts on such items as pizzas, clothes, shoes, hardware, paints, wallpaper and dry cleaning. The discount book has a face value of about $88, according to the Jaycees

The books will be sold door-to-door by the Jaycees, who will be identified by buttons reading either "Official Jaycee Helper" or "I'm Fighting Back Against Cancer."

Sales will begin about 9:30 a.m. and will continue until about 5 p.m. A rain date of next Saturday has been set.

The thermoscope is a heat-detecting machine used for early diagnosis of cancer.

Ford claims clean sweep in delegates

by WANDALYN RICE

Backers of President Ford are claiming a clean sweep in the election of delegates to the GOP National Convention in the 10th and 12th Congressional districts.

With unoffical returns still incomplete, Harold Smith Jr, vice chairman of the President Ford Committee and 12th District delegate candidate, claimed victory over the 12th District Ronald Reagan delegate candidates Reagan's delegates included the three top leaders of his Illinois campaign.

Smith said the closest race was between himself and U S. Rep. Philip M Crane, R-12th, for the fourth and last spot on the 12th District convention delegation. With five precincts still unreported, Smith said he had 20,876 votes to Crane's 20,565

SMITH SAID, OTHER Ford delegates, William Heffernan, Glena D. Jicha and Irl Marshall were all running ahead of his vote total. Clear losers in the delegate race were State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Schaumburg, State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and Elizabeth Brown, all Reagan delegates.

In the 10tn District, Ford delegates on a slate led by insurance magnate W Clement Stone were claiming victory over Reagan delegates Statewide reports indicated that Ford won 69 delegates, compared to 14 Reagan delegates. Thirteen uncommitted delegates were elected.

Returns for the Democratic delegate races were confused in the 12th Congressional District Wednesday, but scattered returns indicated the five delegates pledged to Georgia Gov Jimmy Carter were ahead.

INCOMPLETE RETURNS from the Lake County part of the district indicated four of the five Carter delegates winning with Herbert (Hub) Stern, Lake County chairman, in a dead heat with one Carter delegate for the fifth spot. Stern was pledged to Illinois Sen Adlai Stevenson

Scattered returns from other areas of the district also indicated Carter delegates were running strong, with local political figures running close to them in some cases.

In the 10th District, six out of seven candidates pledged to Stevenson and considered to be loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J Daley were elected.

One Carter delegate, Ruth S. Singer, appeared to be elected in the 10th. Stevenson delegates winning in unofficial returns were Newton Minow, State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, Patricia Morowitz, Nina Shepherd, Alberta Lauterbach and Lawrence Wagner.

Statewide reports indicated Stevenson won 85 delegates, who are expected to take orders from Daley. Carter won 53, Alabama Gov. George Wallace 3, Minnesota Sen. Hubert Humphrey 6, Gov. Daniel Walker 4, and uncommitted, 18.

Walker looks down, but he may not be out

Crane, R-12th, the popular conservative, finished as the top Reagan vote getter in the area, but out of the money as far as a seat at the convention goes.

Reagan got his expected 40 per cent of the vote in Illinois, but President Gerald R. Ford now has the momentum to gain the nomination.

The ex-California governor got support to stay in the race Wednesday from a strange place.

VICE PRESIDENT Nelson Rockefeller said Reagan should not drop out now, noting the competition would keep Ford sharp and in the headlines for the next few months.

Crane also appears ready to continue his fling in national politics. He has planned speaking engagements in North Carolina, Texas and California in the next few weeks.

Reagan says he will stay in the race, but money to finance his campaign may be the factor in how many more weeks he runs. A candidate can only finish second so many times in a two-man race before the money dries up altogether.

As low as Reagan supporters are right now, backers of ex-Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter are flying high. They smashed Alabama Gov. George Wallace in the north and picked up about twice as many delegates in the state as they expected. While Carter now has grabbed 127 delegates across the country, it should be noted that Illinois' own non-candidate U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., stands second in the nation with 87. He is ahead of Wallace, Udall, Jackson, Shriver, Harris and the rest.

Refuses to endorse Howlett

Walker debating independent bid

by KURT BAER

Gov. Daniel Walker Wednesday kept open the possibility that he will mount an independent campaign for governor against Regular Democratic candidate Michael Howlett and GOP candidate James Thompson.

"I foreclose no option" Walker said repeatedly at a noon press conference called to concede his Tuesday primary election loss by more than 100,000 votes to Howlett.

Walker gave several indications that he is considering an independent run for governor and he refused to endorse Howlett, despite an earlier campaign statement that he would back the winner of the primary.

"The score is now Walker, one, Daley, one," the governor said, referring to his 1972 win over Paul Simon by 40,298 votes despite Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's efforts on Simon's behalf.

THE STATEMENT left a strong impression that the political fight between the governor and the mayor is not over.

"In the closing weeks of the campaign a number of important questions arose. Questions that have been unanswered. I believe that those questions must be answered before I can make any decision about my future political plans," he said.

Walker was pressed repeatedly for clarification of his plans and the campaign questions he alluded to, but he would say only that he was keeping all his options open.

The governor was surrounded by his family when he conceded defeat, a loss that he blamed entirely on Daley.

"IT WAS THE Daley machine that caused my loss in this election. There is no question about it," he said.

The governor said he thought he would have beaten Howlett if the pair had run against each other in a general election instead of a primary.

Walker sent a terse, two-sentence telegram to Howlett — "Congratulations on your victory. Roberta and our family join me in sending best wishes to your family," it said. He also congratulated Thompson.

On campaign financing, Walker said he would have a primary election deficit, although he said he did not know how large it would be. He also said that he still plans to release the remaining names of his 1972 campaign contributers.

THE ONLY DEFINITE statement Walker made on his future political plans was to rule out any bid for the U. S. Presidential nomination. "Everybody here knows the facts of life on that," he said.

Walker said he will leave shortly on a vacation with family members who stood behind him in a semicircle at the news conference.

Several dozen campaign workers and state employes also appeared at the conference and they broke into applause when the governor entered the room and when he left.

Howlett sues to stop Walker probe in the Fox Valley Trotting Assn. He said at the time he did not know the firm owned the stock.

Defendants in the suit are Walker, Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano, the director of the Illinois Dept. of Financial Institutions, A. P. Tsoumas, James T. Otis, a Walker supporter, and individual members of the racing board.

During the campaign Walker charged that Howlett had "put himself in hock to race track interests" by accepting the loan.

HOWLETT, THROUGH his attorney Don H. Reuben, denies any wrongdoing in connection with the loans which he says have been fully repaid.

Asked about the Howlett suit at a press conference Wednesday, Walker said only that "the courts are open to everyone."

The suit alleges Walker conspired with Tsoumas over the investigation during the campaign in order to create "adverse voter sentiment" against Howlett.

Otis, who was appointed by Tsoumas as a "hearing officer" in the investigation, is a well-known Walker supporter who contributed to Walker's campaign, the suit states.

A Howlett campaign aide said the suit was not intended to block an investigation of the $100,000 loans by an impartial fact-finder.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Thursday, March 18, the 78th day of 1976 with 288 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Pisces.

Grover Cleveland, 24th president of the United States was born March 18, 1837.

On this day in history:

• In 1931, the first electric shavers appeared on the American market.

• In 1937, an explosion at the Consolidated Public School in New London, Tex., killed 426 persons, most of them children.

• In 1962, the French and Algerians signed a cease-fire agreement ending a seven-year civil war and bringing independence to the North African territory.

• In 1975, it was revealed the CIA had financed the building of a multi-million-dollar salvage ship for use in a 1974 attempt to bring up a sunken Russian nuclear submarine in the Pacific Ocean.

The way we see it

Daley machine: alive and well

You don't have to be a political pundit to draw three easy lessons from Tuesday's gubernatorial battle:

• Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's machine, when geared up for battle as it was Tuesday, still can produce a landslide for not only a gubernatorial candidate, but for an entire slate.

Some observers argued months ago that Michael Howlett was a weaker candidate than, say, Neil Hartigan or Alan Dixon. But when Daley wants the State House as much as he wanted it this year, we wonder if the name of the candidate matters.

• Daniel Walker isn't the man of the people he's been claiming for the past four years.

Walker and his savvy advisers had constructed an image of Walker as the anti-machine politician whose first concerns were those of the ordinary man.

But the ordinary man saw through the rhetoric and looked hard at Walker's record as governor. He saw little, and decided to put Walker out of office.

• James R. Thompson's overwhelming victory in the GOP primary signals what we hope will be an issue-oriented general election campaign in November.

Thompson had no serious competition from millionaire Richard Cooper. But that didn't deter the former U.S. attorney from talking about the issues during his campaign.

We hope that the message of Thompson's campaign gets through to Howlett. There are many critical state issues (state financing and educational spending, to name two) that demand a thorough public debate, not the tossing of rhetoric mixed with mud.

So let's get on with it. We'll be served best if Howlett and Thompson stick to the important issues as we move towards the November elections.

'Personal' resignation deserves public review

The resignation of Robert Kunkel as Des Plaines Park District director leaves many questions unanswered, the most basic of which is why a man who had been effective in his position 7½ years abruptly decided to quit.

Kunkel refused to give reasons for his resignation except to say "the reasons are personal." We suspect the reasons are in fact personal, but we also believe public officials have certain responsibilities to explain their actions. If Kunkel refuses to do so, the members of the park board who hired Kunkel should explain the matter from their point of view.

Thus far, the board has refused to discuss it, and that attitude is a disservice to the people of Des Plaines.

Dateline 1776

(by United Press International)

STRATFORD, Conn., March 18 — The Rev. Jeremiah Leaming incensed local residents by baptizing an infant as Thomas Gage, the name of the departed British general. Although the minister denied loyalist sympathies, fellow townsmen were told to make their own judgments of him.

Reader rips illegal aliens

Illegal aliens are flooding the United States, taking jobs and raising taxes. Our corrupt politicians in Washington are writing new immigration laws merely to bring them a windfall of votes — Democratic votes. About 20,000 Mexicans cross the border illegally each month. They vote — again illegally — in most local, state and national elections and 95 per cent vote for the Democratic party. About five million illegal Mexicans live and work in California alone.

Every major city in the United States has large blocs of ethnic groups who would support liberal politicians if granted the right to vote. Local governments are on the verge of forgetting the philosophy that "one should be a citizen" in order to reap the benefits of citizenship. English is losing its place as the language of Americans. Classroom teachers in metropolitan areas with large minority populations are required to be bilingual, which forces the cost of education upwards. Illegal aliens cost the United States taxpayer a total of $31 billion in lost taxes, welfare, health, and social benefits. The dangers of communist infiltration via the illegal alien route are very definite.

These foreign nationals refuse to spend their money in America — money earned in the United States ($5 billion is being sent out of the country to their families). They refuse to learn English and openly show their contempt for American culture and customs. Yet, they clamor for higher welfare benefits, overcrowding our already crowded public housing system. Taking jobs from citizens and lowering an area's salary level. Not to mention the burden they put on our crowded public schools and paying no taxes towards our public school system. Property taxes have also climbed to make up for a deficit — the loss of revenue.

Why do these corrupt politicians in Washington openly court the Asians, Latin Americans, Mexicans, and Chinese illegal aliens as residents of the United States? They know only too well they can easily control people with no formal education and no capacity to acquire any knowledge. Isn't this also mongrelizing the backbone of the country — the middle class? Our pluralists in Washington want two classes of people in the United States — the very rich and the very poor. They are attempting to achieve this and are doing so already by this bad situation.

Who has the money in this country to influence legislation? Why the international bankers, large industrialists, television and newspaper moguls? Don't they, too, influence legislation? Why would they want to do this to their country? Simply because they are not interested in the United States. They want world government — power! Rome fell because of the barbarians, and we will fall, too, because of the greed for power.

The passing of such self-destructive immigration laws is helping to achieve what our corrupt politicians are setting out to do. Laws that allow an illegal alien who stays for one year to obtain a work visa. Then after three years a permanent visa can be obtained. Is this really a law or just another way of getting what the corrupt politicians want? No other country on earth would allow people to enter this country to work when there is not enough work to go around.

This is further proof that most of our representatives in Washington are not representing the will of the people.

Edward J. Bedard

I am somewhat confused by Art Neil's letter of March 1. The Herald was nice enough to provide me with a copy of the article referred to in his letter, and I see little correlation between the remarks credited to me in the article and Neil's letter. I made no reference to the teachers participating in the political process unless my statement, "The growing militancy of the teachers is going to be a counterforce to economy in education," is construed as participation in the political process. I invite Neil and the Schaumburg Education Assn. to not be a counterforce to economy in education — but I am sure we are far apart in our thinking as to what that means.

My "charges" of the possibility of the schools becoming a battleground has nothing to do with "narrow political partisanship" (Neil's term, not mine). Our schools were a battleground — it is recorded history — or does Neil forget?

I miss where I was "deliberating lengthily" over "who is going to control the schools," as the paper attributed no quote to me on this subject.

Everyone is for the cliche "high quality educational system." But I don't equate that with higher teachers' salaries, as Neil and his organization have so often done. The meaning of the term is different from the term "system with high teachers' salaries," at least in my book.

We will see who will make the recommitment to higher quality education, keeping our schools from becoming a battleground, and narrow partisan politics in the upcoming negotiations. I remind Neil of the preamble to the agreement between the Board of Education and the Schaumburg Education Association:

"The Board of Education of School Dist. 54 and the Schaumburg Education Association, agree that they hold as a common objective the education and welfare of the children of Schaumburg Township."

The community will watch the SEA and the board to assess with whose welfare they really are concerned.

'Dictator of U.S. is money'

Who is the dictator of our great nation? Is it thee who fiddles while Rome burns?

Thee, with the red flag of economic dictatorship, who can crowd the most peaceful man until he will plunder and murder that his urgent needs might be satisfied? Thee, for whom man will, without reflection, sell his soul and his honor?

And when Congress comes to Washington holding aloft a mandate from the people, is it thee who is there, in every nook and corner, the omnipotent power behind the throne?

Yes, with thy magic wand, this firebrand of destruction, thee can transform good citizens into criminals, patriots into enemies, love into hate. It is thee who has the power to destroy the homes of the nation, and the very foundations of government.

And by thy power thee can turn back the clock to the dark and forgotten past when man was little more than a crafty animal, who survived with crudely fashioned weapons, artifice and the ingenue of his guileless victims.

It is thee who controls mankind's first law, the law of self-preservation. And there is no power on earth for good or for evil that is thy equal.

Thy unholy name is money!

Questions 'morality' of nuclear policy

Our nation's nuclear policy is one question to which every thinking person should address himself. It deeply involves questions of morality for it is a policy that touches every human being living and yet to be born.

Besides the problems of safety and international terrorism, the disposal problem is not likely ever to be solved either. Here in Illinois the now defunct Morris Plant is instead being used to store spent nuclear fuel. Nuclear wastes are being trucked from many areas to the Morris Plant.

Now what do we really want? More conveniences, electrical gadgets? Or do we want a sane and safe environment to pass on to our kids? The answers lie in (1) A moratorium on more nuclear plants, now! This means no more plants until these problems are solved, if ever. (2) Solar energy should be a top priority budget item. We have the technology, we need government support to speed up use of this pollution-free energy system. (3) Less fuel waste and more laws to help conservation policies. (4) An end to "fear" tactics by the utilities. Only 7 per cent of our nation's energy comes from nuclear power. We could be totally on solar energy by the year 2,000, according to the experts. And many new jobs will be created with our new systems. This has been the case with other environmental legislation, an EPA report of February 1976 states, "While some jobs have been lost because of environmental demands, the number of jobs created by the environmental movement have matched or exceeded those lost."

Our President's desire for a nuclear speed-up will be leading the world's people into a major change in their biological and sociological environment, a permanent and serious change in our mode of human existence.

Time is short, but we can turn this trend of more nuclear plants around and stop it with enough public pressure. I hope you pick up a pen and write your representatives now and say that a moratorium on more nuclear power plants is a must. Too long have the manufacturers' bid for profits been heard. Let's be vocal, too, not to vote, not to make yourself heard is worse than saying yes or no; in this case, "no" to nuclear "economy."

Tuxedos questioned

I am appalled to find Township High School Dist. 214 spending my money as a taxpayer for 50 tuxedos at $50 each for a total cost of $2,500 so the orchestra can wear tuxedos for a concert. When I was in school, dark pants or skirts with a white top was sufficient and I still feel this way. Let's use $2,500 for classroom films or instructional materials for the students instead of using that money for a select few!

Chapman leads Brennan with 3,900 vote margin

State Rep Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, ran up a 3,900 vote plurality Tuesday against Joan Brennan of Elk Grove Village, who will be her running mate in the fall.

In unofficial returns, Mrs. Chapman had received 12,085 votes to Mrs. Brennan's 8,132. Both women will be running in the Third Legislative District along with Republican State Representatives Virginia Macdonald and Donald Totten in the November election. Three state representatives will be elected.

The incomplete returns showed Mrs. Chapman leading with 2,616 votes to 1,396 votes in 36 of the 39 Wheeling Township precincts in the third district, despite efforts by Wheeling Township Committeeman Donald Norman to encourage voters to "bullet" for Mrs. Brennan.

BY CASTING A bullet vote, voters can give one primary candidate three votes. In the general election voters will be able to vote for three candidates, giving them one vote each; for two candidates, giving them 1½ votes each; or giving one candidate three votes.

The 3rd District has traditionally elected two GOP legislators and one Democrat, with Mrs. Chapman holding the Democratic seat since 1965. Mrs. Brennan, since declaring her candidacy last fall, has criticized Mrs. Chapman for her vote to sustain the governor's veto of state school aid.

Last week, Norman, who also has been critical of Chapman since her vote on the school aid veto, had sample ballots printed instructing voters to bullet for Mrs. Brennan. In the past, the high vote getter in the Democratic primary has almost invariably been the Democrat elected in November election.

OTHE UNCONTESTED candidates nominated in Tuesday's primary include Mrs. Macdonald of Arlington Heights and Totten, of Schaumburg. Others are U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th. Edwin Frank of Hoffman Estates was nominated in the Democratic primary to oppose Crane.

In the 1st Legislative District, Republicans State Rep. John Porter of Evanston and Roger Keats of Wilmette and Democrats Rep. Harold Katz of Glencoe and Joseph Rossberger of Northfield were nominated.

In the 2nd District, State Rep. Richard Mugalian of Palatine and William Sarto of Elgin both Democrats, were unopposed for nomination. In the 4th District Democrats State Rep. Aaron Jaffe of Skokie and Alvin Marks of Niles were unopposed. Unopposed in the 5th District were State Rep. Edward Bluthardt of Schuller Park and Robert Guerine of Melrose Park, both Republicans.

In the 3rd District State Senate race Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and Michael Smith of Elk Grove Village, a Democrat, were both unopposed in nomination.

Clark ahead of Dieringer in high court battle

Former Illinois Atty. Gen William G Clark appears to be on the verge of upsetting the Chicago machine in the primary race for the Illinois Supreme Court

With vote tabulations going slowly on the long paper judicial primary ballots, Clark Wednesday was leading regular Democratic Appellate Court Judge Henry Dieringer by 216,227 to 183,407. About 60 per cent of the votes were counted

In the other Democratic supreme court race, independent James A. Dooley was trailing regular Democratic Circuit Court Judge Joseph A. Power by 199,631 to 193,831. Dooley said Wednesday, "I'm still optimistic It's still up in the air"

Dooley has said he will challenge the legality of the judicial primary if he loses because he contends the judicial races, rather than the convention delegates, should have been on county voting machines

Clark was not claiming victory Wednesday, but said his projections indicate he may beat Dieringer by 45,000 votes. "I am very cautious and want to see more returns," he said.

In other Democratic judicial races, it appeared all regular Democratic candidates were winning over the approximately 40 independents in the races.

In the Republican judicial primary, Associate Judge Peter Bakakos appeared to be leading his opponent Bernard Hammer for nomination for the Illinois Appellate court. Regular party endorsed Republican candidates for suburban judges were also leading all but one of their races Marion Burks, an independent, was leading regular Republican Themis Anastos.

Final winners in the judicial primary will not be known until after the official vote canvass which is expected to be completed late next week.

DePaul shoots for East Regional finals

Coach Ray Meyer wants more of the same tonight from his DePaul Blue Demons. DePaul, the last team chosen for the NCAA basketball championship tournament, meets VMI in a regional contest to be broadcast by Channel 44 and WWMM-FM (92.7) at 8 p.m. after a surprise first-round victory over Virginia.

"The two teams are very much alike," Meyer said. "I saw VMI play before our game and I was very much impressed with their outside shooting.

They don't play for short shots. They just play for the 20-foot jumper and they hit it.

"They shot 64 per cent so they don't miss many. They'll give us the rebounds if they miss, but that's not very often."

Meyer said both VMI and Virginia were "very patient" ball clubs and VMI "surprisingly so because they run the ball up the floor every time looking for the fast break, and if they don't get it, they'll pull the ball out and hold it before they take a shot."

Meyer expects VMI to play the same type of game regardless of the score. "They're a tough kind of team to play against," he said. "They're a military school and very well disciplined. They don't make many mistakes and they're very good with the ball. They don't dribble it. They pass it all night."

Without disclosing the fine points of his own plans, Meyer said DePaul would try to run "if we possibly can. We'll just do as best we can as far as getting down the court in a hurry. VMI plays a zone and makes you shoot from outside so any fast breaks we can get will help us."

Meyer, whose team now has a 20-8 record, said his club might put him in an embarrassing position by winning its next two games. A victory over VMI would put DePaul in the regional finals against the winner of the games between unbeaten Rutgers and Connecticut, wit the winner advancing to the national finals at Philadelphia.

"It could happen," Meyer said, "and if we get to Philadelphia I'll be doing hand springs on the corner of State and Madison."

When VMI comes to the NCAA Eastern Regional basketball championships, the Keydets will bring "voice power" with them.

"It's damn near been declared a holiday," said sports information director Tom Shupe Tuesday as 800 of the military school's 1,100 cadets prepared to travel to Greensboro.

Classes at the small military school were canceled and the athletic department raised $3,000 to subsidize ticket sales to the corps. "We'll certainly be well-represented as far as voice power goes," said Shupe.

Up until this year, the corps hasn't had a lot to cheer about. The Keydets have their first winning season, 21-9, in 41 years and their first Southern Conference basketball championship.

Whether the unscheduled holiday lasts through the Sunday's finals, said VMI coach Bill Blair, depends on whether his five short-haired starters can stop DePaul's inside play and shoot as well as they have all season.

"DePaul is a very, very big team," said Blair at a news conference Tuesday. "We don't match up with them but we haven't matched up with many teams this year. "They concentrate on getting the ball inside," said Blair. "If they start getting the ball inside, I don't know how in the hell we'll stop them."

The Keydets have shot 52 per cent from the floor this season, but the top four starters have averaged over 60 per cent. Sophomore forward Ron Carter leads the Keydet offense with a 17.9 scoring average and 6.5 rebounds per game. He is followed by 6-6 junior forward Will Bynum with 15.5 points.

One of Blair's biggest headaches will be DePaul's Ron Norwood, who pumped in 28 points — 10 more than his average — in the win over Virginia. "He is an excellent defensive player," said Blair. "He's very, very quick."

Shidler's name, hair unnatural, but his shooting's supernatural

They referred to him as "that boy," "that blonde-headed player" or just plain "Shidler" in the office Monday.

People who usually just say "hi" wanted to discuss the dazzling performance of Lawrenceville's superstar, Jay Shidler.

The fifth annual Class A boys' basketball championships will go down in Illinois history as the "Jay Shidler State Tournament." His brilliant shooting display stole the spotlight.

Shidler's 45-point outburst in the third-place game en route to the all-time scoring title (157 for four games) overshadowed the title game for TV viewers.

One veteran observer summed up Jay's spectacular showing like this:

"I've been watching state basketball tournaments for over 25 years, and I can't remember one individual so completely capturing a crowd, dominating a tournament. You might have to go back to the days of Dike Eddleman at Centralia in the early 1940s to find one player so completely taking charge, and lifting up an entire audience at the same time.

"What Eddleman didn't have was the exposure on television. Jay Shidler's accomplishments last weekend were with an entire state watching, and they will be remembered for as long as they hold this tournament."

Everyone who watched this 6-foot-2 scoring machine already knows about his on court exploits. But what about the young man himself.

For openers, his real name is Jeffrey Dean Shidler, according to someone who knows, his mother. Mrs. Shidler said they started calling him "J.D." when he was small, but at a point in time it became Jay.

The Shidler name is synonymous with sports in the little southeastern community of Lawrenceville (Pop. 5492). Located near the Wabash River, which separates Illinois from Indiana, and just across the river from Vincennes, the town first followed the exploits of Dick Shidler, Jay's dad.

"Dick was quite a ballplayer himself," said Bob Tipsword, Elk Grove's athletic director and a former assistant coach at Lawrenceville (1948-52). "I was really pulling for Shidler last weekend. I must have been like everyone else, wanting to see him shoot and score.

"I honestly don't think I've ever seen a better outside shooter in Illinois. He's such a complete player, so confident," added Tipsword.

These last statements might have also been said in 1970 by some of the Lawrenceville townspeople. That's when Dennis, Jay's brother, made All-State while leading Illinois preps with a 35.5 scoring average.

Then Jay, the Shidler's only other child, came along and also led the state scorers with 31.2.

"I just can't believe both boys have had so much success," said Mrs. Shidler. "It was just real thrilling to have the one, then another came along and outdid his brother. . .broke all his records."

You might have guessed that Jay, a muscular (6-foot 1½, 185) athlete with that all-round ability look about him, played quarterback in football and catcher, shortstop, third and second base in baseball. A leg injury as a junior cut short his career in football and he won't play baseball because of the all-star basketball games he'll be in this spring.

You also might have wondered about his hair. He has the bleached out look of a California surfer. Although he's a real blonde, he had help.

"That was out of a bottle," admitted his mother. "He had real oily hair, so the beauty operator told me if I would tint it, it would take out some of the oil. He used to have to wash it two times a day."

His hair isn't natural, but his ability is. People had to be reminded of another blonde bomber when they watched Jay — Rick Mount.

But experts consider Jay even better because aside from his shooting (he hit about 55 per cent for the season), Shidler can rebound (he jumped center) and play defense. He will make ANY college basketball program a better one.

"I think I'm more of a second guard," said Shide. "I think I shoot best from the corner and the wings rather than from out front.

"One of the things I have to look at is how many guards a school has coming back. I also have to think about the type of ball a school plays. I've always played with teams that got it out and ran with it, and I'd like to keep playing that way."

He also would like to go to a school that's a short driving distance from home. His mother said Jay's list has been narrowed to four — Indiana (the shortest trip), Illinois State (the longest), Southern Illinois and Illinois — both about the same distance.

Shidler would be "just" another prep All-American guard at Indiana, where three very fine underclassmen will be returning. He could return to his greatest moment if he chose Illinois. He'd be the main man at Illinois State.

And then there's Southern where a graduate assistant coach is trying to recruit him. Specifically, big brother Dennis. "They are very close," said their mother.

Wherever he goes, Illinois basketball fans will be hearing more of Jeffrey Dean Shidler.

And don't worry about all this fame going to his golden dome. When I first tried to reach him by phone Tuesday, his mother said he'd be at school until 5:30 p.m. Jay wasn't being punished, he was just shooting.

What else would you be expecting the only athlete ever to have been named to both the Class A and AA all-State teams to be doing?

Brad Smith covets NCAA medal

by KEITH REINHARD

Next stop: The Olympics.

Brad Smith hopes his destiny will carry him in that direction after winning a national wrestling title last Saturday.

The University of Iowa senior was back home in Arlington Heights on furlough this week after capturing the 142-pound championship at the NCAA mat finals in Tucson, Ariz. He speculated on his latest goal and made some observations about his recent achievement.

"I felt a lot of pressure at the Nationals but I guess it was mostly of my own making. I've been talking about winning a title there for a long time and I knew this would be my last crack at it."

Smith pointed out that the three weeks leading up to the big meet were probably even more difficult to endure than the pressure of the National tourney itself. "I was really down after only finishing third in the Big Ten Meet (for the third year in a row). I worked pretty hard after that."

Last year Brad took a 28-1 record into the Big Ten gathering. His 33-5-1 mark this winter was less impressive but the former two-time state champ from Hersey has always responded best under the most pressure. "My first bout at the Nationals was my toughest one this year (he won it 9-3). After that I began to feel more confident with each win."

One of Smith's coaches at Iowa, Dan Gable, noted after the NCAA tournament, "Brad's always had the physical ability to win . . . in any tournament he's ever entered. It's always been a case of getting in the right frame of mind. He just put it all together this time."

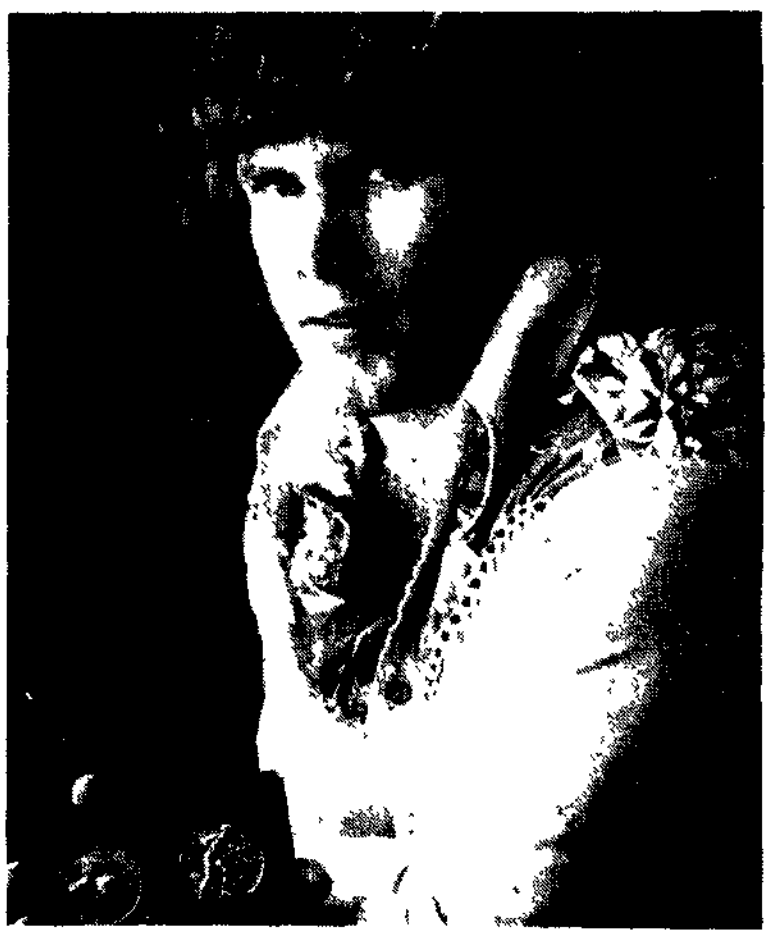

And how about the Olympics? "I definitely plan to try out," Smith admitted. "I'll cut down to 136½ and I feel my chances are fairly good."

He is knowledgeable of his chief opponents in that division. One is Doug Moses, another assistant coach at his own school and one he has been very competitive against.

Another is Dewayne Keller, the assistant mentor from the University of Oklahoma who bettered him 5-3 this past December in the finals of the Midlands gathering.

Tryouts for the Olympics begin in May with two qualifiers at each weight from each of four regions then gathering at a camp for further training prior to final wrestleoffs.

Like a National title, an Olympic berth is one of Brad Smith's goals . . . and one that will hopefully be realized over a much shorter span of time.

NCAA wrestling champion Brad Smith.

Bowie Kuhn orders camps to open

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) —Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered an immediate start to spring training Wednesday following a "major concession" by the players, assuring an on-schedule start for the major league baseball season.

The two separate actions broke a month-long deadlock between the players and the owners that had threatened to delay the season's scheduled start on April 8.

Kuhn made his announcement from his office in New York a short time after the players indicated here, for the first time, they were ready to compromise on the key "one-and-one" reserve clause issue.

"Because I think it is now vital that spring training get underway without further delay, I have directed that all camps be opened at the earliest possible time," Kuhn said.

Immediate reaction from both the players and the owners was favorable.

"I don't know what sort of an effect it will have on the negotiations — all I know is it's going to help baseball," said Bill Freehan, the Detroit Tigers' veteran catcher and player representative.

Brad Corbett, the owner of the Texas Rangers, said in Fort Worth, "I have been an outspoken critic of the commissioner, but I give him credit for what he did today. I think it was a bold move and a good one."

The owners made what they called their "best and final" offer to the players Monday, and Marvin Miller, the players' spokesman, expressed dissatisfaction with it. He said he would recommend rejection.

But at a meeting here Wednesday, the players agreed to compromise on the owners' demand that a "free agent" be limited in the number of teams with which he could bargain.

That broke the logjam.

Wednesday was the first time the players indicated a willingness to budget on the key "one-and-one" issue in the dispute which already had caused the cancellation of more than 100 exhibition games.

"You could say we have bargained away rights we have already won and by doing so we have set ourselves up for possible litigation from any members of the union," said Freehan.

Assuming the compromise eventually is incorporated into an agreement — which must be approved by players as well as at least 13 clubs — would mean the owners never again could be forced into a 24-team bidding war over a veteran who becomes a free agent, such as Catfish Hunter a year ago.

The Hunter case was based on a unique, breach of contract case. But this past winter, a 20-game winning pitcher Andy Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who played in 1975 without a signed contract, won his free agency when an arbitrator ruled that the option clause in his 1974 contract could only be invoked for a single year.

That ruling, upheld by federal courts, opened the door to possibly hundreds of players remaining unsigned and becoming free agents in a year. The clubowners, fearful of millions of dollars in bidding wars similar to those that have left basketball and hockey teams in weak financial shape, then made their stand.

Until there was a new agreement, they said, there would be no spring training, no exhibition games, and if it came to that, no season.

Wednesday's moves, while they at least get the camps and the games going, still leave the two parties far short of a final agreement.

"While nobody is more disappointed than I that we do not have solid progress toward a final agreement, the fans are the most important people around, and their interests now become paramount," Kuhn said.

"Opening the camps and starting the season on time is what they want."

The San Diego Padres quickly, formally announced they would open their camp at Yuma, Ariz., on Friday.

Bob Howsam, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds who train here in Tampa, said two days ago that "We'll be open by 10 in the morning," the day following an agreement, presumably meaning Thursday morning. Bill Veeck, the maverick owner of the Chicago White Sox who train in nearby Sarasota, Fla., already has minor leaguers and free agents in camp and presumably the major league White Sox players will arrive Thursday.

NCAA title fight continues tonight

Eight of the top nine ranked teams in the nation are still alive as the NCAA basketball tournament continues with regional semifinal games tonight, yet the possibility remains the championship round in Philadelphia could consist of four clubs that are not even ranked among the top 10.

How would this be for a Final Four? Connecticut versus Texas Tech and Western Michigan against Pepperdine. Or, how about, DePaul or VMI against Missouri and Arizona versus Western Michigan.

Those situations are not probable but distinctly possible.

The NCAA is obviously hoping for a final pairing of third-ranked Rutgers against eighth-ranked Notre Dame or ninth-ranked Michigan, and either top-ranked Indiana or second-ranked Marquette against fourth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas or fifth-ranked UCLA.

Most often, the high ranking clubs are in the Final Four but this year's underdogs are certainly not going to go down without a fight.

Pepperdine, for example, feels it has an excellent chance of upsetting defending champion UCLA in Thursday night's Far West semifinals, even though the game will be played on the Bruins' home court, Pauley Pavilion.

The Pepperdine-UCLA game will be the nightcap of the Far West regional doubleheader in Los Angeles. Nevada-Las Vegas meets Arizona in the first game.

In other regional semis, Rutgers takes on Connecticut and VMI faces DePaul in the East at Greensboro, N.C., Indiana plays Alabama and Marquette meets Western Michigan in the Mideast at Baton Rouge, La., and Texas Tech plays Missouri and Notre Dame faces Michigan in the Midwest at Louisville, Ky.

Hawks rally for victory

Pit Martin scored from the crease with 4:30 to play Wednesday night to climax a Chicago Black Hawks' comeback and give them a 6-5 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs

Martin's goal was the third for the Black Hawks in the last period and gave Chicago a four-point lead over Vancouver in their scrap for first place in the Conn Smythe Division of the National Hockey League.

Toronto, in third place in the Charles Adams Division, got off to a 4-1 lead on goals by Lanny McDonald, Erroll Thompson, Stan Weir and Dave Williams, but Dale Tallon and Dennis Hull netted second period goals for the Black Hawks to close to 4-3 before Darryl Sittler scored for the Maple Leafs for a 5-3 edge.

Tallon got his second goal of the game and Ivan Boldirev his first in the opening five minutes of the last period to produce a 5-5 tie and set the stage for Martin's winning score.

76ers top Bulls – again

The Philadelphia 76ers, led by Fred Carter's 24 points and Doug Collins' 23, defeated the Chicago Bulls 108-101 Wednesday night for their third straight victory.

George McGinnis scored 11 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter as the host Sixers swept their season series with the Bulls.

Philadelphia led 79-76 entering the last quarter and quickly opened up an eight-point margin at 86-78 with 9:47 left in the game.

The Bulls never got closer than four points the rest of the way and the Sixers led by as much as 10 points at three times in the last period.

Mickey Johnson took game scoring honors for the Bulls with 28 points, while Jack Marin added 21 points and Tom Boerwinkle had 20.

NFL makes minor rules changes

National Football League owners Wednesday made only two minor modifications in the rules, moving up the pre-game coin toss to three minutes before kick-off and banning the striped football.

NFL Executive Director Jim Kensil said the official in charge would call the coin toss — previously held 30 minutes before game-time — live over a field microphone to be heard over the stadium public address system, in the press box and on the networks.

"The referees will also use the microphones to explain rulings from the field," he said.

The owners, heeding complaints from quarterbacks, also outlawed the striped balls, because they were too slippery. But they also moved to ask the manufacturer, Wilson, to come up with a way of making the ball more visible at night, perhaps with white ends.

The owners also voted to retain the two-foot rule on the grounds it is "unique to the league and requires exceptional skills," Kensil said. The decision means NFLers must catch the ball with both feet inbounds, while collegiate players only need one foot inbounds."

Additionally, a proposal to reduce from 30 to 25 seconds the time the offense has to put the ball in play was defeated, but the owners agreed to install large clocks at each end zone to permit players and fans to watch the timing.

Creighton is ninth MVC member

Creighton University affiliated Wednesday with the Missouri Valley Conference, becoming the ninth member of the MVC . . . Fred Remy, 39, former assistant football coach at Edinboro State, was named an assistant football coach at Northwestern University . . . Johnny Sain, former White Sox pitching coach, has been hired by the Atlanta Braves to work with young pitchers . . . Indiana University track star Steve Heidenreich, an Olympic hopeful in the mile run, was in critical condition late Wednesday, the victim of a hit-and-run driver . . . Heidenreich was hit while running near his apartment . Walt Frazier, captain of the New York Knicks, may be finished for the season . . . He was admitted to a hospital in New York Wednesday for a lumbar strain and will be placed in traction for about a week . . . football coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan, "really feeling great" but not wanting to take any chances, is going into the hospital today to get a "tightness in my chest" checked out.

Speed Show roars into Arlington

For the first time under one roof, an assembly of more than 100 custom rods, show rods, the new breed custom motorcycles, plus a full spectrum of formula sports cars and the new drag racing cars ranging from jet powered monsters to flip top fiber glass bodied funny cars will be on display at the Speed/Sport Show '76 "Spectacular on Wheels" Friday through Sunday at the Arlington Park Exposition Center.

Among the premiere vehicles featured will be:

—King-Kow — named Number one customer motorcycle of 1975. This magnificent custom chopper, first supercharged Z-1 900 Kawasaki ever, is 24-carat gold plated and valued at more than $20,000.

Requiring a team of six experts 10 months to construct, King-Kow is "more art than machine," with everything customized from Magneto and carburetion to brake systems.

—World's Fastest Motorcycle — the super-powered paragon that set a single-engine record of over 210 miles per hour.

—The Golden Greek's National Champion Dragster, a 24-carat gold-plated nitro supercharged beauty valued at $100,000. It set four American Hot Rod Association records last year and ranks among the 10 top dragsters in the nation.

—The first Indianapolis dirt track Championship Car, an all-time classic, recalling the days of such Indianapolis immortals as Wilbur Shaw and Barney Oldfield.

—Lee Thill's unique "Jag-Cat Trike," first-time public showing of this unique turbo supercharged Honda with Jaguar rear end. Estimated value: $20,000.

Also featured will be a display of jet-powered racing boats, plus a bevy of custom vans from across the nation. In addition to a display of vehicles, Speed/Sport Show '76 provides an opportunity to meet and talk with the men behind the machines.

The North Shore Street Rod Club and many other street and show rod clubs from throughout Chicago will also be represented.

Then, too, there is the age-old attraction of man against machine that is currently enjoying a new Golden Age of popularity

"More than 17 million Americans attended major racing events of cars or motorcycles last year," the show producer asserts. "That's an increase of 20 per cent over the previous year."

In between viewing of the spectacular displays, crowds will be able to relax to music from a four-piece rock band which will be featured all three days at the event.

Show hours are 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. Friday, and 11 a.m to 11 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children 8-12. Children under 8 are admitted free.

Bankers capture second-half title

In the final matchup of the year between Hoffman Lanes and Des Plaines National Bank, the Bankers held onto first place with two points Sunday, capturing second-half honors in the Paddock Junior Classic league.

In other battles Sunday, Wauconda beat Fairlanes 5-2 and Beverly whipped Ten Pin 5-2.

The win for Hoffman gave them sole possession of second place. They dropped the opener to Des Plaines National, 852-848, but bounced back with a 1010-894 rout. High scorers for Hoffman were Pat Muldowny 235 and Bill Geiersbach 201. Hoffman came out shooting in game three for a 1056-819 victory as Geiersbach rolled a 200.

Top series were rolled by Muldowny 585, Geiersbach 560, Mark McPherson 564, Bruce Anderson 531, and Lindy Clark 535. Steve Fleming was the top bowler for the Bankers with a 526.

Wauconda closed the gap between them and third-place Fairlanes by nipping to victories in the first two contests. Jim Clemente shot a 208 for Fairlanes in the second game, but to no avail. However, Clemente rolled a 526 series and Jim Thullen contributed a 507 to help Fairlanes come back for a 898-857 win in game three.

Beverly bailed out of the cellar with a narrow win over Ten Pin. Ron Leahy rolled a 233 in Beverly's opening 1028-929 victory, neutralizing Ten Pin's Brad Zent, who bowled a 203. Zent had a 200 and teammate Jan Higgins a 201 but the Ten Pinners came out second best in game two, also Zent finished with a 214 in game three for a smart 617 series as Ten Pin won the finale. Higgins had a 596, including a 204 in the third game. Beverly's Scott Miller turned in a 509, Leahy had a 564, Kevin Curtin rolled 502 and Ken Ahlers shot 515.

Final standings: Des Plaines National Bank 107, Hoffman Lanes 90, Fairlanes 86, Wauconda Bowl 84, Beverly Lanes 69, Ten Pin Bowl 68.

Supersonics' Bill Russell— owner of ageless laugh

by IRA BERKOW

There is the slightest pause before Bill Russell laughs that laugh. In a twinkling, he knots his forehead, squinches his eyes — as if waiting for the ripples of joy to rise within his 6-11 body — tosses back his head and laughs. Explodes.

Some say that laugh is a kind of cackle. It is no cackle. It may be high-pitched like a cackle and staccato like a cackle, but it possesses a grandeur and gusto emphatically unlike a cackle. And to be within earshot of this remarkable sound is to be unequivocally tickled.

The nation got a dose of it for a few years, back when Russell was a television commentator for the National Basketball Association games.

When a jivey black named Dancin' Harry did an odd little jig at courtside during a timeout, Russell and the cameras watched for awhile before Russell broke the spell. "Contrary to popular belief," he said, "not all of us have rhythm." And Russell laughed deeply. A good line is to be appreciated — even if it's his own.

Russell is now the coach of the Seattle Supersonics of the NBA. It is a team that in the few years he has been coach has gotten better and better. He seems able to make his world the best and most joyous possible.

He rid himself of some players he inherited who would not contribute to the unselfish style of play he demands; it is the unselfish style that so characterized him as a player with the Boston Celtics and helped make him the most dominant athlete in any team sport in American history. The Celtics won 11 world championships in the 13 years he played with them.

And this from a guy who could not make his high school team until his senior year.

After a loss, Russell does not punch lockers, as do some of his colleagues. He is worldly enough to elicit a laugh if it suits, even in a gallows situation.

In reply to a question recently, he said, "Hell no I've never been embarrassed about my laugh. Not everybody can laugh."

He is widely respected — if not necessarily widely admired — for his staunch individualism. For example, he does not sign autographs. "It's the most impersonal thing I could possibly do," he explains.

He quotes Gandhi as saying, "I am only concerned with the truth as it reveals itself to me." Russell adds, "When I was young, I soaked up information like a sponge. Then I got to the point where I felt capable of making my own value judgments on the life around me. And I learned it is better to understand than to be understood.

"For example, take the busing issue in south Boston. People say it involves racism. Well, I know that the whites in that area are primarily Irish Catholic. And I think about the war in Northern Ireland. And there are no blacks there.

"And I think about the fighting in Angola, between blacks. Is it racism? I think it is a fear of the unknown. The whole world suffers from it."

Russell says his ruling philosophy is to give people room. "I don't want to put a bummer on anybody," he said. "But if it's between you putting a bummer on me, or me putting a bummer on you, I opt for you."

And he laughed his lusty laugh.

He was asked if athletes should be models for youth. "Depends on the athlete," he said. "Generally, I think a father should be the model."

He is the father of three; the eldest is a son 18. What can he tell the world about being a father? "Who knows anything about being a father?" he asked. "It's all hit-and-miss. I'll be 104 years old and won't know."

A few scraggles of white have appeared in the black beard of the 40-year-old Russell. Does it bother him?

"Oh no," he said, "I've never been a young lover."

"Does that mean you've always been a middle-aged lover?"

Russell paused, tossed back his head and laughed that whopping laugh, that vital laugh, that ageless laugh.

Home buyers deserve honesty: builder

by LEA TONKIN

New home buyers should expect straight talk from builders.

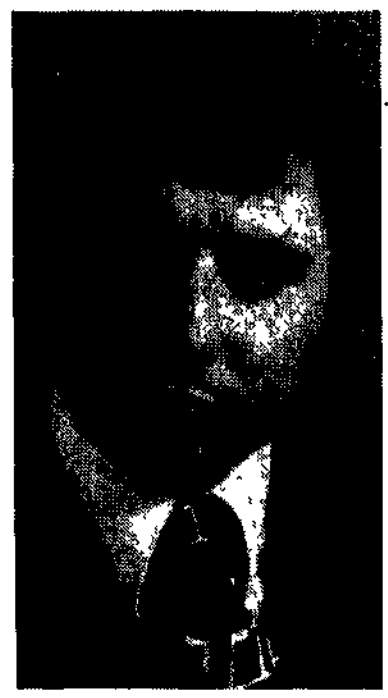

That means discussion of housing features, construction quality, service and cost, said Norman Hassinger. He is vice president for sales and marketing of Kaufman and Broad Homes, Inc., the Illinois division of Kaufman and Broad, Inc., based in Los Angeles, Calif.

Hassinger is among area home builders who advise potential buyers to be cautious in the choice of a new home. Acknowledging that Kaufman and Broad has had some problems meeting customer demands for service, he said a new company policy requires sales personnel to give a complete list of home features and homeowner responsibilities to buyers.

"There's nothing more beautiful than owning your own home," Hassinger said. "But there is anxiety. You need answers to questions about landscaping, etc. It's concern for the consumer."

COMPARISON OF new homes on the market can assure buyers that they are getting the most housing for their money, he said Hassinger adds that a builder or salesman should provide consumer information on amenities such as clubhouses and recreation areas, the quality of kitchen cabinets and other built-in features and whether coverage is provided in the Home Owners Warranty insurance plan.

Ask the builder about the cost per square foot, Hassinger said. A buyer can calculate the cost by dividing the square footage into the total home price. Don't forget to adjust the price for appliances or other extras you want in the unit, Hassinger said.

Norman Hassinger

The builder said customers should also check the location of the home they plan to buy, in relation to other homes, streets and nearby developments. Good location will affect the resale value and how readily it can be sold, Hassinger said.

Kaufman and Broad is selling townhomes at the Barrington Square development in Hoffman Estates. A ranch model and two 2-story units will be introduced in Hoffman Estates this spring. The company sells single-family and multi-family housing in several other Chicago area communities.

QUALITY AND service are important to home buyers and builders, seconds Bill Kennedy, executive vice president of Kennedy Brothers, Inc., Deerfield. "I feel the buyers have become much more sophisticated in this area," Kennedy said. "They know quality. They question techniques of construction. I'm glad to see it."

The educated buyer will be the best house-hunter, Kennedy said. Among the home features a buyer can compare are insulation materials, the soundness of subfloors, the quality of windows and installation. Kennedy said a buyer should also check a builder's reputation. "Knock on doors. Talk to customers," he said.

Once a buyer decides the price and quality are right, a purchase can be made. "I would recommend that no home owner accept the home until he has a final inspection," Kennedy added.

A walk-through inspection by the buyer and a builder's representative helps the owner "know how the house works," Kennedy said. "He can understand potential problems such as leaky faucets, how to shut off the water, how to remove storms and screens, how to treat walls and floors. If there are problems, they are noted." Any construction problems should be corrected before the buyer moves into the house, he said.

"Communications. It all goes back to this," Kennedy said. He said buyers should have an understanding of the warranty, if offered by the builder. During the first year of occupancy, at least two service calls are made by the builder to buyers. Kennedy projects include Willow Walk in Palatine, the Groves of Hidden Creek in Palatine Township and several other Chicago area developments.

THE FINAL inspection and walk-through are important to new home buyers, said Peter Bianchini, production vice president of Lexington Development Corp. The firm developed the Lexington Green condominium project in Schaumburg.

"It is the time to relax and to be both thorough and critical," Bianchini said. He warned that damage can occur in a new home. "For example, if a cracked lighting fixture is not noted before moving in, the builder is justified in assuming that it was caused by the buyer," he said.

Another reason for the inspection is an assurance from the builder that everything in the home works properly. Bianchini said his company sends customers a walk-through checklist and a homeowner's manual at least a week before the final inspection.

Among the features included in the checklist are plumbing fixtures, appliances, kitchen counter tops, ceramic tile, cabinetry, sliding glass doors, drywall, painting, heating and air conditioning On electrical fixtures, for example, buyers are asked to inspect each fixture.

"When the inspection tour is over, we give the buyer a special kit containing his homeowner's manual, all appliance literature, warranties and a supply of customer service request forms," Bianchini said. He said the program is time consuming, but it leaves the buyer with a good education about the home.

Conservationists back rigid forestry reform

by BERNARD BRENNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conservationist spokesmen Monday urged Congress to approve a forestry reform bill putting rigid controls on "clear cutting" of trees in the government's national forests.

Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., countered, however, that controlled clear cutting is needed to manage forests efficiently and avoid sharp increases in the cost of lumber for housing.

And an industry group added in a statement that if a bill backed by conservationists is adopted, Los Angeles residents might have to reduce their use of toilet paper by 25 per cent because of a drop in timber supplies.

The sharply conflicting views on forest management were laid out as a Senate agriculture subcommittee and a Senate interior subcommittee opened joint hearings on legislation drafted in the wake of two recent court decisions which banned clear cutting on national forests managed by the Agriculture Dept.

THE PANELS were considering legislation including the conservationist-backed bill sponsored by Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., and others. A counter bill sponsored by a group of senators headed by Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., would give the Forest Service much wider flexibility in approving clear cutting — a practice in which lumbermen cut an area bare.

Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., a leading House sponsor of the Randolph bill, insisted it sets "reasonable" guidelines for clear cutting — including a 25 acre limit on such cuts — and is needed to help prevent overuse of the national forests.

Brown conceded the bill could bring a 15-20 per cent reduction in timber harvesting from the federal forests, but he said this could be made up by increasing production from private lands Also, Brown testified, the restrictions would protect the forests for future generations.

Packwood, however, testified that clear cutting under controlled conditions is not only needed for timber production but also is often useful in controlling forest diseases, assuring the survival of some tree species which cannot grow in the shade, and improving conditions for wildlife.

Strong support for the Randolph bill was voiced, meanwhile, in testimony prepared for the hearing by environmentalist groups including the Sierra Club, the Wilderness Society, the Oregon Environmental Council and Defenders of Wildlife.

SPOKESMEN FOR STATE natural resource and fish and game agencies including officials from Michigan, Vermont and Montana opposed the bill, however, on grounds it was too rigid and would hamper efforts to promote wildlife development in eastern forests.

The National Forest Products Assn., a forest industry group, said in a statement distributed to reporters that if timber harvesting from national forests in 11 western states is "strictly managed" under terms included in the conservationist bill, "raw material for paper companies, including 14 (toilet) tissue manufacturers, would be reduced by at least one-fourth."

"This would cause some operations to curtail production since tissue plants must operate very close to full capacity to remain profitable," the industry group said.

Book offers building hints

Factory-made house choice wide

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

The family that would build a home on its own lot but cannot afford the luxury of an architect and fears the vagaries of contractor building, may find a solution in manufactured housing.

The overall classification, manufactured housing, loosely defined, comprises mobile homes, factory-assembled, transportable structures, used with or without foundation as a temporary or permanent dwelling; modular homes, permanent structures consisting of one or more modules assembled in a factory in accordance with a building code; prefabricated homes, components, factory-assembled in a variety of ways to be shipped to a site for assembly.

The three types, how to go about choosing, financing and building, are discussed in detail in a comprehensive new book, Good Shelter, by Judith and Bernard Rabb Quadrangle-N.Y. Times $7.95 paperback.

Of the three types, the most expensive and most flexible is the prefabricated, also known as "component" building, which most readily lends itself to "custom" design.

According to the Rabbs, advantages of prefabricated homes include:

• Cost-cutting possibilities. The buyer can do some of the building work to cut costs. He can do some or all of his erecting and interior finishing. He cannot do this with mobile or modular units.

• Materials cost. Materials are purchased in vast quantities and are precision cut for optimal fit and minimum waste.

• Construction time. A prefabricated home will go up faster than a stick-built. A panelized home will go up faster than precut prefabs. Modulars and mobiles go up virtually overnight.

• Construction quality. Quality control over materials is a result of factory production, but this applies only to the package itself. The quality of the erected home will depend on the quality of the on-site erecting and finishing crews.

• Range of selection. Range is wide in materials and design, more so than with mobile homes or modulars, and in some cases more than a local contractor might be able to offer.

• Site suitability. Design can be readily varied to adapt the home fully to its site.

• Floor plan flexibility. A wide range of floor plans may be easily modified to suit virtually any lifestyle.

• Code conformity. Construction techniques and materials, in many cases, may even exceed the requirements of local building codes, and where changes are required they can be made readily.

• Delivery. The prefabricated house package can be delivered to almost any site with a minimum of land clearing.

On the other hand, there are disadvantages to prefabricated building. The Rabbs mention:

• Cost. Prefabs cost more than mobiles and modulars because of the on-site labor and, at times, substantially better materials.

• On-site labor. A crew may be difficult to hire in remote areas.

• Construction quality, subject to the quality of the on-site crew, which may range from excellent to horrid.

Sharing information from over 100 manufacturers who responded to inquiries from the authors, it covers everything from the least expensive, simple mobile home to domes and luxury prefabs, and includes helpful checklists and supply sources.

25% increase in contracts for builders

January contracts for future construction increased 25 per cent to $6,399,644,000, it was announced today by the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company.

The opening month's stronger flow of new construction projects reversed the declining trend of the past several months, sending the seasonally-adjusted Dodge Index back up to 183. In December the Index, which uses 1967 as its 100 base, had sagged to only 137.

McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company, an authority on the construction market, produces Dodge Reports on construction activity and Sweet's Catalog Files of construction product information.

"A single project, a billion dollar nuclear power plant being built in Northern Illinois, made almost all of the difference in January's contracting total," noted George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist for F. W. Dodge. "Otherwise, the situation in the construction industry is about the same as it has been since last fall: Housing clearly is doing better, but the critical upturn in commercial and industrial building has yet to materialize."

Contracts for nonresidential buildings in January totaled $1,939,053,000, a drop of 17 per cent from the year-ago amount. "The latest month's decline in contracting for nonresidential work was pretty much across the board," said the Dodge economist, "as commercial and industrial building fell 13 per cent, and institutional and other nonresidential building declined 19 per cent.

Residential building started off the year 40 per cent higher than in 1975, as gains in both single family homes and apartments brought January's contract value to $2,157,040,000.

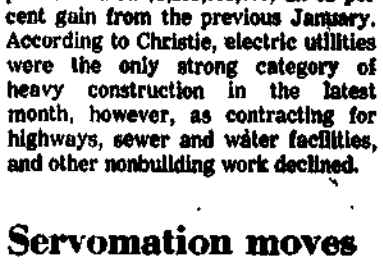

"January's gain in the sluggish apartment market was encouraging, even though it wasn't very large," Christie said. "This is where most of the year's expansion will have to come from, if we are to reach a total of 1.5 million housing starts in 1976."

Contracts for nonbuilding construction (including the $1 billion power plant) totaled $2,293,551,000, an 82 per cent gain from the previous January. According to Christie, electric utilities were the only strong category of heavy construction in the latest month, however, as contracting for highways, sewer and water facilities, and other nonbuilding work declined.

Servomation moves to Elk Grove Village

Servomation Corp. is moving the headquarters of its North Central Division from Cincinnati, where it has been located for the past four years, to Elk Grove Village.

Robert L. Ottenad, vice president in charge of the division, said the move was being made primarily because Chicago was more centrally located for the territory served by the division. This comprises 12 states in the Midwest and Northwest. The new division headquarters will be at 800 W. Arthur Ave. in Elk Grove Village.

Homeowners must pay the piper in 'sale'

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

Surprisingly, it is not necessary that a property be sold and settlement made in order for a real estate broker to be entitled to a commission. The test is producing a buyer "ready, willing and able" to purchase under the conditions set forth in the listing agreement.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I find myself in a terrible position. I did not sell my house, yet the broker demands a full commission. He is giving me 30 days to pay up, or he will file suit. Here's what happened:

Two months ago my wife and I decided we should start getting ready for retirement. The first step, we thought, was to sell our house and move into an apartment. Taking care of the big house had become too much of a burden.

We signed a listing agreement with a broker for $60,000. Within two weeks he produced a young couple who wanted to buy the house at that price.

Then it struck us! We just couldn't bring ourselves to sell the house. Too many memories of 35 years of happy family life were in every nook and cranny. We told the broker we had changed our minds.

No agreement of sale was ever signed, nor a deposit given. But in spite of that, the broker claims he is entitled to a $3,600 commission. Is he: — HOW CAN THAT BE?

I have bad news for you. Based upon real estate practice, you do owe the broker the commission, even though your house was never sold or settlement made.

If a broker produces a buyer "ready, willing and able" to buy, based on the conditions set forth in the listing agreement, a commission has been earned. That is the test.

If the young couple introduced by the broker had sufficient credit standing and sufficient cash resources to complete the transaction at their offering price of $60,000 (also your listing price), then they fall into the category of "ready, willing and able."

To protect owners from situations similar to the above, real estate counselors will recommend that a clause of this nature be added to the listing agreement: "This listing agreement is conditioned upon an agreement of sale being executed, settlement being made and funds being paid over to the seller. If, for any reason, settlement is not made and funds are not paid over to the seller, then this listing agreement shall be null and void."

With that clause, an owner does not have to pay a commission unless settlement is made and he has the money.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Every time we plug in the iron or the toaster, the lights dim temporarily. For years we paid no attention to this and have had no trouble.

Our son has begun studying physics in high school, and he is driving us crazy with his new-found brilliance. He is constantly after us, telling us it is a dangerous condition. Experience has taught us better. Please explain to him that this is common in old houses — and that "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing." — SMART-ALECKY SON.

I'm afraid this proves that "experience is not always the best teacher." Your son is right!

The dimming of the lights is an indication that your electrical system is overloaded. This is a common cause of serious fires.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: We were approached recently by a nice young man selling insulation. He told us that insulating our walls would save us a great deal on our heating bills. With fuel costing what it does these days, that would be a big help!

We thought the house had insulation when we bought it, but we don't know for certain. We don't want to spend the money needlessly, so how can we determine whether or not we need insulation? — WANT TO BE THRIFTY.

The simplest way to determine how well insulated your walls are is to hold the flat of your hand against the exterior wall of a room — and then against an interior partition wall. If there is an appreciable difference in temperature between the two, you will probably benefit by installing insulation.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My husband died recently. Our house is in his name and mine as joint owners. When he died, no one changed the deed. The tax bill came this week and it was in his name, too. This worries me.

Should I try to get a new deed? What if I wanted to sell the house? I'm worried about whether I actually own the house. — REALLY CONCERNED.

There is no reason for you to worry. You are the owner of the property.

You can have your attorney arrange immediate title transfer, if you wish, or you can postpone this until you decide to sell the house.

2 of 3 U.S. families own their homes: savings league

Almost two of every three American families own their homes, said the United States League of Savings Associations.

Furthermore, a league spokesman said, most of those families have purchased their homes with the help of a mortgage loan from a savings and loan association.

The U.S League is the principal trade organization serving the savings and loan business.

According to an information booklet published by the league, the American idea of land and home ownership is nearly as old as the nation itself. The concept was first embodied in a 1785 law that permitted anyone to acquire 640 acres of unclaimed land for $1 an acre.

Other legislation that has made it easier for families to own their homes includes the Homestead Act of 1862; the Home Owner's Loan Act of 1933; the creation of the loan guarantee and insurance programs of the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration; and a tax exemption on mortgage interest.

League reports show 64% of all American families own their homes.

The savings and loan business' role in helping families purchase homes is underscored by the fact that savings associations account for 56% of all the privately held mortgage debt outstanding, the League said.

In contrast, commercial banks account for 19.4% of the outstanding mortgage debt; mutual savings banks for 11.7%; insurance companies for 6.5%; and other private lenders for 6.4%.

At the beginning of the year, savings associations had $278 billion invested in residential mortgages — 75% of all savings association assets.

The money for mortgage loans comes from savings accounts, the League pointed out. Americans have invested more than $287 billion in 60 million savings accounts at savings and loan association.

Savings associations were first created in the 1830s, when banks and other financial institutions had little desire to attract personal savings accounts or make home mortgage loans. Ever since, savings and loan associations have been specialized financial institutions serving the dual concepts of thrift and home ownership.

Today, there are 4,600 savings and loan associations in the United States. Their combined assets total $340 billion.

Wheeling bank sets open house

Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank, newly located on the northeast corner of Milwaukee and Dundee Roads, holds a grand open house Saturday. The event, beginning at noon, will enable friends, neighbors and bank customers to see the new 72,000 square foot bank building and to meet a number of popular sports and television personalities.

Hoffman firm forms service unit

Hoffman Properties has been formed as a new division of Hoffman Rosner Corp. to render a complete land development service to other builders and developers from the acquisition of raw land to the sale of finished lots. The announcement was made by Jack Hoffman, chairman and president.

The division will maintain an inventory of land to be sold in whatever form is best suited to the needs of buyers, Hoffman said. The land includes commercial and residential parcels in or near Bloomingdale, Glendale Heights, Bolingbrook, Aurora, Frankfort, Naperville, Schaumburg and Libertyville.

"We will buy raw land, take it through all steps needed for zoning and government approval, put in the improvements, such as water, sewer, and streets, arrange financing, all of this in any combination to give the builder what he needs," Hoffman said.

"And if the builder desires, we'll provide the services of our Du-Co Construction Co. and North States Construction Co. for actual construction," he said.

Texas thicket thinning as the wait for federal assistance drags on

by E. MICHAEL MYERS

BEAUMONT, Tex. (UPI) — Despite a federal rescue mission for the Big Thicket, chain saws, real estate developers and bark-eating insects are taking their toll in the once unmarked 3-million-acre swath of East Texas wilderness.

Still the biological crossroads of North America, the thicket in its unblemished prime served as a haven for renegades, outlaws and runaway slaves — a barrier to civilization. Now, the Thicket covers less than 300,000 acres scarred by pulp pine plantations, trailer parks and vacation home developments.

Although man has intruded, scientists say the Thicket retains a unique mingling of 1,000 tropical, temperate, eastern and western species of plants and flowers. More than 350 species of birds are found there.

For 50 years conservationists struggled to protect the area and in 1974 President Ford signed legislation setting aside 85,550 acres as a Big Thicket Biological Preserve. But the Big Thicket isn't out of the woods yet.

Congress has been slow to appropriate the estimated $100 million to purchase the land and the government has actually bought only 50 acres. The slow funding has angered timber companies, land owners and conservationists.

Ford has proposed spending $9.3 million in fiscal 1977 to purchase another 14,308 acres. But while the property owners wait for their money, some are cutting their timber.

The large lumber companies imposed a voluntary moratorium on cutting trees in the preserve in 1968. But now they are feeling increasing financial pressure.

The Big Thicket Coordinating Committee is lobbying for special funding and for the National Park Service to take immediate possession of areas threatened by cutting or development. Landowners would be paid 6 per cent annual interest until funding is available.

Dr. Pete Gunter of Denton, president of the coordinating committee, estimated 4,500 acres of the preserve have been cut since Ford signed the bill in 1974. He says there are three major causes of destruction in the preserve today.

"The first is real estate development," Gunter said. "The 668 acre Hickory Creek Unit, a long leaf pine area important for its rare flowers, has suffered two thirds destruction since the creation of the preserve; 445 of its 668 acres are now a trailer park.

"Then there are small land owners. Some fear wrongly they will not be paid; some owners cut out of spite, while others may feel an economic pinch and believe they are forced to cut."

The third is the destructive pine bark beetle. Conservationists accused lumber companies of reaping fat financial returns by harvesting timber infested with the beetle.

"Conservationists insist the beetle is endemic to southern forests and its main function is to thin out stands of weakened trees," Gunter said. "They insist it largely occurs in areas forced to grow pine trees but better suited to hardwoods. Lumber company executives do not react with joy to this suggestion.

"By harvesting and removing the pine trees, both the afflicted pines and the nearby healthy pines, they are engaged in a profitable lumbering operation."

A spokesman for Temple Eastex, a lumber products company and the largest landowners in the preserve with 30,000 acres, said "You don't reap a profit on dead timber."

"You must cut the rotten slot out of an apple," Alan Miller said. "You must take out some of the live timber to stop the beetle."

William B. Jewell is the Big Thicket real estate project manager for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. He has heard both sides to the cut or wait to sell controversy.

"There are small private individuals who are cutting simply because we have no way to stop it," Miller said. "It is their property and they are free to do it.

"The moratorium the timber companies imposed nine years ago is largely being observed. Most cutting has been in salvage operations for the beetle."

Not everyone is convinced the timber companies have altruistic feelings about the Thicket.

"Sure, the large lumber companies say they are observing a moratorium," said former Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex.

"But just follow those trucks or timber out of the Thicket. They go to the lumber mills and they are buying it all.

"The big pulp pine producers do not want a park, they want to destroy it. They cut it and slash it. The economic motivation is greed."

Attorney W. C. Ross Jr. of Beaumont represents many of the landowners, including his wife.

"I think all of us would be happy for the government to take it and put it in the park," Ross said. "But none of us want to sit by 10 years or more and pay taxes on land we cannot do anything with. If the government wants a park they should get on and do something about it.

"If there is a moratorium on cutting, there should be a moratorium on taxes. If you are cut off from revenue on the land, what are you supposed to do, eat the stuff?"

Realty meeting to attract 500

More than 500 real estate appraisers and valuers from South America, the United States and Canada will attend the 10th Pan-American Real Estate Appraisal Congress May 2-7 in Chicago.

The American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers will host the Congress, the first held in this country in 19 years. According to Walter Kuehnle MAI, Congress President, the meeting provides a unique opportunity to real estate appraisers from every part of the hemisphere to meet with each other, share knowledge and discuss valuation problems which are of common concern.

A highlight of the Congress will be the presentation of several model real estate appraisal reports on a single family home, office building, regional shopping center, warehouse and new town. Each presentation will be followed by a panel discussion between representatives of the various countries attending the meeting. There will also be special programs on the use of computers in appraising and on investment market analysis.

The Congress will stay at the LaSalle Hotel, with most sessions presented at the First Chicago Center. Registration, which covers all meetings and planned social events, is $175 for registrants; $75 for accompanying family members. Persons interested in registering or obtaining further information should write: 10th Pan-American Congress, American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, 155 E. Superior Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

'U.S. home buyer gets a bargain'

"Prices may be high, but the American home buyer actually gets a bargain."

So declares Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston, a subsidiary of Investors Mortgage Group, Inc. He said, "The bargain is very evident when considering private housing options in other parts of the world."

According to Goss, the average American family today has more living space than was available 10 years ago — and at prices lower than almost anywhere else in the free world.

"The average American home," he points out, "is in the $40,000-plus range — a figure which compares favorably with France's $46,000 average home price, England's $40,200 and Sweden's $51,000, to name but a few.

And, Goss reports that no nation in Europe surpasses the United States in average home size. Further; the closest European contenders — Belgium and the Netherlands — have homes with an average of 12 per cent higher cost than in this country.

American home buyers can also expect to find some or all of the following amenities in their dwellings — unlike their European counterparts:

- Central air conditioning and heating units for year-round comfort;
- Advanced kitchen and bath equipment — including dishwashers, garbage disposals, trash compactors and built-in heat lamps;
- Central vacuum attachments in newer dwellings — special utility rooms for laundry and storage activity in old and new structures;
- Superior insulation and sound-proofing for energy conservation and privacy.

"In terms of living space per housing unit, the United States is also unequaled — the average home in this country contains 1,565 square feet," he observes.

Fix your car or buy a new one?

Managing your family's money

by MERLE E. DOWD

"Since our car is seven years old and beginning to cost us money for tires, battery and brake cylinder, should we buy a new car? We spend about $800 each year, including insurance, on our car. We could pay a lot of cab fares for $800. What should we do?" The writer, Mrs. C, is 61, and her husband is 64. She reported that driving a car was " . . . BECOMING A HASSLE."

This couple's car maintenance expenses appeared to be costing them a significant amount. While the letter failed to indicate the number of miles, I assume mileage to be about 70,000, average for a car seven years old. Most cars will run reasonably well for at least 100,000 miles before major maintenance.

Mrs. C. raises three possible alternatives in her letter. Specific dollar costs and intangible or convenience factors affect a decision. Dollar costs are usually easier to resolve than the intangible factors. Looking at each alternative in turn:

• Continuing to drive their 7-year-old car calls for replacement of parts that wear with use. Tires, brake linings, tune-ups, battery, shock absorbers and an occasional major part such as the master brake cylinder are used up in driving even when a car is new. Once these parts are replaced, they will last for another block of miles.

An alternator, master brake cylinder, clutch, front-end ball joints and similar wear parts usually require replacement between 60,000 to 90,000 miles or at least once during a car's lifetime. Spark plugs, points and condenser for tune-ups require replacement every 12,000 to 15,000 miles.

These maintenance expenses represent a regular operating cost that can be figured on a mileage basis. For example, a set of belted radial tires can be expected to wear for at least 40,000 miles. If four tires total $200, tire cost figures to one-half-cent per mile. Tune-ups can be priced similarly.

As long as an engine doesn't burn more than one quart of oil in 200 miles, these regular maintenance costs cannot be avoided. Overhauling an engine to correct wear or to repair a break may tip the scale toward buying a new car rather than repairing the old one.

• Presumably, a new car starts off with "all systsems go." Experience indicates that faults develop quickly or not for 60,000 to 90,000 miles. Most early faults will be corrected under warranty. Depreciation on a new car can cost more than gas, oil and maintenance combined during the first one or two years. Also, a new car begins using up plugs and points, brakes, tires and similar expendable parts immediately. Buying a new car every time it needs new tires or other parts isn't feasible. Your decision revolves around spending cash for some major overhaul (engine, rear-end, automatic transmission) or starting fresh with a new car and its higher depreciation. In Mrs. C's case, depreciation will be quite small after seven years — a saving that will offset considerable maintenance expense.

• Giving up a car to avoid the hassle of driving means giving up convenience in exchange for possible cash savings. Each person or couple lives a different lifestyle, and a decision to give up a car involves distance from a bus line, amount of travel, possible taxi fares to frequent destinations and access to a car for special occasions either by rental or from friends or relatives. Riding the bus affords big cash savings. Two people riding twice a day, paying a basic fare plus one zone, would spend $1.20 round trip for both. Figuring 300 days each year, such travel would total $360 — less than half the $800 Mrs. C. figures they spend on a car. Taxi fares typically run $1.30 to $1.50 for the first mile and 60 to 70 cents for each additional mile. Mrs. C. could, indeed, take a taxi for numerous trips, and, along with the bus, keep transportation costs under $800.

In summary, you cut transportation costs by extending the life of an old car with replacement of wearable components as necessary to avoid the high depreciation of a new car and by using public transportation. If one's lifestyle permits, not owning a car could be the least-cost alternative of all.

Dow gains 2.52 in active trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite heavy profit taking toward the end, prices managed a small gain Wednesday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange, with the aid of some foreign investment and favorable economic news.

The Dow Jones industrial average, an 8.97-point winner Tuesday, added another 2.52 points to 985.99. The blue-chip average had been ahead more than nine points during the early afternoon before profit taking trimmed the gain.

The closely watched average of 30 blue-chip industrials had risen 150 points in less than three months to reach a three-year high of 1,003.31 last Thursday. Then it plunged 28.31 prior to Tuesday and most observers predicted a further leveling off.

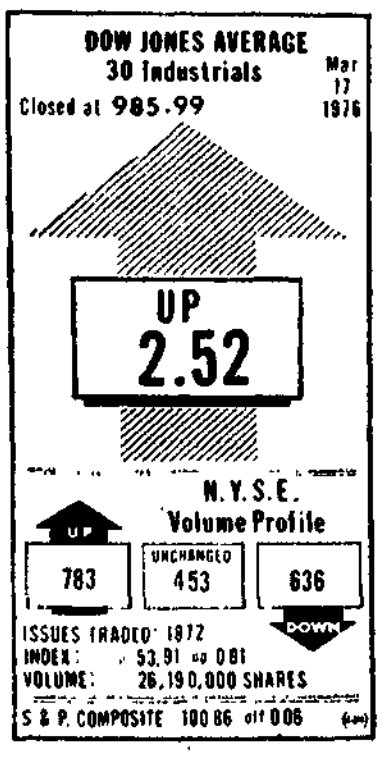

Other averages were mixed. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 0.06 to 100.86. The NYSE common stock index gained 0.01 to 53.91 and the average price of an NYSE common share one cent.

The market's breadth figures, however, reflected considerable investor uncertainty. Of the 1,872 issues crossing the tape, 783 advanced, 636 declined and 453 remained unchanged.

VOLUME SWELLED to 26,190,000 shares from the 22,760,000 traded Tuesday. The turnover still trailed the pace of January and February in which the average daily turnover was 30 million shares.

Norton Simon topped the Big Board actives, closing unchanged at 21 on 502,300 shares, including a block of 403,500 shares at 20½. Texas Utilities was third, up ¼ to 18½ on 438,000 shares. The company's offering of 5 million common shares was oversubscribed.

Prices closed higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by two cents. Volume totaled 4,010,000 shares, compared with 3,270,000 traded Tuesday.

Poll: mortgage money ample

Mortgage money continued in ample supply during the fall, according to an end-of-year survey among members of RELO-Inter-City Relocation Service, a real estate referral organization.

"In fact, a majority of members who responded at the end of December reported the mortgage financing picture was much better than they had predicted in a similar survey in September," said Bruce Gartzke of T. A. Bolger, Realtors, which represents RELO in this area.

In September, 17.7 per cent forecast ample supplies of mortgage money, during October-December, 1975. The remainder were divided between predicting a "fair" supply and a "tight" mortgage market, Gartzke said.

"But when they evaluated their experience in October-December at the end of the period, an 81 per cent majority characterized the mortgage supply as ample," Gartzke said. "The other respondents were divided equally between 'fair' and 'tight'."

Looking ahead to the new year, 67.7 per cent predicted ample funds in January-March while a slightly smaller majority — 67.2 per cent — expected an ample supply to continue in April-June, 1976.

Fewer than five per cent forecast "tight" money in January-June, 1976, with the remainder looking forward to "fair" supplies of mortgage financing in their local markets during the first half of the year.

TAKE A BREAK. Here's a quick and quiet retreat idea. Two chairs, some tables and shelves are the beginning of a "sitting room." The chaise is the extra something. And the "powder-puff" soft carpeting by Karastan says "take your shoes off and stay awhile."

Your home

by Carolyn Murray

"I'll be in the sitting room" sounds nice and leisurely, doesn't it? A place of quiet retreat for odd moments during the day or evening is something many of us wish for.

But is there any reason why we can't accomplish the sitting-room tranquillity in some other area of the house?

What about the dining room? A generation ago, there was a big sofa or daybed tucked into the dining room along with a big round table, a big china closet — you get the picture? Dining rooms were family gathering places at mealtime, but they also offered Dad a postmeal snooze spot.

If your dining area is being used for just one or two meals a day, you might want to reconsider dividing the space and tucking in a pair of comfortable chairs or an interesting chaise lounge.

The same idea would work in the largest bedroom, be it parents' room or child's. An out-of-the-way corner can sometimes take at least one chair, one lamp table and an ottoman. Just enough for reading and studying.

Today's illustration, above does take the idea a bit beyond minimal. But it was created in one corner of the master bedroom. One wall was covered in an exuberant design by Perceptive Concept. The tall etagere supports books, magazines and collectibles. But a small television set might also find home on a shelf.

The whole room was carpeted in a new broadloom by Karastan called Serenteau, in a warm Gold Leaf tone. It's made of extra-fine nylon yarns and is the soft-touch type you like to walk barefoot on. In fact, Karastan designers call it "powder-puff" soft!

A final touch in today's sitting room is that chaise I mentioned earlier. It doesn't matter whether it's an old wicker one, or the simplest daybed, there is something delicious about sitting with one's legs and feet supported in style!

The one shown comes from Cy Mann Designs Ltd., as do all of the furnishings. It's unique in a funky, overstuffed way. And the nesting tables add a bit of elbow service — a good spot for midmorning juice or a cup of midafternoon herb tea!

Edison sets improvements in reactor safety systems

Commonwealth Edison Co. said recently that it is taking steps to modify operation of the containment systems at two nuclear stations in Illinois. It is understood that other owners of boiling water reactors using the same type of containments, called Mark 1, are taking similar steps, Edison said.

The modified operating procedures pertain to the pressure suppression systems of four Edison reactors — two each at Dresden station near Morris, and Quad-Cities station near Moline.

Studies undertaken almost a year ago have indicated that the safety systems at these plants could sustain even the worst hypothetical break in a main coolant pipe. But computations also showed that forces generated by such an improbable accident would cause greater stresses than originally anticipated in the torus structure. The torus serves as a reservoir for emergency cooling water and as a suppression pool into which steam from a pipe break would be vented.

Calculations show the torus would move about 1/28th of an inch if there were to be a sheared-off break of the main coolant pipe causing a steam release into the suppression chamber. In addition, stresses on the torus support columns would be nearer to design limits than originally anticipated. Neither of these would be dangerous.

In any event, there has never been a pipe break of this nature in the history of the industry and its chance of happening is rated at about one in a million reactor years of operation. The pipe in question is about two feet in diameter and made of walls about two inches thick.

Nevertheless, Edison is taking operating steps to enlarge the margins of safety protection against the consequences of such an accident. These steps consist of altering pressure conditions in the system to moderate the forces that would be generated by a major pipe break. Later, structural modifications will be installed to restore design margins to their normal level.

Investors mortgage firm reports:

1 out of 5 families on the move

"One in every five American households moved into another residence last year — and nearly two-thirds of the relocations involved the purchase of a new home."

So observes Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a subsidiary of Investors Mortgage Group, Inc. IMIC, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry, works with lenders, such as savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and commercial banks, by insuring the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

According to Goss, recent IMIC studies also show that in 1975, renters moved and bought homes with four times the frequency exhibited in 1970.

Other IMIC mobility study highlights include the following:

- Nearly 93 per cent of the nation's households have moved in the last quarter century.
- Three-quarters of this total changed residences in the years elapsed since 1960 — and two of every five households shifted residence between 1970 and 1975.
- The proportion of moving households since 1970 has been greatest in the West — with 25 per cent shifting residence in that region; next highest mobility figures were recorded for residents of the Northeast, North Central and Southern portions of the country respectively.

"With formation of new households on the increase," Goss points out, "there has been an added boost to the residential relocation trend."

He reports that environmental, employment and lifestyle concerns are now propelling large numbers of the population in every age group — especially among the 22-to-35 year-olds — to seek out new homesites.

"When a family decides to move today," Goss concludes, "the chances are that he will not be putting down new roots across town — but rather across country."

Basic realty transactions course a must for state sales license test

Under current State of Illinois requirements, a person who is interested in becoming a real estate salesman in Illinois must complete a 30-hour Basic Real Estate Transactions course from an approved school in order to be eligible to take the state real estate salesman's license examination.

D'Ann McClain, vice president for training-administration, Real Estate Education Co., has released the schedule of classes to meet these requirements."

The course, approved by both the Department of Registration and Education and the Illinois Office of Education, consists of 30 classroom hours of training in compliance with the state requirements. Of the students of Real Estate Education Co. who successfully completed this course, 92 per cent have passed the state licensing examination.

On April 6, at 6:30 p.m. evening courses will begin at the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, Northwest Hwy. and Route 53, Palatine.

A special daytime class will be taught from 10 a.m. to noon starting April 1 at the Howard Johnson's-O'Hare, 6201 West Higgins Road, Chicago.

Classes are conducted either one night a week for three hours or two nights a week for two hours each night. Classes are taught in this format in compliance with the rules and regulations covering real estate schools.

For additional information and counseling call 644-0475 or toll free at (800) 972-8303. Students can enroll over the telephone, receive counseling on how to enter the real estate field, and receive referrals to prospective sponsoring brokers.

By appointment

Pre-cut log home open for inspection in Cary

A pre-cut log home is open for inspection by appointment on a Fox River frontage site at 16 Woodland Ave., Cary.

Manufactured by Authentic Homes Corp. of Laramie, Wyo. and built by Rustic Homes, Inc. of Cary, the six-room, 1,625 square-foot ranch style Seneca model features two wings, front and rear double-entry, three bedrooms, and an attached Prima model garage. The home meets Chicago, Cook County, and Lake County building codes, the builder said.

Authentic Homes manufactures pre-cut log kits for constructing the shells of 20 different home models. Included in the Authentic line are ranch style, two-story, and split-level models designed as primary residences, smaller chalets and cabins ideal for vacation and summer homes.

The kits contain precision-cut logs for exterior walls, floor joists, rafters, gaskets, and spikes. Authorized Authentic Homes dealers construct the shell of the home, then contract or subcontract to complete the interior according to the buyer's specifications. An Authentic log home thus combines the rustic, durable beauty of logs with individual freedom of design.

Pre-cut log kits range in price from $2,775 for a 216 square-foot vacation cabin to $15,375 for a split-level, 1,800 square-foot home. Kit price for the six-room Seneca model is $11,800. The two-car Pima model attached garage, which can also be built as a separate unit, carries a kit price of $3,045.

Prices for a completed log home range from three to five times the cost of the kit, depending on local building costs and the buyer's interior design specifications. But according to Authentic Homes President E.P. Fillion, the price of a completed home is usually 10-15% less than the cost of a conventional site-built frame home because the pre-cut kit minimizes waste, cuts labor costs, and eliminates material delays.

Rustic Homes, Inc. is the authorized Authentic Homes distributor in Lake, McHenry, and northern Cook counties of Illinois. Additional information concerning Authentic pre-cut log homes can be obtained from Rustic Homes, Inc., Route 1, Box 530, Cary, Ill. (Phone: 312-639-0444)

Brick favorite material for home construction

"Brick remains the darling of home buyers."

Even with the on-going and constant development of building materials, brick is still one of the most used exterior types in the nation.

"It all started, according to archaeological authorities, 9,000 to 10,000 years ago. Brick was discovered at the ancient site of a settlement beneath the city of Jericho," Jackson Goss of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co. observes.

The earliest bricks, made in areas with warm climates, were simply placed in the sunlight for hardening — a far cry from today's sophisticated technologies.

Egyptians, Assyrians, Chinese and Romans used brick. "And the Greeks even had a good word for it. Historians report that burnt brick was used in building Babylon's famed wall," Goss points out.

He said, "Although brick is as old as the ages, only since 1885, when brickmaking machinery was first introduced, did it reach full acceptance in this country.

Bricks were made by hand until that time — and the process was slow and laborious. Today's output, Goss reports, hes climbed to 10 million bricks a year — more than double the record production achieved just 50 years ago.

Much of its resurgence has been attributed to the rediscovery of brick as an ideal building material.

"This popular housing product allows for freedom of maintenance — few families want to spend their leisure time painting a house. And no other material can offer such beauty, permanence and flexibility," he adds.

"Whether it is used in home walls, fireplaces, sidewalks, steps, patio surfaces or for privacy — brick just naturally blends into the land," Goss said.

Heat resistant substance developed to repair mortar gaps in fireplaces

NEW EAGLE, Pa. (UPI) — A manufacturer here says he has developed a heat resistant material to repair mortar gaps in home fireplaces, the origin of many home fires.

The National Fire Protection Association quotes the Allied Block Chemical Co. as saying fireplace and related fires in homes were responsible for a loss of more than $19 million last year.

Many could have been prevented by a visual inspection to spot disintegrating mortar, the manufacturer said.

Mortar material used in fireplaces is not heat resistant.

After use, it tends to crumble, leaving what the company says are dangerous gaps between bricks, in the backwall, the hearth and around the flue. Heat escaping through the gaps can easily ignite wood framework, the company said.

The firm claims its newly developed fire plug can withstand temperatures up to 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The product will harden even when subjected to heat, the manufacturer says, adding that the material is many times harder than original mortars and cannot be scraped away with a knife.

Housing starts, completions for area

Almost 6,100 new one-family and 8,600 new multi-family units were completed in the Chicago metropolitan area in the first six months of 1975. These figures are from a new quarterly report, "Residential Construction in 13 Selected Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas," released today by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

During those six months, about 5,700 one-family and 3,200 multifamily units were started, the report shows. At the end of June 1975, there were 8,900 one-family and 13,400 multifamily units under construction. These and additional data on housing authorized and authorized but not yet started, beginning with the first quarter of 1973, are available in the report.

The report is for sale by the Subscriber Services Section (Publications), Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233 or any U.S. Department of Commerce district office. Annual subscriptions cost $2.00; the single copy price for a quarterly issue is 50 cents.

The statistics in the report were obtained from sample surveys and are subject to sampling variability as well as errors of response and nonreporting. Estimated relative standard errors are shown in the report.

County air getting cleaner: EPA

by LEA TONKIN

Cutbacks in industrial and heating plant air pollution levels account for lower Chicago and Cook County particulate matter readings, the state Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday.

The agency's figures for the years 1971-75 deal only with general air quality, said Patrick Lynch, the EPA's air pollution control division manager. "We'll feel more comfortable with the analysis after we have examined the sources of the pollution our monitors are measuring," he said.

Lynch warned that the health-related standards are violated in some parts of the city and county. Particulate matter affects the respiratory system. Seventy-five micrograms per cubic meter is the annual average federal standard.

Among the 1975 suburban particulate matter readings announced by the EPA are: Arlington Heights, 73 micrograms; Des Plaines, 61 micrograms; and Palatine, 51 micrograms.

In the City of Chicago, a decline in particulate concentration and violations was noted. In Cook County, outside the city, no clear trend developed, although violations increased from seven in 1971 to nine in 1975. The EPA also studies pollutants such as carbon dioxide, ozone and hydrocarbons.

MAJOR HOME appliances such as refrigerators, washers and dryers can be economically recycled into new steel, said Whirlpool Corp. and Inland Steel Co. in a recent announcement. Old appliances were traditionally discarded in landfills because it was believed their porcelain enamel coating could not be used economically as a scrap metal.

E. A. Baillif, vice president of research and engineering for Whirlpool, announced the results of a study begun in 1971. If motors are removed before the appliances are processed and more efficient compaction techniques are used, scrap from used appliances can be recycled into any grade of steel, he said. Baillif said more than 36,000 acres, covered one foot deep in twisted steel, will be added to landfills in the coming decade if current disposal methods are continued.

THE IDEA HOME

The home pictured below, like most of our homes, includes a full basement, three car garage with electric door opener, air conditioning, humidification, brick or stone veneer, cedar siding, screened-in porch, oak cabinetry and two fireplaces. In addition, our Idea Home has many unique concepts:

Idea No. 1—Site Planning
As with all homes designed by Barrington Construction Company, the Idea Home was individually designed for the natural terrain of the lot. There is a dry creek that meanders diagonally across the property with trees along each side. The home was sited to the side of the creek and to the rear of the trees on the high part of the lot. The walk from the drive to the front door is made with used railroad ties. There are several retaining walls made with used railroad ties and landscaped with shrubbery and shredded bark.

Idea No. 2—Entrance
The centrally located foyer distributes traffic to six areas: the living room, family room, kitchen, laundry room, den, second floor. The foyer floor is a country provincial ceramic tile. The exterior door locks, interior door knobs, switch plates, cabinet handles, and bathroom hardware are the same pattern in order to develop a consistent trim finish theme.

Idea No. 3—Kitchen
The kitchen is designed in a country motif. The cabinets have solid oak panelled doors in distressed walnut. Total cooking capability is provided by a microwave oven, a self-clean oven, ceramic cooktop, indoor grill and griddle. The ceramic tile cooking center is framed with heavy, solid cedar beams and columns dark stained. A new type of kitchen sink has an oversized compartment for washing large pots and pans. Instead of peninsular wall cabinets which cut the kitchen in half, the wall cabinets are installed between the base cabinets and the breakfast area to make a 3' wide cabinet and countertop area and workspace. A 1' high back on the pass-through countertop shields the kitchen from the breakfast area. There is a 30' expanse of glass across the kitchen, breakfast room, and family room.

Idea No. 4—Family Room/Screened Porch
The family room is panelled with rough-sawn horizontal cedar boards of the same pattern as the exterior siding. The ceiling has heavy rough-sawn cedar beams that are solid timber. To each side of the fireplace are sliding glass doors leading to a large screened-in porch. The screening goes from the floor to the underside of the cedar rafters which are 16' high at their highest point.

Idea No. 5—Laundry Room/Powder Room
The laundry is finished uniquely so that it may be considered as part of the foyer, part of the den-guest room, or a hallway to the powder room. If the pocket door between the laundry and foyer is open and the closet doors are closed over the laundry fixtures, it becomes a hallway to the luxurious powder room. If the pocket door is shut, the powder room becomes a private bath for the den-guest room.

Idea no. 6—Den/Guest Room
The den-guest room has a full wall of bookshelves. It has windows to the south and west. It also has sliding glass doors to the porch on the north side. With glass on three sides, the den-guest room is a very light-bright room.

Idea No. 7—Owner's Suite
Upstairs, there are four large bedrooms. The owner's suite is several rooms in one. A fireplace divides the sleeping area from the sitting room. There are sliding glass doors from the sitting room to a wood deck overlooking a lake. The dressing room has three-way, full-length mirror doors, a double walkin closet with 24' of clothespole, and a large linen closet. There are double bath vanities with 24k gold plated faucets. The vanity top is raised an extra 4" in height and has a marble cosmetic ledge. There is a luminous ceiling over the vanity area with full height mirror completely covering three walls.

Xerophytes not finicky greenery

Andy sends the Encyclopedia Britannica's Yearbook of Science and the Future to Craig Kennedy, 14, of Kingston, Ont., Canada, for his question: WHAT IS A XEROPHYTE?

Plants live in almost every conceivable environment on the face of the earth. Although most plants live where there are warm temperatures, good rich soil and adequate moisture, some are not so chbosy. Some of these less fussy plants will live only in water, and some will thrive where there is almost no water. Still other plants live within temperature zones that would quickly kill ordinary greenery. One of these less fussy plants is the xerophyte.

Plants are among the most adaptable of living things. They have been found growing on almost barren rocks in the ice fields of the Alps, as well as in the hottest and driest deserts They can grow in snow, in the salty waters of the Great Salt Lake in Utah and along the seashores. There are certain plants that can even eke out an existence in hot springs where temperatures soar as high as 180 degrees F.

Not all plants will grow in every kind of environment. Each type needs just the right spot to suit its needs. Among these needs are soil, the right temperature range and water. These combined essentials form the plant's habitat.

If we group plants based on their habitats, we can divide them into three sections — the mesophytes, the xerophytes and the hydrophytes. We are probably most familiar with the plants that would be in the mesophyte group. These are the plants we see growing in our fields and forests. They are quite particular about their environment, insisting on one that is neither too wet nor too dry.

The xerophytes can get along fine with very little water for long periods of time. These are the plants we see in our desert and semidesert regions. Good examples of these stalwart xerophyte plants include the cacti, sagebrush, palm trees, creosote bushes and yuccas. The members of this group have adaptions for survival in dry areas.

The hydrophytes live in or near the water. Some grow on land with their roots in water-saturated soil, while others grow totally submerged in water. Seaweeds, cattails, water lilies and duckweeds are some of the plants found in this group.

The ability to adapt to a specific environment is important to the survival of many plants — as it is to many animals. Without the plant life that grows and reproduces itself year after year, animals would cease to exist. For life on earth depends upon plants for food, and also on the precious oxygen they produce

Andy sends a Student Globe to Ingrid Pickering, 7, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, for her question: WHY DID ALL THE DINOSAURS DIE?

Dinosaurs lived on earth millions of years ago, and legends and facts about these creatures have made them among the most fascinating prehistoric animals. Although many types were gigantic and terrifying, these reptiles became extinct, probably during the prehistoric Cretaceous period, 130 million years ago. We know that animal species die out for many reasons, and nowadays every possible effort is made to protect a threatened species.

Scientists have several ideas as to why the dinosaur became extinct. One theory holds that gradually the great swamp lands where these animals roamed dried up. While this was happening there also were tremendous changes in climate and food supplies. The dinosaurs could not adapt to these conditions. Another theory concerns the development of mammals. Scientists believe that as mammals become more and more abundant, their superior brain power and better protection against the cold gave them real advantages over the dinosaurs.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

South looked over dummy and didn't like what he saw. Not that his partner had done anything wrong, but rather that there were nine sure tricks available at notrump and no apparent 10th visible at the four-spade contract.

Then South saw a ray of hope — in fact a couple of rays. The first one was that maybe the queen of clubs would drop doubleton. The second one was a far more complicated ray, but it might well be available if that queen didn't drop.

South won the first heart with his king, cashed dummy's ace and king of trumps and ace of hearts and ruffed a heart. This left one trump outstanding, but South couldn't help that. He needed to keep a trump in dummy. Then South cashed the ace and king of clubs and led a third club.

West was on lead and could do nothing to keep South from scoring his 10th trick.

Keeping up

by Monica Wilch Perin

ITEM: The National Research Council, a generally respected independent study agency, last month released a three-year, five-volume study, compiled by more than 60 scientists, concluding that pesticides are losing their effectiveness against insects while endangering the public health.

Incredulous that such a statement could be straight-facedly represented as a new finding, I determined to call Dr. Samuel R. Aldrich, assistant director of the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station in Urbana and a co-author of the report.

He was still in Washington, and while waiting to hear from him, I did a little research.

Fourteen years ago, the grandmother of environmentalists, Rachel Carson, said in her book "Silent Spring": "By a process of genetic selection, the insects are developing strains resistant to chemicals." She noted that "before 1945 only about a dozen species were known to have developed resistance to any of the pre-DDT insecticides. With the new organic chemicals . . . resistance . . . reached the alarming level of 137 species in 1960."

BY 1971 THAT number had reached 250, according to Harrison Wellford, a Nader associate, in his book "Sowing the Wind."

The NRC report goes on to advise that more research be done to find alternative ways of controlling pests, using such means as germs and viruses that attack certain pests, breeding pest-resistant plants, developing more selective pesticides and more efficient methods of pesticide application.

Miss Carson 14 years ago wrote that "a truly extraordinary variety of alternatives to the chemical control of insects is available.

"Insects produce a variety of venoms, attractants, repellants . . . Could we use them as selective insecticides?" (Already in 1962 a sex attractant of the gypsy moth had been synthesized.)

"Sound also may be a warning or attraction." And," insects are beset . . by viruses and bacteria." (Already the bacterium Bacillus had been used against the Japanese beetle, and Bacillus thuringiensis was being manufactured and tested against several insects.)

THE NRC AUTHORS urged "hitting the insect at a crucial time in its life cycle with a small amount of pesticide and then living with a small number of insects instead of striving for absolute control."

Miss Carson in 1962 blasted the U. S. Department of Agriculture's fire ant "eradication" program as "the most expensive, most damaging, and most ineffective . . ."

While USDA sprayed massive amounts of heptacholor and dieldrin at a cost of $3.50 per acre to no avail, Miss Carson pointed out that 90 to 95 per cent effectiveness could be achieved at 23 cents per acre by treating the fire ant mounds with small amounts of chemical in a cultivator.

Because of the extensive environmental damage done by those chemicals, USDA switched to mirex and continues spraying it today at a cost of many millions of dollars per year, without eradicating the fire ant and in spite of the environmental and health dangers of mirex noted in "Sowing the Wind."

WHEN DR. ALDRICH returned my call, I asked him who had paid for the NRC study. He said grants came from the Ford Foundation, and from USDA and the Environmental Protection Agency (that's your money).

I asked whom the report was for. That question never did get very clearly answered. Dr. Aldrich said the report was NOT addressed to "highly knowledgeable people" in these fields, that it was written in non-technical language. Okay, maybe it's for you and me and the farmers and people interested in the environment. How can we get it or see it?

Well, it's not in your local library, nor your local USDA office — and it exists only as five volumes plus a summary report. It seemed to come as a surprise to Dr. Aldrich that anybody might actually want to read it, but if they did, they would have to write to the NRC and pay $11 for the summary, or $26 for the whole report.

DID THE STUDY maybe castigate the government's past lack of funding and lack of interest in alternative methods of pest control and issue a ringing call for certain corrective actions to be taken by particular agencies?

"The report looks to the future rather than criticizing the past," Dr. Aldrich told me. "We assumed people did the best they could in the past. We say clearly that additional resources should be put into alternatives to chemical control.

"There were some changes suggested, some recommendations for EPA and USDA. We said there should be better monitoring of application of all pesticides and annual reports on the total pounds of every chemical used."

I guess these things just have to be repeated over and over for a century or so until they sink in. But if nobody was burned to the point of feeling either guilt or public pressure, and if the report is likely to sit on a shelf gathering dust because it's not really directed at government agencies and it's not really directed at the public . . . what good is it?

No fear of flying for Wendy

hurt, but the plane sure was," she said.

The only "bruise" she carried around after the incident was the nickname "Crash" that her airport friends affectionately gave her.

A recent airtrip to Colorado has put a stop to all the kidding, and now Wendy confidently tells her pilot friends and the airport mechanics she works with all about her "successful flight west."

SHE TALKS airplanes with everybody, even the top-level executives who fly in for corporate meetings, and the celebrities who frequently fly into the airport to make Chicago appearances.

Of the average 30 planes she cares for each weekday, the one Wendy remembers most is the Lear jet that came in one day last summer, piloted by golf pro Arnold Palmer.

"The plane was beautiful and he's not bad either. When I saw him step out of the cockpit, I hardly had the nerve to ask him if he wanted to fill up on fuel," she said.

Palmer was in town for the U. S. Open Golf Tournament at the Medinah Country Club, she said.

But, to Wendy, everyone who lands at "her" airport is special.

"IT MAKES PEOPLE who come in here occasionally feel good to see a familiar face. I enjoy my work because it's something personal and this probably wouldn't be the case working at O'Hare for a commercial airline," she said.

She isn't sure if she'll rely on her flying skills or personality to land her a different airport job someday. She doesn't think much about it because she says she's content with her work and her lifestyle.

And why not?

She flies her father's single-engine plane almost every week into Meigs Field to lunch and shop along Chicago's Magnificent Mile. It's a 15-minute air trip that sends her soaring over Lake Michigan and its lakeside neighborhoods.

"I just love it," says Wendy Wenk of her job as a ground hostess.

Wendy's next adventure will be a three-day, cross-country powderpuff air race that will take her from Sacramento, Cal., to Wilmington, Del.

WENDY'S MOTHER a long-time flyer, also will enter the July race in another plane. Although the winner gets a $10,000 cash award, Wendy said she'll be happy "just to get the experience."

The derby, which is annually sponsored by the Ninety-nine's, a national women's flying organization, will be conducted for the last time this year.

"I guess they are having some financial trouble with the race, but it will be more of a thrill to participate in the last one," Wendy said.

It's the end of a traditional air race, but part of a whole new life for Wendy.

"I never really liked school and I found something I really love in flying," she said.

"The airport, these people and the planes are my whole life and I just love it."

A 1776 BALL GOWN typical of what Martha Washington would have worn, a fashionable gown from the early 1900s and a Gay '90s bathing suit will be among the historic fashions modeled Friday evening, March 26, when St. Thomas of Villanova Women's Club stages "Threads of Time." The show, which will also feature ensembles from Place One, Long Grove, will be held at 7:30 in the school hall, Anderson Drive, Palatine. Shirley Konczyk, Carmela Gabl and Sylvia Schaffer will be among show models. Tickets are $3.50, 991-4814, with proceeds going to parish and community organizations.

10 million Americans suffer from gambling

by BARBARA SLAVIN

Arnie W. and his wife had a 5-year-old daughter. "My wife used to be so frustrated with me she'd hit the kid."

Every night Arnie watched the 11 o'clock sports results on television. If he won, he didn't "need" to have sex with his wife.

"If I lost, I didn't want to have anything to do with her."

Arnie is one of an estimated 10 million Americans afflicted with a chronic disease that until a few years ago was not even considered a medical problem.

Despite the enormous suffering it causes, state and local governments, businessmen and even church groups inadvertently spread the contagion.

The disease is compulsive gambling.

The sickness touches not only its immediate victims, but an estimated 40 million relatives, who must put up with a gambler's lies, emotional withdrawal and financial irresponsibility.

AS ARNIE SAID, "It's what it does to the family and the quality of life."

A pioneering Veterans Administration study completed last year distinguished between the compulsive gambler and the social gambler, who bets for amusement rather than need.

The average compulsive gambler is a man in his thirties, deeply in debt, whose family needs are provided for by his relatives or welfare, the study said.

"His wife is regularly threatening divorce. There are discipline problems with the children."

The gambler must avoid most friends because he owes them money, the study said. "He sleeps poorly, eats irregularly and is indifferent toward sexual activity."

"He thinks about gambling constantly," the VA paper concluded. "He dreams of the big win, the only comfort for his depression."

THE THREE-YEAR treatment study of 50 gamblers in the Brecksville Division of Cleveland VA hospitals — the only such program in the United States — showed a marked similarity in the emotional needs of compulsive gamblers and alcoholics.

"What's more, the two afflictions often strike together.

"Gambling acts to discharge painful tension, allowing the gambler to experience a false sense of power, respect and control," the study said. "This becomes so important to the gambler that like an alcoholic, he comes to the point where he does not care about the consequences."

Psychiatrist Robert Custer, one of the project leaders, said the study "helped us to understand the addictive personality in general."

"What it has told me is that the essence of any addition is psychological." Dr. Custer said. "You can withdraw anybody from a physical addiction rather easily, but they go back out there on the streets and start again."

EX-GAMBLER Bernie P. put it this way: "I was a thief, I was in prison. I loved cards. Even in prison I gambled for cigarets. It wasn't the money, just the action."

By the time he stopped gambling in 1962, Bernie owed $60,000 to assorted bookmakers, loansharks, banks and friends. He said he "felt like a dying man."

"I was minus zero," said Artie H., another reformed gambler interviewed recently. "I owed 32 people $20,000 total — two Shylocks (loansharks), three bookies, 17 civil court judgments, three finance companies and various friends and relatives."

In one week, Arnie W. wagered away $35,000 in stock which he and his wife had set aside as the principal on a new house. Yet he still dreamed of the "big win."

En route to the track, "I always had the feeling today would be the day I'd bring home everybody's money," Arnie said.

Months after he quit betting he realized. "There are only two kinds of gamblers — losers and liars."

ACCORDING TO the VA study, almost all compulsive gamblers start

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Blood chemical gives false syphilis alarm

My husband has always been a blood donor, but he can no longer give blood. When he went to give blood for a man who needed it, the test showed syphilis.

Needless to say this caused a problem with us and I was in shock because I have always trusted my husband. The doctor had me come in and they tested me and I had a negative result. They tested my husband some more and said it was a high protein count which gave the same results.

He will never be able to give blood again. This has caused some questions in my mind. Why is this so? The doctor would give me no answer on this. All he said was it happens sometimes and he has seen couples who couldn't cope with it and were divorced. Would you please explain if it is possible and give more details about it.

I do love my husband, but it has caused me to doubt him and not have the complete trust that I did have in our marriage.

The standard blood test for syphilis is merely a chemical reaction. When a person has had syphilis, he may (but does not always have) a chemical in the blood that produces a specific reaction and results in a positive test. That's why the test is useful in detecting someone who has had syphilis.

Things don't stop there. The body is also able to produce a similar or like chemical in certain other conditions which are not associated with syphilis at all. Then when the same test is done, this chemical will cause a positive test. We call these false positives. The value of a laboratory test is dependent upon its ability to detect a disease without giving false positive reaction in people who do not have it.

The standard syphilis blood test is pretty good but not perfect. There are individuals who have false positive tests. Additional tests can also be run to narrow this problem down for the individual. I presume from your remarks that your doctor is quite confident that your husband did not have syphilis and that his test reaction is caused by one of these flukes in chemical reactions. I fail to see how you can blame your husband for having a chemical reaction in his blood stream over which he had no control at all.

YOUR DOCTOR HAS told you he doesn't have syphilis. He has also tested you as part of the total examination and determined that you don't have syphilis despite having lived in the marriage with your husband for years. What else do you need? While I can't vouch for your husband's behavior, your statements lead me to believe that he has a clean bill of health as far as any evidence of venereal disease. You're reacting to something that is not too different than if he showed up with mild jaundice because he had a chemical reaction in the blood.

You should be happy that the medical tests showed that your husband did not have venereal disease. Your concern really should be directed toward hoping that the unique chemical reaction that he had does not indicate that he has any important medical problems that will affect his health in the future.

Individuals who give or lose blood lose iron. Repeated episodes may lead to anemia. For more information in iron deficiency send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 4-4, Iron and Anemia. Mild detergent solution cleans fireplace wall

Dear Dorothy: Help! A fire was started in our fireplace and, since the damper was not open the rock quartz fireplace wall is now black. What can be done?—Geneva E. Box

If you're sure it's rock quartz, you can use a mild detergent solution with a little household ammonia in it. You can use an old toothbrush to get into the crevices. However, if it is at all possible that the pieces are marble, you can't use ammonia in the solution as marble is susceptible to strong acids. But whether it's quartz or marble, you can't go wrong using a mild detergent solution.

Dear Dorothy: I have a few good crystal glasses which are slightly chipped. Can these be restored by using special silicone-treated paper? Will this also remove scratches on crystal glassware?—Elwood Stark

You might try this treated paper. However, the only thing that worked for me was to use fine sandpaper or emery paper on the chipped glass and jeweler's rouge on scratches that weren't too deep.

Dear Dorothy: For the reader who wanted to know if she could use dehumidifier water in her steam iron, I'd like to report my experience. 10 million Americans suffer from gambling betting before age 21 and more than half come from families with a history of compulsive gambling or alcoholism.

But the disease is treatable and hospitalization is not the only answer.

Artie, Bernie and Arnie are all members of Gamblers Anonymous, a self-help program that began in Los Angeles on a Friday the 13th nearly 18 years ago.

Today, there are nearly 350 GA chapters with an estimated 8,000 members throughout the United States and in Canada, Australia, Britain, Ireland, New Zealand and Belgium.

A Council on Compulsive Gambling was set up in 1972 to educate the public, legislators and even the medical profession about the little-known illness which GA estimates afflicts 10 million Americans, slightly less than the number of alcoholics.

Msgr. Joseph Dunne, a New York City police chaplain and council president, said the organization "is not against all gambling as such."

ITS PURPOSE is to "educate the public to the dangers of gambling" and convince legislators to remember before voting for lotteries, off-track betting and other forms of legalized gambling "the necessity of aiding the victims."

The police chaplain criticized many religious leaders, including members of his own faith, for refusing to take a stand against legalized gambling, and, in many cases, actively promoting gambling through bingo games and "Las Vegas nights."

"The last person to benefit from legalized gambling is the gambler," he said. "If you foster gambling, you should understand the dangers."

Readers eager to name her plant

Potting shed
by Mary B. Good

Three weeks ago I discussed houseplant buffs who name their plants, and lots of readers wrote commenting on the article.

"I think names are very interesting, whether they be plants, peoples' names, etc." said Irene Snjack of Arlington Heights in her letter.

I said in the article that I have a baby tears plant that is 12 inches across and dangles down 24 inches and rightly deserves a name, but I couldn't think of one that wasn't insipid. So I invited readers to submit names for this plant, and the winning name would reap the reader a new gardening book.

"How about Cry Baby — far from insipid I'd say," noted Victor Micket of Palatine, one of a number sending that name, but who had the earliest postmark.

JUDY DAGIEL of Elk Grove wrote in that the article brought to mind the first plant she ever named. Hers was a two-foot split-leaf philodendron that the family named Mighty. "He certainly lived up to his name," Judy wrote. "He grew up the wall and across the ceiling towards the window. He did beautifully until our puppy chewed him down. The kids were in tears as I applied emergency procedures of cutting up the stems and rooting them. I have rooted 10 pieces of Mighty and have given my friends Mighty's babies."

The letters are still pouring in from that single mention of the "Name the Plant" contest, and it's getting harder to choose a name because there hasn't been a poor name submitted yet. I'm delighted my readers are more creative than I am.

Cary Hedrick of Schaumburg said: "The name for your baby tears plant is so obvious to me, I'm surprised you haven't come up with it. I asked my husband and he agreed — the only name for an enormous baby tears is Baby Huey of course!

JULIE BASRAK of Hoffman Estates wrote that she spent nearly a week of thought on the project. Sniffles was her suggestion.

It looks like Christmas around here with all the colorful stationery and cards people have sent in. Somebody mailed a perfumed letter that nearly consumed my bedroom (where I opened the entries) with its aroma. The perfume sent my dog baying at the moon one night and my husband refused to leave for work in the morning! Some people sent in Greek, Spanish and Latin names and appeared to do much research and put in a lot of time picking out a name.

Needless to say, the response is super! But if you have a name with lots of pizzazz, there are still a few days left — time to win a new gardening book. The winner will be announced in the April Fool's Day edition of Potting Shed (Thursday, April 1). Entries must be postmarked by Monday, March 22. In case of duplicates, the card or letter with the earliest postmark wins. Send entries to "Name The Plant" Contest, c/o Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights 60006.

SOME READERS asked how to root cutting of baby tears (helxine). Simply remove the bottom leaves on a stem, so to leave about an inch of stem bare. Dip the stem in Rootone to promote rapid rooting and anchor the cutting with a hairpin or similar metal clip. Plant in a 2½ inch pot filled with damp vermiculite or wrap the dipped stem in moist rough sphagnum moss pieces (not shredded or sheet moss), before planting in average potting mix (to avoid the vermiculite step). Put the pot in a plastic bag and tie the top to keep in the moisture. Keep the cutting out of direct sun, until roots form.

If started in vermiculite, transfer the rooted cutting to a three-inch pot filled with average potting mix: two parts potting soil, one part shredded peat moss or vermiculite or perlite and one part sharp builder's sand or bird gravel. Fertilize rooted cutting every month with fish emulsion or liquid seaweed. Rooted baby tears requires full sun, soil kept quite moist and the plant misted frequently. It's an easy plant to grow!

Married in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Buffalo Grove, Desiree is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hans J. Rubner, Buffalo Grove, and Robert is the son of Frank Burke, Scotland, S.D.

The charm of country cooking

People are rediscovering country kitchen cooking from generations past. These recipes originally used locally grown foods, for the most part; those that stored well, such as apples, grains, nuts, preserves, and imported spices.

The old favorites featured here are perfect for today. Luckily we no longer must depend on local supplies — Red and Golden Delicious apples are shipped 'cross country and Minnesota is the largest producer of oats by the bushel. Outstanding crop yields of apples and grain keep these foods in the reasonably priced category yet still provide tasty and substantial fare

CHEESY APPLE DUMPLING WITH SPICY SYRUP

Pastry:

- 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup shortening
- ½ cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- 6 to 8 tablespoons cold water

Filling:

- 6 medium-sized Golden Delicious apples, pared and cored
- ⅓ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon allspice
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Syrup:

- ¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- ¾ cup water
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine

For pastry, sift together flour and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Mix in cheese and oats. Sprinkle water by tablespoons over mixture and stir lightly until pastry can be formed into a ball. Turn out on a lightly floured board or canvas. Divide dough into 6 equal parts; roll out each part to form an 8 or 9-inch circle.

For filling, place 1 apple in center of each circle of dough. Combine sugar and allspice, fill apple centers with sugar mixture. Dot filling in each apple with 1 teaspoon butter. Moisten edges of pastry. Bring pastry up over apples pinching edges together to seal, prick top and sides. Place on cookie sheet. Bake in preheated hot oven (425 degrees) 20 to 25 minutes or until apples are tender; serve immediately with syrup (see below). Makes 6.

For syrup, combine all ingredients except butter in small saucepan over medium heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from heat. Stir in butter.

WALDORF SALAD

- 4 cups coarsely diced Red or Golden Delicious apples
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup sliced celery
- ½ cup broken walnuts
- 1 cup halved and seeded green grapes
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- ½ cup dairy sour cream
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Lettuce

Place apples in a large bowl and sprinkle with lemon juice. Add celery, walnuts and grapes. Blend mayonnaise, sour cream, sugar and salt. Toss with salad ingredients to coat evenly. Chill. Serve salad in lettuce lined bowl. Serves 6.

MEATBALLS IN APPLE BARLEY RING

Meatballs:

- 1 pound ground beef
- ⅓ pound ground veal
- ⅓ pound ground pork
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon oregano
- 1 egg, beaten
- ½ cup milk

Sauce:

- 2 cups apple juice
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper

Apple Barley Ring:

- 3 cups water
- 3 cups apple juice
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
- 2 cups quick barley*
- 2 Golden Delicious apples, cored and unpared
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine

For meatballs, combine all ingredients. Shape to form 24 meatballs. Brown in hot oil in a large skillet; drain. Combine sauce ingredients; pour over meatballs. Bring to a boil; cover and simmer 25 to 30 minutes, stirring occasionally.

For apple barley ring, combine first four ingredients in 3 quart saucepan. Bring to a boil; stir in barley. Cover; simmer 10 to 12 minutes, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile, cut each apple in 8 wedges (dip in lemon juice). Saute wedges in 2 tablespoons butter. Cover, cook over low heat about 10 minutes or until tender. Evenly line the bottom of an ungreased 6-cup ring mold with wedges, skin side down. Drain cooked barley; stir remaining butter into barley. Pack hot barley into prepared ring mold; let stand 5 minutes. Immediately invert onto serving platter; unmold. Fill center with meatballs; serve. Makes enough for 8.

*NOTE: To use regular barley, combine 4½ cups water, 4½ cups apple juice, 1½ teaspoons salt and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg in 5 to 6 quart pot; bring to a boil. Stir in 1½ cups regular barley. Cover; simmer about 1 hour or until tender, stirring occasionally. Proceed as above.

OLD FASHIONED APPLE BUTTER

- ½ cup sugar per cup pulp
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon cloves
- ½ teaspoon allspice
- Grated peel of 1 lemon
- Juice of 1 lemon

Place apples in a large kettle with apple cider. Bring to a boil and simmer over low heat about 15 to 20 minutes until apples are tender. Put through sieve and measure pulp. Add ½ cup sugar per cup pulp and remaining ingredients. Simmer over low heat 35 to 40 minutes until butter is thick, stirring occasionally. Ladle into hot jars leaving ½-inch headspace. Adjust lids. Process in boiling water bath for 10 minutes. Makes 5 pints.

MOCK PECAN TARTS

Pastry:

- One 10 or 11 ounce package pie crust mix

Filling:

- 3 eggs
- ¾ cup sugar
- ½ cup dark corn syrup
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- ¼ cup flaked or shredded coconut

For pastry, empty pie crust mix into bowl and mix according to package directions for a 9-inch two-crust pie. Divide dough into 12 equal portions; shape each to form a ball. Pastry line muffin cups by pressing pastry balls against bottom and sides of medium-sized muffin cups, 2½ inches in diameter.

For filling, beat eggs until foamy. Gradually add sugar; beat until thick. Stir in syrup, butter, oats and coconut; blend well. Fill each pastry-lined muffin cup with filling. Garnish top of each tart with a pecan half. Bake in pre-heated moderate oven (350 degrees) about 30 minutes or until center of each tart is firm; cool. Makes 12 tarts.

Combine ⅓ cup flour, oats, sugar, cinnamon and salt. Cut in butter until mixture is crumbly. Sprinkle crumb mixture over apples. Bake in preheated oven 30 to 35 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream. Serves 6.

- ⅔ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- 1½ cups pared, cored and finely chopped Golden Delicious apples
- ¼ cup walnuts
- ¼ cup raisins
- 2 eggs
- ¼ cup milk
- ¼ cup liquid or melted shortening

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg into bowl. Stir in sugar, oats, apples, walnuts and raisins. Combine eggs, milk and shortening; add to dry ingredients. Mix only until dry ingredients are moistened.

Pour batter into well-greased and waxed paper-lined 8½ by 4½ by 2⅝ inch loaf pan. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 55 to 60 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center of loaf comes out clean. Cool about 10 minutes. Remove from pan; cool thoroughly. For ease in slicing, wrap cooled bread and store one day.

Meanwhile, prepare Apple Filling by combining filling ingredients in small saucepan. Cook over moderate heat, stirring about 10 minutes, until thickened and apples are tender. Drop cookie dough by teaspoonfuls on ungreased cookie sheets, making depression in center. Fill centers with Apple Filling. Bake in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

Easy and inexpensive

Miniature meat loaves great for guests

SHERRY AND CREAM add a delicately different taste to miniature meat loaves prepared by Karen Souden of Arlington Heights. The loaves, after browning, are smothered with a tomato and mushroom gravy and baked. She serves them with rice or baked potatoes.

by LOIS SEILER

Ground beef can be glorified for guests with the appealing recipe featured today. Called Steakies, the recipe is a favorite of Karen Souden, Arlington Heights.

The Steakies resemble miniature meat loaves which are baked in a tomato-flavored mushroom gravy. The meat is juicy and tasty, and the gravy is delicious served over baked potatoes or rice. Although easy and inexpensive to prepare, Steakies are appetizing enough to serve to guests.

A lemon dessert makes a light and refreshing finale for this dinner. Assembled in layers, it has a thin pastry crust topped by a cream cheese mixture, lemon pudding and refrigerated non-dairy whipped topping. The same dessert can be made with butterscotch pudding, which gives it an entirely different flavor but is just as good. Both can be served nicely for bridge parties, too.

Karen acquired these recipes from her mother and mother-in-law, but another favorite is a vegetable dish from a Pennsylvania Dutch cook book she bought while on her honeymoon. The recipe calls for green beans, potatoes, onions and bacon and cooks into a true Pennsylvania Dutch flavor.

Attractive in appearance yet simple to prepare, the dish can be made ahead and re-heated before serving. Karen likes to serve this with pork chops, but says it goes well with almost any meat.

A recipe collector, Karen loves to cook and try new recipes. Her husband, Gordon, is a good sport who eats everything and never complains, she said. Their two young children are not always so adventuresome with food, but they do enjoy the Steakies.

In addition to cooking, Karen's interests include antiques and craft work. She sings in the choir of Lutheran Church of the Cross and is boutique chairman for T.T.T., a service organization.

STEAKIES

1 pound lean ground beef
1 cup firmly-packed fine, soft bread crumbs
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup cream
¼ cup sherry
½ cup finely-chopped onion
¼ cup minced parsley
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine all ingredients and chill. (If desired, ¾ cup of a milk and cream mixture or Milnot may be substituted for the cream and sherry.) Shape meat mixture into six small loaves or patties. Brown; drain off excess fat. Place in a baking dish or skillet. Prepare the following gravy:

1 can lean beef gravy (6 to 8 ounces)
½ cup tomato sauce
1 4-ounce can mushrooms, drained

Mix ingredients together and pour over loaves. Simmer or bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes to one hour, basting occasionally. Serves 4 to 6.

LEMON DESSERT

1 cup flour
1 stick margarine
½ cup chopped walnuts or pecans

Mix together as you would for pastry and press into the bottom of a 9 by 13-inch pan. Bake 10 to 15 minutes, until golden, at 350 degrees. Cool.

1 cup confectioner's sugar
1 9-ounce container refrigerated non-dairy whipped topping
1 8-ounce package cream cheese, at room temperature
2 3-ounce packages instant lemon pudding
3 cups milk

In a mixer or blender, mix together the confectioners' sugar, one cup of the whipped topping and the cream cheese. When smooth, spread over cooled crust.

Mix together pudding and milk with a spoon or spatula and allow to thicken. Spread on top of cheese layer. Spread remainder of whipped topping on top. Cover and chill overnight. Serves 12 to 16. (One small package butterscotch pudding and one small package vanilla pudding may be substituted for the lemon pudding, if desired.

OLD FASHIONED GREEN BEANS AND BACON

¾ pound fresh green beans
8 slices bacon
2 medium-size red potatoes, pared and cut into ½-inch pieces
1 small onion, sliced or chopped
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon salt

Cook beans in small amount of boiling salted water 10 to 15 minutes or until just tender. Drain.

Dice bacon and fry until crisp. Add green beans and remaining ingredients to bacon and cook, covered, about 15 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Makes 4 servings.

Tangy stretch to meals

Beef balls make a perfect stretch meal that is economical. For a change of flavor try a Bavarian method which adds the tanginess of apple juice and cooked apples. Serve these with rice or egg noodles.

BAVARIAN BEEF BALLS AND APPLES

1½ pounds ground beef
1 cup soft bread crumbs (about 2 slices)
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ cup minced onion
1 egg
¼ cup milk
1½ cups apple juice
3 Golden Delicious or Winesap apples, pared, cored and cut into sixths
2 tablespoons flour dissolved in 2 tablespoons water

Combine ground beef, bread crumbs, salt, onion, egg and milk. Shape into 1½-inch balls. Brown in hot oil. Add apple juice. Bring to boil. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add apples, continue to cook 15 to 20 minutes more or until apples are tender. Remove apples and meat balls to serving platter. Stir dissolved flour into liquid remaining in pan. Bring to boil, cooking until thickened. Pour over meat and apples. Makes 5 servings.

Note: Season to taste with coarse salt, if necessary.

Rising bread

Most families love fresh, home baked yeast bread. And yeast breads love a warm place during their rising period. The problem can be solved by placing your bowl of dough in a pan of warm water or in the oven with a pan of hot water on the rack below. Baking yeast bread with enriched or whole grain flours also insures they add a healthful measure of the B-vitamins — niacin, thiamine and riboflavin — plus, iron.

If we ate like Jefferson did . . .

The dietary temperance of America's third president, Thomas Jefferson, would do well today in preventing heart disease, says an Oregon physician.

The alternate diet proposed by Dr. William E. Connor of the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center, Portland, reduces consumption of high cholesterol foods, saturated fats, sugar and salt.

Jefferson once wrote in a letter to a friend: "I have lived temperately, eating little animal food, and not as an aliment, so much as a condiment for the vegetables which constitute my principal diet." He lived to be 83, at a time when a man's average life span was 35 to 37 years.

Dr. John P. McGovern, an allergist whose hobby is medical history, arrived at those figures by extrapolating figures for the mid-1800s back to the Jeffersonian period. He said a person born about the same year as Jefferson, 1743, would have a life expectancy of 35 to 37 years. A person who reached age 20 by about 1760 could expect to live into his late 40s or early 50s.

Connor says someone following Jefferson's practice would take two to 10 years to make a permanent change in his diet.

HE PROPOSES slowly cutting down on meat, eliminating egg yolks and adding more vegetables and cereals.

Connor's alternative diet contains legumes (beans, peas and lentils), nuts and seeds, whole grains, fruits, vegetables, vegetable oils, margarine and shortenings and low-fat animal products.

Its major purpose is reduction of the cholesterol and saturated fat that cause atherosclerosis, a buildup of fat tissue in blood vessel walls. When the buildup begins to prevent blood flow, heart attacks can result.

Atherosclerosis is blamed as the underlying cause of nearly one million deaths a year from stroke and heart attacks. Connor said a low-cholesterol diet begun at an early age may greatly reduce the number of deaths from the disease.

"For 95 per cent of the individuals who develop coronary heart disease and other atherosclerotic events (such as gangrene of the feet), dietary and environmental factors are the most crucial," he told a meeting of the American Heart Association Science Writers Forum in Houston.

Connor would reduce the normal American diet of about 750 milligrams of cholesterol daily about 100 milligrams by using meat as a seasoning instead of a main dish.

THE FIRST DIET phase would lower average cholesterol intake to about 450 milligrams per day. Connor recommends deleting egg yolks (egg whites do not contain cholesterol), butterfat, lard and organ meat and substituting margarine for butter, vegetable oils and shortening for lard, skim milk for whole milk and decreasing use of table salt.

Phase two cuts the average consumption of a pound of meat per day to six or eight ounces; it reduces intake of fat and cheese and products containing salt. Connor said this phase would require some new recipes, to reduce cholesterol intake to 300 milligrams per day.

The final phase would limit meat, fish and poultry to three to four ounces a day. Connor suggests these foods be used as condiments in larger dishes, not as the main dish. He said fish and poultry are much better choices than meat.

The last phase also includes low-cholesterol cheeses and a further reduction of salt used in cooking to lower cholesterol counts to 100 milligrams per day. For special occasions, regular cheese, chocolate, coconut and salty foods can be served, he added.

When the final phase is reached, fat content, which represents 40 per cent of the calories in a normal diet, will have been halved.

Sample menus require few recipe changes

The "Alternative American Diet" recommended by Dr. William E. Connor of the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center, Portland, may require some new recipes, but in most cases the dietary changes can be accomplished with minor differences in old recipes.

Following are two daily sample menus.

• Menu No. 1:

Breakfast: Fruit or fruit juice, cereal with skim milk and toast with margarine.

Lunch: Soup, meatless sandwich or beans, relishes and fresh or canned fruit.

Dinner: Broiled salmon steaks, baked potato with margarine, broccoli with sliced almonds, tossed salad with Italian dressing, fruit cup and oatmeal cookies.

Beverages: as desired.

Snacks: Fruit and unsalted popcorn.

• Menu No. 2:

Breakfast: Fruit or fruit-juice, scrambled egg substitute and toast with margarine.

Lunch: Grilled sandwich filled with 99 per cent fat-free cheese; fresh vegetables and fresh or canned fruit.

Dinner: Lean beef stew with vegetables, mashed potatoes, molded cranberry salad, hot rolls with margarine, orange sherbet and a cookie.

Beverages: as desired.

Snacks: Fruit and graham crackers.

Good buys beef up freezing

With beef prices at the lowest level in nearly a year, this is a good time to beef up your own freezer supplies. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), the supply of beef marketed in March is expected to be about 10 per cent higher than a year ago. Grain-fed beef will account for the bulk of the increased supply.

A dramatic shift in the makeup of beef supplies is underway. During late 1975, less than 50 per cent of beef output was grain-fed beef. Instead, cow beef and grass-fed or forage-fed beef accounted for an unusually large share of the total supply. Now more than 60 per cent of the supply is grain-fed beef.

Average prices for Choice beef at retail trended downward during the last half of 1975 and current retail prices are sharply below late 1975 levels, reflecting a sharp drop in grain-fed cattle prices.

Here are some suggestions from the USDA for freezing meat:

• Beef will maintain its quality for about 8 to 12 months if properly wrapped and stored at zero degrees.

• For best protection, the meat should be wrapped in a moisture and vapor-proof wrap (heavy aluminum foil, heavily waxed freezer paper or specially laminated paper).

• When wrapping steaks or patties, a double thickness of heavily waxed paper should be placed between each steak or patty. It will enable you to open the package and remove as many as you wish.

• When wrapping the entire package — be it several steaks, patties or individual roasts — try to wrap the meat as closely as possible to eliminate all air and thus avoid freezer burn.

• Meat that has been defrosted, but refrigerated after thawing, can be refrozen safely. Although it is safe, refreezing is not recommended since it usually results in a loss of quality of the meat.

Cabbage tales

Scholars disagree on the precise history of a common American dish, cabbage.

The Romans and Greeks receive some credit for introducing it to Europe, but a Frenchman brought it to the New World and planted it in Canada several hundred years ago.

There's no written record of cabbage here in the United States until 1669. However, American folklore has it that the reason the Dutch paid $24 for Manhattan Island was because of the cabbage growing there. By 1854, the U.S. Patent Office was distributing cabbage seeds.

Now fresh green cabbage is a treat whether served as a side dish or the main entree. It also proves to be an excellent source for daily requirements of Vitamin C.

According to marketing reporters of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service, there are plentiful supplies of cabbage in Midwest markets right now, making it a good time to serve cabbage at upcoming meals.

Salmon Squares with Mushroom Pea Sauce

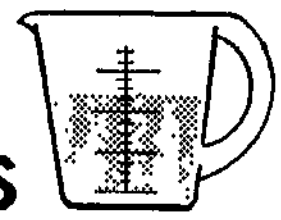

Ingredients enrich salmon squares, sauce

Cottage cheese, milk and eggs enrich the protein content of this meal-in-a-dish. It should be remembered that, with the new metric measuring cups and spoons, the volume will be slightly greater than with American Standard measurements.

SALMON SQUARES WITH MUSHROOM PEA SAUCE

500 milliliters or 2 cups cooked rice
2 eggs, beaten
500 milliliters or 2 cups cottage cheese
1 16-ounce can salmon, drained and flaked
1 small onion, finely chopped
60 milliliters or ¼ cup chopped green pepper

Cooking with metrics

10 milliliters or 2 teaspoons soy sauce
250 milliliters or 1 cup soda cracker crumbs

Combine all ingredients except cracker crumbs. Spoon into a buttered 30 by 19 by 5-centimeter (12 by 7½ by 2-inch) baking pan. Sprinkle cracker crumbs over top. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes or until firm in center. Cut into squares. Serve with Mushroom Pea Sauce. Serves 8.

MUSHROOM PEA SAUCE

45 milliliters or 3 tablespoons butter
1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms, drained
45 milliliters or 3 tablespoons flour
5 milliliters or 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
375 milliliters or 1½ cups milk
375 milliliters or 1½ cups cooked peas
30 milliliters or 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

Cook mushrooms in butter for 5 minutes. Stir in flour and salt. Gradually add milk. Cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Stir in peas and pimiento, cooking until hot. Spoon over Salmon Squares. Makes enough for 8 servings.

Ingredients on hand for tuna loaf

Tuna is more than likely the one kind of seafood the whole family enjoys. Considering there is no waste to a can of tuna, it's a good food buy, too.

One new way to turn tuna into a main dish involves ingredients most homemakers are likely to have on hand. Called Layered Tuna Bake, it is actually a loaf made up of layers of tuna and cheese mixture and potatoes.

LAYERED TUNA BAKE

1¼ cups water
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¾ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
2 cups mashed potato flakes
2 eggs
1 can (7-ounces) tuna, drained
1 package (10-ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed
6 slices process American cheese, diced
¼ cup chopped peanuts
Mustard Sauce

Combine water, butter, and salt in saucepan; heat to boiling. Remove from heat and add milk. Stir in potatoes; when flakes are soft and moist, add 1 egg and stir lightly. Stir together remaining egg, tuna, spinach, and cheese. Generously grease 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan; sprinkle bottom with peanuts. Spoon half the potato mixture into pan. Spread spinach mixture over potatoes and top with remaining potatoes. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes, then loosen edges and carefully turn out onto serving platter. Slice and serve with Mustard Sauce. Serves 6.

Mustard Sauce: Melt 2 tablespoons butter in small saucepan; stir in 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons prepared yellow mustard, and ½ teaspoon salt. Gradually add 1¼ cups milk. Heat to boiling, stirring frequently.

Odd meats vary meals, add protein

Looking for something different and delectable to serve your family? Try your hand with variety meats. Variety meats are those highly nutritious, flavorful organ-type parts of beef, veal, pork and lamb.

They include tongue, liver, hearts, tripe, sweetbreads, brains and kidneys. Yet many people know little about them as food.

Fresh, pickled, corned or smoked is the way to buy tongue. Smoked, corned or pickled tongue may be soaked in water for several hours before cooking to make the flavor milder. Change the water and cook it slowly for several hours until tender. It may be served hot or cold.

All liver is rated high nutritionally. It is an excellent source of such nutrients as iron, copper, vitamin A, riboflavin, niacin and thiamin. While lamb and veal (calf) liver may be pan-fried or broiled, pork and most beef liver come from mature animals and are best when braised.

Heart is a firm textured meat with very little waste. Because heart is a less tender meat, it requires long, slow cooking in moisture. An especially tasty dish is heart stuffed with a savory dressing.

Tripe, plain or smooth lining from the first beef stomach, the honeycomed lining from the second stomach, and the pocket-shaped part from the end of the second stomach, may be purchased partially cooked, pickled or canned. When cooked, the texture of tripe should be like that of soft gristle. It may be served with a sauce, fried, broiled, baked, creamed or as an ingredient in pepper pot, a thick soup.

Sweetbreads, the thymus glands, are made up of two parts of a young calf — the heart sweetbread and the throat sweetbread. They are white and soft and have a very delicate taste. Cooked sweetbreads may be served broken into small pieces and scrambled with eggs, reheated in a cream or tomato sauce, fried, made into croquettes, used in salad or boiled.

Brains and sweetbreads are much alike in tenderness and texture. They may be used interchangeably in all recipes.

The membrane and hard parts should be removed from kidneys before cooking. Lamb kidneys can be split or left whole. Beef kidneys, which are less tender than other kidneys, should be made into a stew or braised. Lamb or veal kidneys are tender enough to be broiled. Because they tend to have a strong odor, it helps to soak them in water and vinegar in the refrigerator for a couple of hours before continuing the recipe.

Since variety meats are to be thawed before cooking, they should be left in the freezer wrap and thawed in the refrigerator to help prevent the growth of bacteria.

Historical stew takes new taste

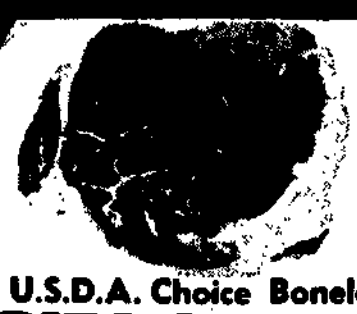

Chicken Fricassee, a favorite stew made by Colonial cooks, gets a modern twist when served on noodles. Now, as then, it's a hearty, nourishing dish for family or guests.

CHICKEN FRICASSEE

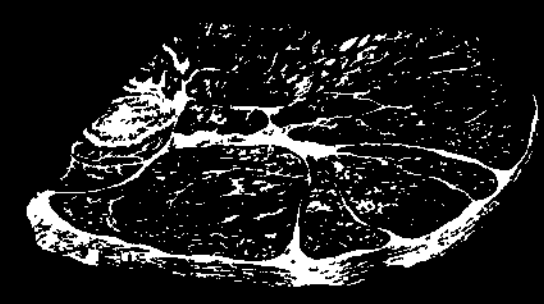

- 1 large broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving parts
- ½ cup flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon freshly ground peppercorns
- ¼ teaspoon mace
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/3 cup vegetable oil
- 1 large onion, sliced
- 1 can (2-ounces) mushroom caps
- 3 cups hot water
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- 2 tablespoons catsup
- ¾ cup sour cream
- ¼ cup white wine
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard

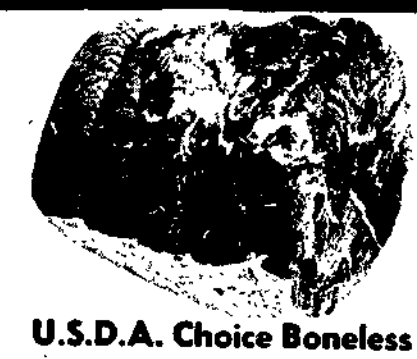

Wash chicken parts. Mix flour, salt, pepper, mace and nutmeg. Roll parts in mixture while oil heats in large skillet over high heat. Brown all parts a very dark brown on all sides, about 15 minutes. Add onions and mushrooms and cook until soft. Then add water and bouillon cubes; turn heat to low. Simmer 1 to 4 hours. When ready to serve, skin off excess fat. Mix catsup, sour cream, wine and mustard in small bowl. Add a little of hot liquid from pan. Stir into remainder of gravy. Serve hot on flat, cooked noodles. Makes 6 servings.

For slow cooker: first brown chicken in skillet and change to electric slow cooker, set for 7 to 8 hours on low or 4 to 5 hours on high. Add sour cream mixture to pot last 30 minutes of cooking time.

Bread baking
by Catherine Clark

The home baker of bread sooner or later falls prey to mistakes — some major, some minor. You might like to know what to do when disaster strikes, other than throwing the whole thing out.

It is possible to save a dough, if one knows how to take proper steps.

One of the common errors is to forget to put in the yeast. After proceeding with the bread mixing process all the way to the point where we are going to expect the dough to rise, either you suddenly remember that yeast was omitted, or you let it sit an hour or two while it doesn't budge at all, at which point recollection hits full force.

Take the dough back to the counter and dump it out on the floured surface, patting it out into a flat piece. Soften the yeast in a minimum amount of liquid — for instance, 1 ounce of yeast, depending on the size of your recipe, in about 2 tablespoons of milk, cream or water. Stir until it becomes a creamy paste. Distribute over the surface of the dough; roll up and start kneading. It will be a little sticky and will ooze out until you start working it in well, but in a few minutes you will have incorporated the yeast into the dough. You must be sure to knead sufficiently well to distribute it thoroughly throughout the dough. It shouldn't take longer than 5 minutes.

If you omitted the sugar or the salt befor you set the dough to rise, these ingredients can be kneaded in dry the same way as the yeast paste was, being sure to knead it enough to get good disbursement. However, if your dough has risen, the omission will be more apparent because unsalted dough rises much quicker and higher in the same length of time. Salt is an inhibitor of fermentation, while at the same time it strengthens the gluten in the dough, making dough better able to hold the gas necessary for a light loaf of bread.

Forgetting the sugar will not be as apparent visually, but if you make it a point to taste a little piece of dough, its omission will be noticeable. In this case, the dough may rise more slowly, since you have not provided the yeast with sugar to feed upon during fermentation.

If the flour has been mis-measured and you find the dough too stiff to knead, it is possible to achieve the texture desired by slowly adding more moisture. It takes about a half cup of liquid to bring one cup of extra flour to the right consistency. If you wish at this point to bring the other ingredients into line, follow this rule of thumb when you have an unwanted extra cup of flour in your dough: for each cup of extra flour add one teaspoon salt, two and one half teaspoon sugar, and one tablespoon shortening.

To correct a batch of bread which has too much liquid, use these proportions: for every half cup of unwanted liquid add one cup of flour, two and one half teaspoons sugar, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon shortening.

If you're sure you put in too much salt, the best you can do, (if you don't want to put in a double amount of everything to catch up with the salt) is add half again as much of everything. But remember, salt slows the rising.

Bake more

Home bread baking is booming, says a yeast manufacturer. Yeast sales have increased 25 per cent in the past five years.

Increased sales of family flour also are attributed to the trend. After a 20-year decline, sales rose 10 per cent in 1973 and another 9.4 per cent in 1974.

In addition, the manufacturer says public libraries, state Bicentennial committees, Extension services and private schools are conducting bread-baking programs and classes, and a survey by a West Coast consumer magazine indicated seven out of 10 of its readers had tried making yeast bread.

From Washington to Ford

Presidential eating 'fascinating'

Franklin D. Roosevelt served hot dogs to the Queen of England when he was president.

President Warren G. Harding kept his private stock of spirits when he was in the White House during the Prohibition.

And Abraham Lincoln used to go to the meat markets to choose his own steaks.

AT LEAST that's the story from Sheri Smith, author, cook, caterer and Bicentennial consultant with the Atrium restaurant in Rolling Meadows.

"I've found the Presidents' eating habits fascinating," she said recently. "Their meals ranged from sumptuous to spartan."

Ms. Smith, who said, she "loves doing research," is working to coordinate presidential dishes to be served during the restaurant's noon meals. "This way the Bicentennial will be available for people to experience," she said.

While doing her research she found, not surprisingly, that the First Ladies played an important part in White House food.

FOR EXAMPLE, Dolly Madison, wife of the fourth president, spent around $50 a day on food, said Ms. Smith. "And those were days of 75-cent turkeys."

Mrs. Madison was the first wife to enjoy White House entertaining, she continued. "She served cakes and created lots of recipes Martha Washington borrowed."

The Madisons weren't the only big spenders on food. Thomas Jefferson spent $11,000 on wine his first year in office, said Ms. Smith. "He liked Baked Alaska, too."

Jefferson ignored rank, she said. He was democratic in whom he served. He ate little animal food, "but he brought salads into vogue," she said.

ON THE OTHER hand, James Monroe, the fifth president, was strict about who ate at the White House. "He was also a strict testotaler."

Abraham Lincoln ate less than any other President, continued Ms. Smith. With the exception of his steak, he had few other preferences. "His wife had a lot to do with the White House food. In fact, she was ridiculed for her lavish entertainment during the Civil War."

Afterward, when Ulysses Grant was in office, "There was an unmatched era of opulence," she said. "He was known for serving 23 courses of food to 36 people."

Theodore Roosevelt enjoyed wilted dandelion greens; Calvin Coolidge called every meal supper and liked pickles from Vermont; Herbert Hoover loved homemade sugared almonds.

"WILLIAM HOWARD Taft was a constant dieter," although it appears he was never too successful at it. He weighed 332 pounds, Ms. Smith said. "The doctors once told him he had to lose some weight, so he cut down his breakfast. Instead of a 12-ounce steak, he trimmed it to eight ounces. With it he had two oranges, three pices of toast and coffee."

It was the Kennedys who brought elegance back to the White House full force, she continued. Although the President preferred milk and cinnamon toast, "Jackie stressed the best of U.S. life and taste."

Ms. Smith, who maintains that "all food has a basic integrity," has a collection of recipes based on the Presidents. Two are given below.

ELECTION CAKE
(Abraham Lincoln)

- 1 cup currants, soaked overnight in a tightly closed jar in ½ cup brandy
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¾ cup scalded milk
- 1 yeast cake
- ¼ cup warm water
- 1 cup flour, unsifted
- ½ cup butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 2¾ cups sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¾ teaspoon mace
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 egg, whole
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

To the scalded milk add 1 tablespoon sugar; cool. Dissolve the crumbled yeast in warm water and add to the milk. Add the unsifted flour, and beat until well blended. Let rise in warm place until it has doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Cream butter and sugar until very light. Sift flour, salt, mace and cinnamon together; add egg to creamed mixture and beat until light. Stir in lemon rind and juice. Add yeast mixture and beat thoroughly. Add drained currants, retaining the brandy for later.

Sift remaining flour, salt, mace and cinnamon together; add to batter. Add brandy, beat well. Place in tube pan or 9 by 5 by 1 inch loaf pan that has been well greased.

Cover with a cloth and place in warm place away from draft. Allow to rise until double in bulk. This mixture rises very slowly, may take 4 to 6 hours to double in bulk. Bake at 375 degrees for about 45 minutes. Cool briefly, then turn out on rack, brush with orange or lemon glaze made of juice, rind and powdered sugar.

MONTICELLO SPICED CIDER
(Thomas Jefferson)

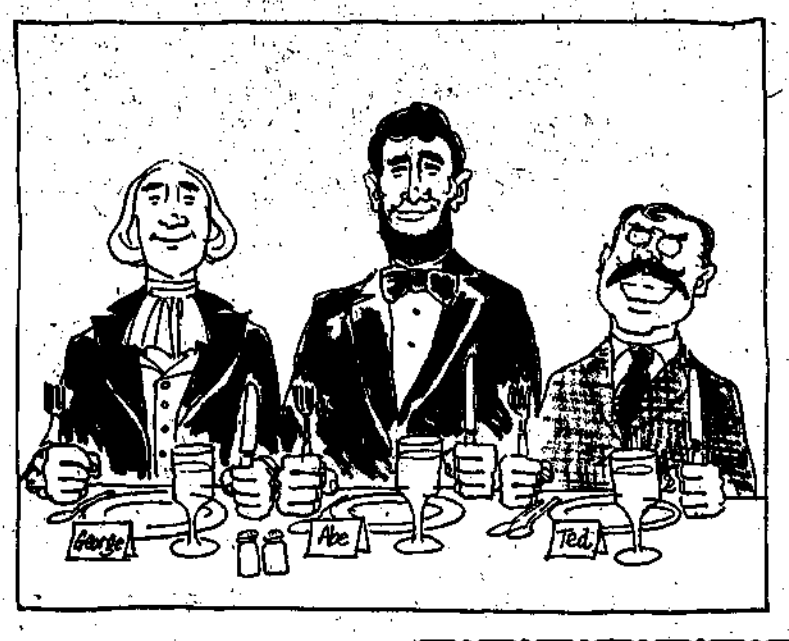

- 1 quart apple cider
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup (or less) granulated sugar
- 10 cloves, whole
- 10 all spice berries
- 10 1-inch pieces stick cinnamon

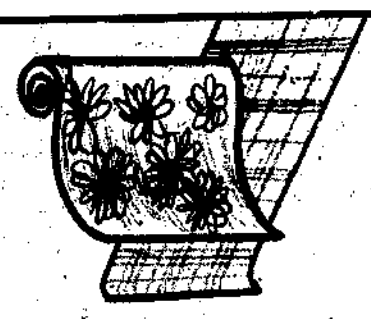

Pound spices in mortar or hammer in a plastic bag. Combine cider, salt, sugar and spices. Boil mixture 2 minutes. Cool 3 hours. Strain and reheat. Sherry, brandy or whiskey may be added befor serving, if desired. Makes 1 quart.

Worldwide shipments of French champagne rose 15.8 per cent last year over 1974. The Comite Interprofessionel du Vin de Champagne, the industry organization, said more than 122 million bottles were shipped, of which nearly 94 milliin went to domestic consumers in France.

The National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers said consumption of champagne and other sparkling wines increased 4.5 per cent in 1974 over the previous year.

Specials and Gimmicks?

It's really too bad, but many shoppers measure food savings only by looking at the advertised "specials" they see in a food ad....or by the many different games and gimmicks a supermarket offers.

The Eagle Way!

A sensible way to measure food savings is to judge a supermarket by the total amount you spend for all you take home. That's the Eagle Way to savings. No occasional "specials." No stamps or games. Just plain, sensible low prices you can depend on to give you savings on your family's food bill.

Apples give cake moistness

Want some old-fashioned goodness to nibble on for a birthday celebration or other special occasion? A golden apple torte baked in a decorative bundt pan, crowned with tangy lemon glaze and sprinkled with chopped walnuts is the answer. The natural moistness of apples gives this cake an excellent keeping quality, although there probably will be only crumbs left over. The rich apple batter is accented with crushed pineapple and cinnamon and nutmeats add crunch.

Golden Apple Torte

GOLDEN APPLE TORTE

- 3 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1½ cups oil
- 1½ cups sugar
- 2 cups grated Golden Delicious apples
- 1 (8-ounce) can crushed pineapple
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- 1½ teaspoons vanilla
- 3 eggs
- Lemon Glaze
- 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts

Sift together flour, soda, salt and cinnamon. Combine oil and sugar. Add half of dry ingredients, mixing well. Blend in grated apples, pineapple, ½ cup walnuts and vanilla. Add remaining dry ingredients. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Turn into greased 3-quart bundt pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour or until cake tests done. Cool in pan 15 minutes; turn out on wire rack. Drizzle with Lemon Glaze and sprinkle with 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts when cool.

Lemon Glaze: Combine 1½ cups powdered sugar, 3 tablespoons softbutter, ½ teaspoon grated lemon peel, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and 1½ tablespoons hot water. Stir until smooth.

Commercials create much confusion

Recent studies by the Federal Trade Commission show that Americans believe claims by food advertisers and manufacturers. When words like "nutritious" or "wholesome" are used, the typical American believes the advertiser is conveying objective information about the nutritional value of his product, however vague the terminolgy may be.

Many also assume these claims are based on governmental guidelines.

However, the government does not have any such guidelines for food advertising. Foods purchased may be what advertisers say they are, but it largely depends on how consumers interpret the words used.

For example, many in the study associated the word "energy" with protein, vitamins, or sugar — not with "calories," the nutritionally correct choice.

To help remedy the confusion, the FTC will begin hearings in April to investigate comprehensive standards for food advertising.

Hush puppies not for dogs

Now, there was many a yarn told around campfires in the South about the time Hush Puppies became popular. But, both the recipe for Hush Puppies and the story behind it have survived the years, so it may just be true that corn bread batter was first deep-fat fried at outdoor feasts to quiet the hounds.

"Hush, Puppies," their masters reputedly said as they threw the golden brown morsels on the ground. But more than a few, we know, landed in the mouths of men, women and children.

This Bicentennial year you can discover the legendary taste of Hush Puppies. This recipe lists chives as an option, if you want to fancy them up. Although they've traditionally been paired with fried fish, you can serve them as you would bread at any lunch or dinner.

HUSH PUPPIES

- 1¾ cups enriched corn meal
- ¼ cup sifted allpurpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons chopped chives (optional)
- 1 cup milk
- 1 egg, beaten
- Vegetable oil or melted shortening

Sift together dry ingredients; add chives. Stir in milk and egg, mixing just until dry ingredients are moistened. For each hush puppy, drop rounded teaspoonfuls of batter into deep hot oil (375 degrees), frying only a few at a time. Fry until golden brown; drain on absorbent paper.

Seasonal rolls

Hot Cross Buns are a seasonal favorite. Prepare your favorite sweet dough recipe using enriched flour. Add one cup of currants. Shape dough into balls and score top with a sharp knife before rising. After baking, drizzle confectioners' sugar glaze in the cross. Serve buns hot either fresh from the oven or reheated for breakfast.

No fear of flying for Wendy

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A ground hostess?

What in the world is a ground hostess anyway?

For 19-year-old Wendy Wenk, a former automobile mechanic, it is a dream job.

At Palwaukee Airport in Prospect Heights, Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue, she parks airplanes and takes pilots' food and fuel orders. She is a stewardess of sorts at this small airport where the closest thing to a commercial airliner to land there was Arnold Palmer's Lear jet.

She is having the time of her life, and in just three years, Wendy has obtained a private pilot's license. She now is preparing to compete in cross-country air races.

THE SKY, FOR Wendy, is not just a place for clouds. It is a playground where she escapes in her plane to enjoy the view and soar through the air for the thrill of it.

But, it wasn't always that way. When George Priester, owner of Palwaukee Airport, asked her to take the job, Wendy was working as a gas station attendant.

"When I started here, I didn't like riding as a passenger in either of my parents' private planes. They have been private pilots for 15 years," she said.

And then, flying got into her blood.

"I would meet with the visiting pilots for lunch and they'd tell me about their experiences in the air. I began to realize how much fun people had flying planes and thought I would give it a try," Wendy said.

SHE WAS TAKING flying lessons and was just about ready to take a test for her private pilot's license when Wendy had her first and only mishap.

"I was in a rented plane and coming in for a landing at Palwaukee when I lost it somehow and my nose gear collapsed when I hit the runway. I wasn't

Work on Superblock mall to begin June 1

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of a $3.8 million shopping mall, part of the Superblock redevelopment project in downtown Des Plaines, will begin June 1.

The three-story enclosed shopping mall is part of a $12 million joint venture by J. R. Gottlieb and Co., Chicago and Erikson and Stevens Inc., Des Plaines. Construction of a 10-story Superblock office building began last year.

Jerome Gottlieb, president of J. R. Gottlieb, said developers have obtained the $3.8 million loan from Salk, Ward and Salk Inc., Chicago, to pay for construction of the shopping mall.

THE 140,000-SQUARE-FOOT shopping mall will house about 40 stores, and is expected to be completed early next year, Gottlieb said.

Spiegler Department Store, Des Plaines, will be the primary tenant in the shopping center, occupying about 22,000 square-feet on all three floors.

Mel Helms, vice president of J. R. Gottlieb, said developers are talking to other businesses about renting the remaining space in the shopping center.

"We are negotiating with one major restaurant for a location in the mall as well as boutiques, a book store, a florist shop and several clothing stores," he said.

DENNIS STEVENS, project architect, said the shopping center will have two major atriums with natural skylights, stairs at each end of the corridors and escalators in the middle.

"The emphasis will be on natural light, natural woods and natural plants," Stevens said. "There will be smaller, more personal walkways and open glass store fronts wherever possible.

"It will be one of the most modern shopping center designs in the suburbs today," he said.

The office building, expected to be completed later this year, will house th First National Bank of Des Plaines as well as other businesses.

SUPERBLOCK, the first phase in the redevelopment of the downtown area, is bounded on the north by Ellinwood Street, on the south by Prairie Street, on the east by Pearson Street and on the west by Lee Street.

"What we're doing is relocating the prime corner of Des Plaines' downtown area," said Gottlieb. "The new mall should bring another $15 million to $20 million in business to the downtown area alone."

As part of an agreement with the Superblock developers, the city is planning to construct a $1.3 million parking deck to serve the shopping mall and office building. The city also plans to improve the Pearson Street parking lot as well as the streets surrounding Superblock.

Gottlieb said the Superblock developers are planning a second phase of redevelopment in downtown Des Plaines that will accommodate another 20 businesses. Those plans, however, are not completed.

Park View first choice for closing

by DIANE GRANAT

Park View School, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, may be closed next fall to offset lower enrollments and decreased revenues in River Trails Dist. 26.

Supt. John Fridlund recommended closing Park View after it received the lowest ranking in an evaluation of the district's five elementary schools by a committee made up of administrators and a school board member.

Related story on Page 4

In a report to the board of education Tuesday, Fridlund cited Park View's small box-like classrooms, poor storage areas, and inadequate learning center and kindergarten space as rea-

Walker looks down, but he may not be out

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Here is what a defeated Gov. Dan Walker did not say, but was thinking Wednesday when he had to force the words, "Congratulations to Mike Howlett" through his teeth.

He talked about reviewing his options, but refused to state them.

His options are:

- Staying neutral in the November general election fight between Howlett and James R. Thompson.
- Backing Thompson in the race against Howlett.
- Backing Howlett in the race against Thompson (Walker aides got a big laugh from that one).
- Forming a third party in Illinois to run against Howlett and Thompson.

Look at the 700,000 votes Gov. Daniel Walker says he piled up in Illinois Tuesday and then look at his aides. People in the highest levels of the Walker camp already have started to sound out the third party idea.

BESIDES REFUSING to explain his options, the governor also said there are several questions that must be answered before he makes a decision on his political future.

Those questions are:

- What did Howlett do for Sun Steel to earn $15,000 per year for the last 15 years?
- Why did Howlett pay income taxes on $100,000 in campaign contributions several years ago?
- Is it illegal for owners of stock in a harness racing organization to make a campaign loan to a political candidate?

If the answers to those questions, which will come from several on-going investigations, show Howlett did something wrong, the third party bid becomes more realistic.

In the aftermath of the apparent end of the Walker attack on Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization, an observer gets the impression that while the votes have been counted, Walker may be a long way from being out.

HE MAY JUST mount a third party movement, something that is legal in Illinois, just to give Daley one more battle royale. Walker needs 25,000 signatures on petitions and a full slate of candidates, including people running for trustee to the University of Illinois before Aug. 2 to start a third party.

He proved Tuesday he has a lot of friends who do not mind being thrashed at the polls, so it appears all he really needs is the signatures.

Walker probably could not win in a three-way race, but he could get enough Democratic votes to give Thompson a good chance at beating Howlett.

He also may need the third party ruse to give some way of avoiding the liabilities of being a lameduck governor for the next nine months.

WALKER, WHO MADE much sound and fury with the legislature in his first three years could be the lamest of the lame ducks in the eyes of the lawmakers who know Walker is on his way out soon.

Without the third party movement, Walker's anticipated thundering over the state budget and other legislative matters will sound very hollow.

And while the Walker-Howlett race might be the most interesting to ponder, there are some items of note to mention in other races around the area.

In the 10th Congressional District, Samuel H. Young and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, go into their "rubber match," in what has been a six-year campaign in the district.

YOUNG PROVED to be the top vote getter in three-way Republican race Tuesday. He showed, despite some claims by party regulars in the district, that he is the man the people want to face Mikva in November.

In the Republican presidential primary, Ronald Reagan supporters, even with strong name recognition in their favor, failed to win a single delegate-candidate in the 12th Congressional District. U.S. Rep. Philip M.

Howlett sues to stop Walker probe

by KURT BAER

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett filed suit Wednesday against Gov. Daniel Walker to stop an investigation of $100,000 in loans Howlett received in 1972 from a company owning race track stock.

The investigation is politically motivated and was ordered by Walker to discredit Howlett during the recent gubernatorial primary campaign, the suit charges.

The suit asks the Cook County Circuit Court to prevent the Walker administration from pursuing the probe.

Instead, it requests the court appoint "independent fact finders of unquestioned impartiality" to conduct the investigation.

THE LOANS ARE being investigated by Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano and others at Walker's request because Illinois law prohibits race track stockholders from contributing to political campaigns.

Howlett received the loans from the Nationwide Acceptance Corp., Chicago, which owns 6,844 shares of stock

SUPERBLOCK WILL soon be part of the Des Plaines landscape now that developers of the downtown redevelopment project have obtained financing for the three-story enclosed shopping mall estimated to cost $3.8 million. Construction will begin in June.

River Trails fires 30 teachers

Thirty nontenured teachers in River Trails Dist. 26 will receive dismissal notices for the 1976-77 school year.

The Dist. 26 Board of Education voted Tuesday to notify all the district's nontenured teachers that they will not be rehired for the coming school year in an attempt to offset declining enrollment and decreased revenues.

The cutbacks will reduce the district's teaching staff from 170 to 140.

Supt. John Fridlund said unlike other school districts which send blanket dismissal notices to all nonttnured teachers in the spring and rehire some teachers during the summer, none of the released Dist. 26 teachers will be asked back next year.

The board Tuesday also approved an increase in class size from 20 to 26 pupils, which would result in the elimination of 21 teaching positions.

Fridlund said the nine additional teachers will be released because of cutbacks in federally-funded programs and a reduction of the teaching force at Nipper School, 1101 E. Gregory St., Des Plaines. Nipper School serves children from Maryville Academy in Des Plaines, a facility for wards of the state.

George Chase, River Trails teachers' union president, had no comment Wednesday on the teacher cutbacks, but added the union will make a statement Friday after a meeting with teachers.

Dist. 59 race now contested; 2 more enter

Incumbent Erwin Poklacki and newcomer Charles B. Canupp Jr. have filed for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board election in April, making it a contested race.

Incumbents Judith Zanca and Emil Bahnmaier filed nominating petitions in February. Three 3-year positions will be filled in the election April 10.

Poklacki, 1223 S. Fernandez Ave., Arlington Heights, was appointed to the board in July. He previously served on the board from 1971-74 and was president of the Dist. 59 School Community Council before accepting the board position last summer.

Canupp, 262 Greenbrir, Elk Grove Village, is a member of the Rupley School PTO where his two children attend. He has lived in the district four years.

Mrs. Zanca is the current board president and Bahnmaier is completing his first three-year term.

Baby Town zoning ruling called 'unfair' by owner

The owner of a day care center in Des Plaines has charged city officials with "unjust and unequal" application of city zoning laws.

Lorraine Angell, owner of Baby Town Day Care Center, 2329 Birch St., made the charge as a result of the city council's recent denial of a special-use permit with a variation to allow her to expand her operation.

In addition to denying the request, the city is involved in a Circuit Court battle with Mrs. Angell over whether her present operation should be allowed in a residential area.

IN A LETTER TO city officials, Mrs. Angell said she has been treated unfairly because the city is allowing a nursery school to operate without a special use permit in a former church at 1280 Algonquin Rd.

Mrs. Angell said the nursery school, Tender Love and Care, is located in a residential area and the building is "no longer a church in any way, shape or form. It should have to apply for a special-use permit if it is to continue operating."

Michael Richardson, city director of planning and zoning Wednesday said he believes Mrs. Angell's complaint is "groundless."

"The day care center on Algonquin Road is not a residential structure, it's a church," he said. "If she were to operate her day-care center out of a church or in a commercial area she could do it without a special-use permit."

IN ADDITION TO the complaint about the nursery school, Mrs. Angell has lodged complaints against Ald. Joseph Szabo, 1st, and Ald. Thomas Koplos, 1st.

She has charged that Szabo, a mason contractor, is in violation of city zoning ordinances because he operates his business out of a residence at 385 Graceland Ave.

Szabo was unavailable for comment Wednesday, but one city official said the use is legal since Szabo has operated out of the location for more than 20 years, long before a city ordinance prohibiting it was enacted.

Mrs. Angell said Koplos should have abstained from voting on her request for a special-use permit since he is the owner of a building at 1159 Algonquin Rd. that houses Miss Mary's Teeny Town, another day-care center.

KOPLOS SAID, however, he does not believe his action in voting against the Baby Town request was improper.

"I'm not going to lose any sleep over this because I talked with the city attorney before I did anything," he said. "He said it was all right if I owned the building as long as I had no interest in the business."

"I have nothing-whatever to do with the business," he said. "All I do is collect the rent."

Mrs. Angell said she will not drop the complaints until she is given an opportunity to publicly air her grievances at a city council meeting.

"I will expect them to hear the complaints," she said. "I will have a sizable number of objectors with me whenever the meeting is."

Park View top choice of Dist. 26 for closing

sons for its low rating.

THE BOARD Tuesday approved an administration plan to close one elementary school, cut 21 teachers and increase class size from 20 to 28 pupils per class, saving the district about $300,000.

Dist. 26 will face bankruptcy by 1977-78 if spending remains at the current level and revenues are not increased. In addition, enrollment is expected to drop from 2,375 pupils this year to 2,257 for 1976-77, and to 2,023 by the 1980-81 school year.

The board will not make a final decision on which school will be shut down until April 6, Board Pres. Leora Rosen said. Mrs. Rosen said a public hearing will be held at the April 6 meeting before a decision is made.

The evaluation of which school to close was conducted by two central office administrators, a building administrator and one board member. The committee used a weighted ranking system prepared by Skokie Dist. 68.

BOARD MEMBER William Haase asked for another ranking of the schools by an independent committee. He suggested a five person committee consisting of an architect, an education professor, and administrators and school board members from outside Dist. 26.

"While the board members in Dist. 26 are qualified to evaluate the schools, the public might argue that some people were biased," Haase said Wednesday. "Let's get people from outside the district to use the same criteria and come up with independent results."

Fridlund said he will appoint an independent committee and its findings will be used in the final evaluation of which school to close.

"The first report was a dry run," Fridlund said. "If the five people use those guidelines and come up with different results we will present them to the board."

Board member Peggy Golden said she expected the independent committee to come up with the same results.

"I EXPECT THAT if we have a second group do an evaluation using our criteria, we will be able to reproduce similar results if the rating instrument is valid," Mrs. Golden said.

The method used to evaluate the schools consisted of nine criteria for building characteristics.

The schools were judged on their flexible and effective space for educational purposes and support services, adaptability to enrollment gain or loss, need for plant maintenance and improvements, traffic safety patterns and travel distance for pupils among others.

Park View received the lowest rating, followed by Bond School, 350 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect. Fridlund said he would prefer to keep Bond open because of its unique educational program and architectural design.

"IT HAS ALWAYS been obvious that the physical arrangement at Bond (six classrooms clustered around each of two Learning Centers) represented the latest in educational/architectural thought," Fridlund said in his report to the board.

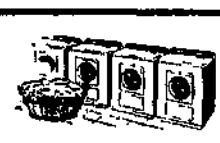

"If a building must be closed and the first and most important consideration is what happens inside the school door and not the address of the school, then the building to keep open is Bond School," he said.

Park View has an enrollment of 376 pupils. The 18-classroom school was build in 1966.

Park View Principal Tomkins Barnhart said if Park View is closed next fall, students will attend Indian Grove, Bond and Feehanville schools.

Firdlund said it will cost at least $10,000 to transport Park View students to other schools.

Fridlund also said the district hopes to rent whichever school is vacated, which would provide additional revenue for the district.

Farmers get bigger profit selling soil than tilling it

by JUDIE BLACK

Back in the 1920s when Daniel Bergman bought his 200 acres of land along Ela and Algonquin roads he paid less than $200 an acre. Last year a neighbor sold some of his land for $6,000 an acre.

Farmers "simply can't afford not to sell at $3,000 to $10,000 an acre," Bergman's son, Harold, said. The younger Bergman farms 38 acres, that his 94-year-old father still owns.

Some of the elder Bergman's contemporaries have sold their farms in Palatine and surrounding townships for significant profits and then moved Downstate to retire or to buy cheaper land and begin farming again.

"THERE'S A TREMENDOUS pressure on farmers to convert their land from farm to commercial," said Bill Whiteside, farm adviser for Cook County extension office in Tinley Park. "There's just no way under the sun a farmer can resist a super fantastic deal like 600 per cent return on his initial investment."

Because of farmers' inability to resist and the continuing urban sprawl, the number of producing farm acres in Cook County has dwindled, Whiteside said. The county has 622,000 acres of land including public, private, commercial and agricultural.

In the three years from 1971 to 1974, the number of producing farm acres dwindled from 3,561 acres in Palatine Township to 3,000 acres in 1974, according to the Illinois Dept. of Agriculture.

During those same three years, 294 fewer acres produced corn in Palatine, 711 fewer acres produced soybeans and 78 fewer acres yielded alfalfa hay.

THE "SUPERFANTASTIC deal" Bergman's neighbor got represents farmland estimated not for its agricultural use in producing corn and soybeans but its commercial potential in apartment complexes and shopping centers.

That formula works well when a farmer is ready to sell, but it is also used in assessing estate tax liability. Most farmers think that's unfair.

If the younger Bergman were to inherit his father's 38 acres of land, he might have to sell the land to pay the federal estate tax. If the elder Bergman's estate were valued at the price his neighbor got last spring, the younger Bergman would face taxes on an estate valued at at least $168,000 ($228,000 less the $60,000 federal estate exemption).

Most farmers are "hoping and praying" that exemption will soon be increased, said Leonard W. Schultz, a Woodstock farmer and board member of the Illinois Agriculture Assn. (IAA). "And if inflation keeps going the way it has been, (who knows) what would be enough?"

SCHULTZ SAID THE IAA hasn't endorsed any of the 206 bills currently being considered in Congress which call for estate exemption increases ranging from $150,000 to $200,000.

One of the bills would value farm land at its current use rather than its market value. The bill, introduced by Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Tex., also would increase the estate exemption to $200,000 and make it available to all persons, not just farmers.

Burleson's bill also would raise the marital deduction of 50 per cent to 50 per cent plus $100,000. The Library of Congress estimates that if Burleson's bill were adopted and applied to everyone, the U.S. Treasury would lose as much as $2.52 billion a year in tax revenue.

President Ford has proposed raising the exemption to $150,000 and allowing the estates, inheritors 20 years to pay the tax at reduced interest rates.

Such proposals don't placate farmers contemplating the ultimate loss of their farmlands and the farming tradition fading from their families, Whiteside said. Progressive Farmer Magazine estimates from 200,000 to 400,000 farms will disappear during the next 20 years unless something is done to encourage young persons to enter farming and stay.

"It's very sad to think of succeeding generations who have a farming past but have no land they can afford to keep," Whiteside said. "Land is just something you can't create because you want it."

No fear of flying for Wendy

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A ground hostess?

What in the world is a ground hostess anyway?

For 19-year-old Wendy Wenk, a former automobile mechanic, it is a dream job.

At Palwaukee Airport in Prospect Heights, Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue, she parks airplanes and takes pilots' food and fuel orders. She is a stewardess of sorts at this small airport where the closest thing to a commercial airliner to land there was Arnold Palmer's Lear jet.

She is having the time of her life, and in just three years, Wendy has obtained a private pilot's license. She now is preparing to compete in cross-country air races.

THE SKY, FOR Wendy, is not just a place for clouds. It is a playground where she escapes in her plane to enjoy the view and soar through the air for the thrill of it.

But, it wasn't always that way. When George Priester, owner of Palwaukee Airport, asked her to take the job, Wendy was working as a gas station attendant.

"When I started here, I didn't like riding as a passenger in either of my parents' private planes. They have been private pilots for 15 years," she said.

And then, flying got into her blood.

"I would meet with the visiting pilots for lunch and they'd tell me about their experiences in the air. I began to realize how much fun people had flying planes and thought I would give it a try," Wendy said.

SHE WAS TAKING flying lessons and was just about ready to take a test for her private pilot's license when Wendy had her first and only mishap.

"I was in a rented plane and coming in for a landing at Palwaukee when I lost it somehow and my nose gear collapsed when I hit the runway. I wasn't

Bicentennial chief should resign: Cole

Wheeling Trustee John C. Cole is calling for the resignation of Kathi Bellwoar as chairman of the Wheeling Bicentennial Commission.

Cole asked for Mrs. Bellwoar's resignation at a Tuesday meeting between the commission and the village board. The two groups discussed the problems leading to the village's purchase of $7,000 worth of tickets to a Wheeling night performance of the Medinah Shrine Circus last week. Another meeting to resolve problems is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

The commission agreed to sell about 4,000 circus tickets as a Bicentennial fund-raising project, but only half actually were sold. As a result, the village legally was obligated to purchase the remaining tickets and distribute them free to Wheeling residents.

COLE SAID Wednesday he is not asking for Mrs. Bellwoar's resignation because the village was committed to buying the unsold tickets.

"I've asked her to resign because of the procedures used in handling and accounting for the tickets. The methods used were not very businesslike for that kind of thing," he said.

Mrs. Bellwoar Wednesday said she would not resign.

Village officials said 353 tickets cannot be accounted for, of an additional 460 tickets mailed to village residents were neither purchased nor returned.

Trustee Gilbert Monoson said Cole has "raised some valid questions."

"I DON'T KNOW if I agree with his (Cole's) asking Mrs. Bellwoar to resign, but the tickets have to be accounted for. If the circus tickets were distributed in an irresponsible manner, then I will second his motion for her to resign," Monoson said.

Monoson said Mrs. Bellwoar should meet with village officials to find out "where the tickets are and make as full a report as possible as to the money expended."

"If inaccuracies and failure of communication do exist between the commission and the board, Mrs. Bellwoar should be given every chance to present her side. If it's the fault of the trustees, we should chalk it up to experience and set guidelines so it never happens again," he said.

CARS JAM Dundee Road in Wheeling during typical rush hour traffic. Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher has called the traffic situation on Dundee Road "horrendous." A traffic study by Northwestern University is expected to be complete in May, giving village police guidelines for traffic enforcement and control. The study group said Dundee Road may be handling twice the traffic it should.

Walker looks down, but he may not be out

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Here is what a defeated Gov. Dan Walker did not say, but was thinking Wednesday when he had to force the words, "Congratulations to Mike Howlett" through his teeth.

He talked about reviewing his options, but refused to state them.

His options are:

- Staying neutral in the November general election fight between Howlett and James R. Thompson.
- Backing Thompson in the race against Howlett.
- Backing Howlett in the race against Thompson (Walker aides got a big laugh from that one).
- Forming a third party in Illinois to run against Howlett and Thompson.

Look at the 700,000 votes Gov. Daniel Walker says he piled up in Illinois Tuesday and then look at his aides. People in the highest levels of the Walker camp already have started to sound out the third party idea.

BESIDES REFUSING to explain his options, the governor also said there are several questions that must be answered before he makes a decision on his political future.

Those questions are:

- What did Howlett do for Sun Steel to earn $15,000 per year for the last 15 years?
- Why did Howlett pay income taxes on $100,000 in campaign contributions several years ago?
- Is it illegal for owners of stock in a harness racing organization to make a campaign loan to a political candidate?

If the answers to those questions, which will come from several on-going investigations, show Howlett did something wrong, the third party bid becomes more realistic.

In the aftermath of the apparent end of the Walker attack on Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization, an observer gets the impression that while the votes have been counted, Walker may be a long way from being out.

HE MAY JUST mount a third party movement, something that is legal in Illinois, just to give Daley one more battle royale. Walker needs 25,000 signatures on petitions and a full slate of candidates, including people running for trustee to the University of Illinois before Aug. 2 to start a third party.

He proved Tuesday he has a lot of friends who do not mind being thrashed at the polls, so it appears all he really needs is the signatures.

Walker probably could not win in a three-way race, but he could get enough Democratic votes to give Thompson a good chance at beating Howlett.

He also may need the third party ruse to give some way of avoiding the liabilities of being a lameduck governor for the next nine months.

WALKER, WHO MADE much sound and fury with the legislature in his first three years could be the lamest of the lame ducks in the eyes of the lawmakers who know Walker is on his way out soon.

Without the third party movement, Walker's anticipated thundering over the state budget and other legislative matters will sound very hollow.

And while the Walker-Howlett race might be the most interesting to ponder, there are some items of note to mention in other races around the area.

In the 10th Congressional District, Samuel H. Young and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, go into their "rubber match," in what has been a six-year campaign in the district.

YOUNG PROVED to be the top vote getter in three-way Republican race Tuesday. He showed, despite some claims by party regulars in the district, that he is the man the people want to face Mikva in November.

In the Republican presidential primary, Ronald Reagan supporters, even with strong name recognition in their favor, failed to win a single delegate-candidate in the 12th Congressional District. U.S. Rep. Philip M.

Howlett sues to stop Walker probe

by KURT BAER

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett filed suit Wednesday against Gov. Daniel Walker to stop an investigation of $100,000 in loans Howlett received in 1972 from a company owning race track stock.

The investigation is politically motivated and was ordered by Walker to discredit Howlett during the recent gubernatorial primary campaign, the suit charges.

The suit asks the Cook County Circuit Court to prevent the Walker administration from pursuing the probe.

Instead, it requests the court appoint "independent fact finders of unquestioned impartiality" to conduct the investigation.

THE LOANS ARE being investigated by Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano and others at Walker's request because Illinois law prohibits race track stockholders from contributing to political campaigns.

Howlett received the loans from the Nationwide Acceptance Corp., Chicago, which owns 6,844 shares of stock

Solution to financial problems

Motz sees need for budget cuts

by LINDA PUNCH

Wheeling's new village manager Wednesday said village budget cuts will be necessary because "tax revenues are not enough to justify the whims and fancies of the people."

Named village manager Tuesday, Clarence Motz said he expects to reduce village expenditures as a solution to current financial problems. He takes over the post May 1.

"Local government is a business. We don't operate for profit, but we can't operate at a deficit," he said.

In January, Wheeling issued $100,000 in tax anticipation warrants to cover unexpected increases in village operating expenses.

Motz said industrial growth is one of his major concerns.

"I THINK THE area has terrific potential. I'm going to pursue it as much as I can, but be very selective. What the community gets is important, not only in the present but in the future," he said.

Motz said he will present no specific plans for the village until he is able to evaluate the current situation.

"There's going to be a study made of each individual department and there's going to be changes. I'm going to make evaluations and call the shots as I see them. I'm not a hatchet man but I expect a job well done," he said.

Motz, 55, currently city manager of Stanton, Calif., will replace George Passolt, who was fired by the board in October. Passolt has agreed to stay on the job until Motz takes over.

In announcing Motz' appointment, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said Motz "has a background of being a strong administrator who carefully scrutinizes all financial expenditures" including a "demonstrated record for turning deficits into surpluses."

Motz has more than 20 years of local government administrative experience, including 12 years in city manager positions. He has been city manager of Stanton since 1974. Prior to that he was manager in Blaine, Minn , for two years.

Parks to review annex referendum

Wheeling Park District officials tonight are expected to discuss plans for a referendum to annex apartment complexes on Willow Road in Wheeling Township.

Park District Director David Phillips Wednesday said the board will review the status of the annexation referendum, which was postponed in December.

He said the district has succeeded in gaining a corridor through the 20-acre Lake Run apartment complex, permitting annexation of the Gladstone Glen apartments and the Quincy Park quadrominiums. Without the corridor, Quincy Park, which has the larger tax base of the two complexes, would remain isolated from the district. All three complexes are located adjacent to one another on Willow Road east of Wolf Road.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

THE PARK DISTRICT began plans to conduct a referendum in the area after residents of Gladstone Glen and Quincy Park rejected a simlar annexation effort in September by the River Trails Park District.

Lake Run apartments cannot be included in an annexation referendum because the complex is more than 20 acres in size. State law prohibits annexation of parcels larger than 20 acres without a special agreement with property owners.

Park district officials said the owners of the complex do not want to be in the Wheeling Park District, but have been "receptive" to granting a corridor through the district, linking Gladstone Glen with Quincy Park. District officials believe the two complexes together will provide a large enough tax base to support new recreational facilities in the area.

State to study flooding potential along Rte. 53

Potential flooding problems caused by the extension of Ill. Rte. 53 into Lake County are being investigated by local and state officials.

Clarice Rech, Buffalo Grove trustee and Lawrence Oppenheimer, Wheeling director of public works, have expressed concern about drainage and flooding problems that may be caused by the extension.

The Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Soil Conservation Service of Lake County have sent letters indicating their concern to the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

PLANS FOR Ill. Rte. 53 call for the highway to continue north through Lake County to link up with an access road to Interstate 94. The route will become a major access road to northern recreation areas when completed.

Mrs. Rech said this week she was worried whether the road construction will disturb natural wetlands in Lake County, and said the elimination of natural retention could lead to flooding problems further downstream in Buffalo Creek.

Oppenheimer said last month he wrote a letter to the transportation department ,stating that Wheeling officials are "looking for a guarantee the construction of the freeway will not in any way" stymie efforts to control flooding in the village.

Oppenheimer said he wanted more information on provisions to control increased flooding caused by roadway drainage into Buffalo Creek and Indian Creek.

HE ALSO ASKED whether the state will help fund construction of a detention basin planned in the Checker Road area. He said a transportation department report on the freeway states the highway construction "may result in downstream flood hazards."

The transportation department has prepared a preliminary environmental impact statement on the effects of the roadway construction, but a statement indicating final construction plans has not yet come out, said Arnold Seaberg, Buffalo Grove village engineer.

Seaberg said the roadway will pass through the periphery of several low-lying areas, but said the project will have a "minimal impact" on flooding in Buffalo Grove.

Ron Gebhardt, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, said the preliminary construction plans showed a disturbance of the swamp areas and low marshes, causing a possible 50 per cent increase in the flow of water in Buffalo Creek.

He said he agreed with the Metropolitan Sanitary District's objections about possible increased flooding, and said he was concerned that filling in the low-lying areas would result in less storage for stormwater run-off.

Political veterans win in Lake County election

Final Lake County primary election totals, Wednesday show several political veterans winning county races.

Robert H. "Mickey" Babcox won the Republican nomination for coroner with 32.2 per cent of the vote total. Babcox is a former Lake County Coroner.

Robert J. Milton will be the Republican candidate for Lake County auditor, winning a close race against Clyde Barnes Jr. Milton is a former county Republican Central Committee chairman.

State Rep. Daniel Pierce won renomination as the Democratic candidate for the 32nd District with 58 per cent of the vote. Marlene Damato also was nominated with 24.4 per cent of the vote. C. Casey Kuklinski ran third.

OTHER DEMOCRATIC winners were:

- Mary McCrea Cicerle for circuit court clerk with 53.4 per cent of the vote.
- John Miholic for coroner with 37 per cent of the vote.
- Lawrence A. Dennis for recorder of deeds with 54 per cent of the vote.
- Dennis Ryan for state's attorney with 53 per cent of the vote.
- Dist. 5 county board candidates Marcella Jewell and Gerald Roberts with 27.5 and 28.1 per cent of the vote respectively.
- James J. Cummings for Congress in the 13th District with 50.5 per cent of the vote in Lake County and larger margins in McHenry and Kane counties.
- Associate Judge Leonard Brody for circuit court judge in the 19th judicial district, which includes Lake and McHenry counties.

Other Republicans winning nominations were Dawn Marie Mardoian for circuit court clerk with 38.7 per cent of the vote and District 5 county board candidates Herman "Dusty" Rhodes with 21.5 per cent of the vote, and Paul Gerst with 20.5 per cent of the vote.

Farmers gain big profits selling soil, not tilling it

by JUDIE BLACK

Back in the 1920s when Daniel Bergman bought his 200 acres of land along Ela and Algonquin roads he paid less than $200 an acre. Last year a neighbor sold some of his land for $6,000 an acre.

Farmers "simply can't afford not to sell at $3,000 to $10,000 an acre," Bergman's son, Harold, said. The younger Bergman farms 38 acres, that his 94-year-old father still owns.

Some of the elder Bergman's contemporaries have sold their farms in Palatine and surrounding townships for significant profits and then moved Downstate to retire or to buy cheaper land and begin farming again.

"THERE'S A TREMENDOUS pressure on farmers to convert their land from farm to commercial," said Bill Whiteside, farm adviser for Cook County extension office in Tinley Park. "There's just no way under the sun a farmer can resist a super fantastic deal like 600 per cent return on his initial investment."

Because of farmers' inability to resist and the continuing urban sprawl, the number of producing farm acres in Cook County has dwindled, Whiteside said. The county has 622,000 acres of land including public, private, commercial and agricultural.

In the three years from 1971 to 1974, the number of producing farm acres dwindled from 3,561 acres in Palatine Township to 3,000 acres in 1974, according to the Illinois Dept. of Agriculture.

During those same three years, 294 fewer acres produced corn in Palatine, 711 fewer acres produced soybeans and 78 fewer acres yielded alfalfa hay.

THE "SUPERFANTASTIC deal" Bergman's neighbor got represents farmland estimated not for its agricultural use in producing corn and soybeans but its commercial potential in apartment complexes and shopping centers.

That formula works well when a farmer is ready to sell, but it is also used in assessing estate tax liability. Most farmers think that's unfair.

If the younger Bergman were to inherit his father's 38 acres of land, he might have to sell the land to pay the federal estate tax. If the elder Bergman's estate were valued at the price his neighbor got last spring, the younger Bergman would face taxes on an estate valued at at least $168,000 ($228,000 less the $60,000 federal estate exemption).

Most farmers are "hoping and praying" that exemption will soon be increased, said Leonard W. Schultz, a Woodstock farmer and board member of the Illinois Agriculture Assn. (IAA). "And if inflation keeps going the way it has been, (who knows) what would be enough?"

SCHULTZ SAID THE IAA hasn't endorsed any of the 206 bills currently being considered in Congress which call for estate exemption increases ranging from $150,000 to $200,000.

One of the bills would value farm land at its current use rather than its market value. The bill, introduced by Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Tex., also would increase the estate exemption to $200,000 and make it available to all persons, not just farmers.

Burleson's bill also would raise the marital deduction of 50 per cent to 50 per cent plus $100,000. The Library of Congress estimates that if Burleson's bill were adopted and applied to everyone, the U.S. Treasury would lose as much as $2.52 billion a year in tax revenue.

President Ford has proposed raising the exemption to $150,000 and allowing the estates, inheritors 20 years to pay the tax at reduced interest rates.

Such proposals don't placate farmers contemplating the ultimate loss of their farmlands and the farming tradition fading from their families, Whiteside said. Progressive Farmer Magazine estimates from 200,000 to 400,000 farms will disappear during the next 20 years unless something is done to encourage young persons to enter farming and stay.

"It's very sad to think of succeeding generations who have a farming past but have no land they can afford to keep," Whiteside said. "Land is just something you can't create because you want it."

No fear of flying for Wendy

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A ground hostess?

What in the world is a ground hostess anyway?

For 19-year-old Wendy Wenk, a former automobile mechanic, it is a dream job.

At Palwaukee Airport in Prospect Heights, Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue, she parks airplanes and takes pilots' food and fuel orders. She is a stewardess of sorts at this small airport where the closest thing to a commercial airliner to land there was Arnold Palmer's Lear jet.

She is having the time of her life, and in just three years, Wendy has obtained a private pilot's license. She now is preparing to compete in cross-country air races.

THE SKY, FOR Wendy, is not just a place for clouds. It is a playground where she escapes in her plane to enjoy the view and soar through the air for the thrill of it.

But, it wasn't always that way. When George Priester, owner of Palwaukee Airport, asked her to take the job, Wendy was working as a gas station attendant.

"When I started here, I didn't like riding as a passenger in either of my parents' private planes. They have been private pilots for 15 years," she said.

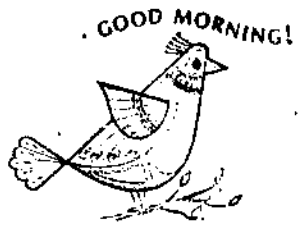

And then, flying got into her blood.

"I would meet with the visiting pilots for lunch and they'd tell me about their experiences in the air. I began to realize how much fun people had flying planes and thought I would give it a try," Wendy said.

SHE WAS TAKING flying lessons and was just about ready to take a test for her private pilot's license when Wendy had her first and only mishap.

"I was in a rented plane and coming in for a landing at Palwaukee when I lost it somehow and my nose gear collapsed when I hit the runway. I wasn't

PLUNGING TO VICTORY are eager participants in a swim meet sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Park District. The meet included participants from 12 park district teams in the Northwest and North suburbs. The meet was held at the Aquadome.

Plan panel OKs Surety development

Plans for a 65-acre single-family development near Strathmore Grove received approval from the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission Monday.

Surety Homes of Bolingbrook wants to annex the property at the northeast corner of Ill. Rte. 83 and Busch Road. The Lake County development would include 193 single-family lots for an estimated residential population of 786 residents.

Surety's proposal calls for an extension of Thompson Boulevard in Strathmore Grove to serve as the major thoroughfare of the new development. A second major street, Brandywyn Lane, came under discussion because several commissioners wanted to widen the street from 27 feet to 35 feet.

Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg said the original 27-foot width would present "a real problem" because of its proximity to Ill. Rte. 83 and a proposed park site for the development. However the commission voted to retain the 27 foot width.

The street would also connect a proposed school site north of the Surety development.

SURETY PLANS a park donation of slightly more than seven acres with approximately five acres available for "active use" recreation, said Richard Kaufman, Surety vice president.

The park donation will include an approximately one-acre tot lot at the Northeast corner of the property, which will adjoin Strathmore Grove.

The donation also includes approximately six acres at the southeast corner of the property, with two of those acres to be used for water retention during heavy storms.

Although both the tot lot and the donation at the southeast corner will be located next to detention areas, Kaufman said the adjoining park land will be above high water at all times.

Surety also received approval for a rezoning of 18 acres for a higher density use from the Buffalo Grove Zoning Board of appeals. The zoning board also voted 3-3 to retain the 27 feet width for Brandywyn Lane.

The recommendations of the plan commission and the zoning board of appeals now go to the village board, which will hold a public hearing on the Surety proposal Monday at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 150 Raupp Blvd.

Political vets win in Lake County

Final Lake County primary election totals, Wednesday show several political veterans winning county races.

Robert H. "Mickey" Babcox won the Republican nomination for coroner with 32.2 per cent of the vote total. Babcox is a former Lake County Coroner.

Robert J. Milton will be the Republican candidate for Lake County auditor, winning a close race against Clyde Barnes Jr. Milton is a former county Republican Central Committee chairman.

State Rep. Daniel Pierce won renomination as the Democratic candidate for the 32nd District with 58 per cent of the vote. Marlene Damato also was nominated with 24.4 per cent of the vote. C. Casey Kuklinski ran third.

OTHER DEMOCRATIC winners were:

- Mary McCrea Cicerle for circuit court clerk with 53.4 per cent of the vote.
- John Miholic for coroner with 37 per cent of the vote.
- Lawrence A. Dennis for recorder of deeds with 54 per cent of the vote.
- Dennis Ryan for state's attorney with 53 per cent of the vote.
- Dist. 5 county board candidates Marcella Jewell and Gerald Roberts with 27.5 and 28.1 per cent of the vote respectively.
- James J. Cummings for Congress in the 13th District with 50.5 per cent of the vote in Lake County and larger margins in McHenry and Kane counties.
- Associate Judge Leonard Brody for circuit court judge in the 19th judicial district, which includes Lake and McHenry counties.

Other Republicans winning nominations were Dawn Marie Mardoian for circuit court clerk with 38.7 per cent of the vote and District 5 county board candidates Herman "Dusty" Rhodes with 21.5 per cent of the vote, and Paul Gerst with 20.5 per cent of the vote.

Walker looks down, but he may not be out

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Here is what a defeated Gov. Dan Walker did not say, but was thinking Wednesday when he had to force the words, "Congratulations to Mike Howlett" through his teeth.

He talked about reviewing his options, but refused to state them.

His options are:

- Staying neutral in the November general election fight between Howlett and James R. Thompson.
- Backing Thompson in the race against Howlett.
- Backing Howlett in the race against Thompson (Walker aides got a big laugh from that one).
- Forming a third party in Illinois to run against Howlett and Thompson.

Look at the 700,000 votes Gov. Daniel Walker says he piled up in Illinois Tuesday and then look at his aides. People in the highest levels of the Walker camp already have started to sound out the third party idea.

BESIDES REFUSING to explain his options, the governor also said there are several questions that must be answered before he makes a decision on his political future.

Those questions are:

- What did Howlett do for Sun Steel to earn $15,000 per year for the last 15 years?
- Why did Howlett pay income taxes on $100,000 in campaign contributions several years ago?
- Is it illegal for owners of stock in a harness racing organization to make a campaign loan to a political candidate?

If the answers to those questions, which will come from several on-going investigations, show Howlett did something wrong, the third party bid becomes more realistic.

In the aftermath of the apparent end of the Walker attack on Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization, an observer gets the impression that while the votes have been counted, Walker may be a long way from being out.

HE MAY JUST mount a third party movement, something that is legal in Illinois, just to give Daley one more battle royale. Walker needs 25,000 signatures on petitions and a full slate of candidates, including people running for trustee to the University of Illinois before Aug. 2 to start a third party.

He proved Tuesday he has a lot of friends who do not mind being thrashed at the polls, so it appears all he really needs is the signatures.

Walker probably could not win in a three-way race, but he could get enough Democratic votes to give Thompson a good chance at beating Howlett.

He also may need the third party ruse to give some way of avoiding the liabilities of being a lameduck governor for the next nine months.

WALKER, WHO MADE much sound and fury with the legislature in his first three years could be the lamest of the lame ducks in the eyes of the lawmakers who know Walker is on his way out soon.

Without the third party movement, Walker's anticipated thundering over the state budget and other legislative matters will sound very hollow.

And while the Walker-Howlett race might be the most interesting to ponder, there are some items of note to mention in other races around the area.

In the 10th Congressional District, Samuel H. Young and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, go into their "rubber match," in what has been a six-year campaign in the district.

YOUNG PROVED to be the top vote getter in three-way Republican race Tuesday. He showed, despite some claims by party regulars in the district, that he is the man the people want to face Mikva in November.

In the Republican presidential primary, Ronald Reagan supporters, even with strong name recognition in their favor, failed to win a single delegate-candidate in the 12th Congressional District. U.S. Rep. Philip M.

Howlett sues to stop Walker probe

by KURT BAER

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett filed suit Wednesday against Gov. Daniel Walker to stop an investigation of $100,000 in loans Howlett received in 1972 from a company owning race track stock.

The investigation is politically motivated and was ordered by Walker to discredit Howlett during the recent gubernatorial primary campaign, the suit charges.

The suit asks the Cook County Circuit Court to prevent the Walker administration from pursuing the probe.

Instead, it requests the court appoint "independent fact finders of unquestioned impartiality" to conduct the investigation.

THE LOANS ARE being investigated by Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano and others at Walker's request because Illinois law prohibits race track stockholders from contributing to political campaigns.

Howlett received the loans from the Nationwide Acceptance Corp., Chicago, which owns 6,844 shares of stock

Farmers profit from selling soil

by JUDIE BLACK

Back in the 1920s when Daniel Bergman bought his 200 acres of land along Ela and Algonquin roads he paid less than $200 an acre. Last year a neighbor sold some of his land for $6,000 an acre.

Farmers "simply can't afford not to sell at $3,000 to $10,000 an acre," Bergman's son, Harold, said. The younger Bergman farms 38 acres, that his 94-year-old father still owns.

Some of the elder Bergman's contemporaries have sold their farms in Palatine and surrounding townships for significant profits and then moved Downstate to retire or to buy cheaper land and begin farming again

"THERE'S A TREMENDOUS pressure on farmers to convert their land from farm to commercial," said Bill Whiteside, farm adviser for Cook County extension office in Tinley Park. "There's just no way under the sun a farmer can resist a super fantastic deal like 600 per cent return on his initial investment."

Because of farmers' inability to resist and the continuing urban sprawl, the number of producing farm acres in Cook County has dwindled, Whiteside said. The county has 622,000 acres of land including public, private, commercial and agricultural.

In the three years from 1971 to 1974, the number of producing farm acres dwindled from 3,561 acres in Palatine Township to 3,000 acres in 1974, according to the Illinois Dept. of Agriculture.

During those same three years, 294 fewer acres produced corn in Palatine, 711 fewer acres produced soybeans and 78 fewer acres yielded alfalfa hay.

THE "SUPERFANTASTIC deal" Bergman's neighbor got represents farmland estimated not for its agricultural use in producing corn and soybeans but its commercial potential in apartment complexes and shopping centers.

That formula works well when a farmer is ready to sell, but it is also used in assessing estate tax liability. Most farmers think that's unfair.

If the younger Bergman were to inherit his father's 38 acres of land, he might have to sell the land to pay the federal estate tax. If the elder Bergman's estate were valued at the price his neighbor got last spring, the younger Bergman would face taxes on an estate valued at at least $168,000 ($228,000 less the $60,000 federal estate exemption).

Most farmers are "hoping and praying" that exemption will soon be increased, said Leonard W. Schultz, a Woodstock farmer and board member of the Illinois Agriculture Assn. (IAA). "And if inflation keeps going the way it has been, (who knows) what would be enough?"

SCHULTZ SAID THE IAA hasn't endorsed any of the 206 bills currently being considered in Congress which call for estate exemption increases ranging from $150,000 to $200,000.

One of the bills would value farm land at its current use rather than its market value The bill, introduced by Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Tex., also would increase the estate exemption to $200,000 and make it available to all persons, not just farmers.

Burleson's bill also would raise the marital deduction of 50 per cent to 50 per cent plus $100,000. The Library of Congress estimates that if Burleson's bill were adopted and applied to everyone, the U.S Treasury would lose as much as $2 52 billion a year in tax revenue.

President Ford has proposed raising the exemption to $150,000 and allowing the estates, inheritors 20 years to pay the tax at reduced interest rates.

Such proposals don't placate farmers contemplating the ultimate loss of their farmlands and the farming tradition fading from their families, Whiteside said. Progressive Farmer Magazine estimates from 200,000 to 400,000 farms will disappear during the next 20 years unless something is done to encourage young persons to enter farming and stay.

"It's very sad to think of succeeding generations who have a farming past but have no land they can afford to keep," Whiteside said. "Land is just something you can't create because you want it"

State to study flooding potential along Rte. 53

Potential flooding problems caused by the extension of Ill Rte 53 into Lake County are being investigated by local and state officials.

Clarice Rech, Buffalo Grove trustee and Lawrence Oppenheimer, Wheeling director of public works, have expressed concern about drainage and flooding problems that may be caused by the extension

The Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Soil Conservation Service of Lake County have sent letters indicating their concern to the Illinois Dept of Transportation.

PLANS FOR Ill Rte 53 call for the highway to continue north through Lake County to link up with an access road to Interstate 94. The route will become a major access road to northern recreation areas when completed.

Mrs. Rech said this week she was worried whether the road construction will disturb natural wetlands in Lake County, and said the elimination of natural retention could lead to flooding problems further downstream in Buffalo Creek.

Oppenheimer said last month he wrote a letter to the transportation department ,stating that Wheeling officials are "looking for a guarantee the construction of the freeway will not in any way" stymie efforts to control flooding in the village.

Oppenheimer said he wanted more information on provisions to control increased flooding caused by roadway drainage into Buffalo Creek and Indian Creek.

HE ALSO ASKED whether the state will help fund construction of a detention basin planned in the Checker Road area He said a transportation department report on the freeway states the highway construction "may result in downstream flood hazards"

The transportation department has prepared a preliminary environmental impact statement on the effects of the roadway construction, but a statement indicating final construction plans has not yet come out, said Arnold Seaberg, Buffalo Grove village engineer.

Seaberg said the roadway will pass through the periphery of several low-lying areas, but said the project will have a "minimal impact" on flooding in Buffalo Grove.

Ron Gebhardt, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, said the preliminary construction plans showed a disturbance of the swamp areas and low marshes, causing a possible 50 per cent increase in the flow of water in Buffalo Creek.

He said he agreed with the Metropolitan Sanitary District's objections about possible increased flooding, and said he was concerned that filling in the low-lying areas would result in less storage for stormwater run-off.

LWV 'friends of court' in Viator housing case

by BILL HILL

Legal briefs supporting the proposed Lincoln Green low-income housing proposal in Arlington Heights have been submitted to the U. S. Supreme Court by the local League of Women Voters and the American Society of Planning Officials.

The acceptance of the "friends-of-the-court" briefs by the court has been opposed by Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel.

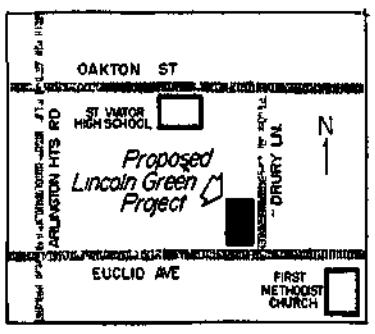

The Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect chapter of the League of Women Voters is joined by its county, state and national organizations, as well as the Arlington Heights Clergy Fellowship, the American Jewish Committee and the Minority Industrial Relations Council Inc , in submitting the brief. Its arguments support philosophically the position of the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp , which for five years has fought the Village of Arlington Heights over its refusal to rezone land near St. Viator High School for the Lincoln Green project.

The Supreme Court is expected to hear the case beween April 19-28.

THE CASE OVER the housing development corporation proposal to build the 190-unit townhouse development was accepted by the Supreme Court in December after the village appealed a decision by the 7th Circuit U. S. Court of Appeals that ruled that the development should be built because the village's rejection of the project was racially discriminatory.

The village contends that the issue should not involve the 14th Amendment of the U. S Constitition, because IT "is a garden-variety zoning controversy."

"The only real question is the reasonableness of the zoning restriction, which both on its face and in fact is not aimed at any racial minority," Siegel says in the brief he filed with the Supreme Court.

Siegel reported to the village board this week that he has drafted objections to the two "friends-of-the-court" briefs sent to the Supreme Court.

THE BRIEF submitted by the League of Women Voters was prepared by the law firm of Friedman & Koven, which donated its time to the project, according to Irvana Wilks, president of the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect chapter.

It also includes Abe Fortas, who was once nominated for a position on the Supreme Court, as being involved with the preparation of the brief.

The brief merely presents the League of Women Voters' philosophy, Mrs Wilks said.

"We're not attempting to try MHDC's (development corporation's) case. We just thought we could be an objective voice, and since we're a local organization, we hope, that the court will listen to us," she said.

The position of the local League is that "if a community wants businesses to come in to improve their tax base, it should bear the responsibility of housing the individuals employed in these businesses," Mrs. Wilks said. "We see a need for this housing and are only asking that the zoning change be allowed."

THE AMERICAN Society of Planning Officials also prepared a legal brief for the case for philosophical reasons.

Conrad Bagne, who wrote that brief, said that it is not unusual for the organization to take such action when cases involve municipal planning. He said the brief "presented a middle ground," though also admitted that "in this case we come out on the side of the developer."

"We feel the decision of the village to deny rezoning of the property was improper," Bagne said.

"We feel the community has the right to determine what the character of the community should be, but when the effect reaches outside the community to perpetuate housing segregation, the community should have the burden to say what particular aspects of its planning process concludes that the development should not go ahead," he said.

"As a spokesman for planners, we want to ensure that local comprehensive planning is not thrown by the wayside It is the purpose of ASPO (society of planning officials) to see that community planning functions properly," Bagne said.

New manager sees need for cuts in budget

by LINDA PUNCH

Wheeling's new village manager Wednesday said village budget cuts will be necessary because "tax revenues are not enough to justify the whims and fancies of the people"

Named village manager Tuesday, Clarence Motz said he expects to reduce village expenditures as a solution to current financial problems. He takes over the post May 1.

"Local government is a business. We don't operate for profit, but we can't operate at a deficit," he said.

In January, Wheeling issued $100,000 in tax anticipation warrants to cover unexpected increases in village operating expenses.

Motz said industrial growth is one of his major concerns.

"I THINK THE area has terrific potential I'm going to pursue it as much as I can, but be very selective. What the community gets is important, not only in the present but in the future," he said.

Motz said he will present no specific plans for the village until he is able to evaluate the current situation.

"There's going to be a study made of each individual department and there's going to be changes. I'm going to make evaluations and call the shots as I see them. I'm not a hatchet man but I expect a job well done," he said.

Motz, 55, currently city manager of Stanton, Calif., will replace George Passolt, who was fired by the board in October. Passolt has agreed to stay on the job until Motz takes over.

Work on mall to begin June 1 in Des Plaines

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of a $3.8 million shopping mall, part of the Superblock redevelopment project in downtown Des Plaines, will begin June 1.

The three-story enclosed shopping mall is part of a $12 million joint venture by J. R. Gottlieb and Co., Chicago and Erikson and Stevens Inc., Des Plaines. Construction of a 10-story Superblock office building began last year.

Jerome Gottlieb, president of J. R. Gottlieb, said developers have obtained the $3.8 million loan from Salk, Ward and Salk Inc., Chicago, to pay for construction of the shopping mall.

THE 140,000-SQUARE-FOOT shopping mall will house about 40 stores, and is expected to be completed early next year, Gottlieb said.

Spiegler Department Store, Des Plaines, will be the primary tenant in the shopping center, occupying about 22,000 square-feet on all three floors.

Mel Helms, vice president of J. R. Gottlieb, said developers are talking to other businesses about renting the remaining space in the shopping center.

"We are negotiating with one major restaurant for a location in the mall as well as boutiques, a book store, a florist shop and several clothing stores," he said.

DENNIS STEVENS, project architect, said the shopping center will have two major atriums with natural skylights, stairs at each end of the corridors and escalators in the middle.

"The emphasis will be on natural light, natural woods and natural plants," Stevens said. "There will be smaller, more personal walkways and open glass store fronts wherever possible.

"It will be one of the most modern shopping center designs in the suburbs today," he said.

The office building, expected to be completed later this year, will house th First National Bank of Des Plaines as well as other businesses.

SUPERBLOCK, the first phase in the redevelopment of the downtown area, is bounded on the north by Ellinwood Street, on the south by Prairie Street, on the east by Pearson Street and on the west by Lee Street.

"What we're doing is relocating the prime corner of Des Plaines' downtown area," said Gottlieb. "The new mall should bring another $15 million to $20 million in business to the downtown area alone."

As part of an agreement with the Superblock developers, the city is planning to construct a $1.3 million parking deck to serve the shopping mall and office building. The city also plans to improve the Pearson Street parking lot as well as the streets surrounding Superblock.

Gottlieb said the Superblock developers are planning a second phase of redevelopment in downtown Des Plaines that will accommodate another 20 businesses. Those plans, however, are not completed.

Wheeling parks weigh annex vote

Wheeling Park District officials tonight are expected to discuss plans for a referendum to annex apartment complexes on Willow Road in Wheeling Township.

Park District Director David Phillips Wednesday said the board will review the status of the annexation referendum, which was postponed in December.

He said the district has succeeded in gaining a corridor through the 20-acre Lake Run apartment complex, permitting annexation of the Gladstone Glen apartments and the Quincy Park quadrominiums. Without the corridor, Quincy Park, which has the larger tax base of the two complexes, would remain isolated from the district. All three complexes are located adjacent to one another on Willow Road east of Wolf Road.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

THE PARK DISTRICT began plans to conduct a referendum in the area after residents of Gladstone Glen and Quincy Park rejected a similar annexation effort in September by the River Trails Park District.

Lake Run apartments cannot be included in an annexation referendum because the complex is more than 20 acres in size. State law prohibits annexation of parcels larger than 20 acres without a special agreement with property owners.

Park district officials said the owners of the complex do not want to be in the Wheeling Park District, but have been "receptive" to granting a corridor through the district, linking Gladstone Glen with Quincy Park. District officials believe the two complexes together will provide a large enough tax base to support new recreational facilities in the area.

No fear of flying for Wendy

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A ground hostess?

What in the world is a ground hostess anyway?

For 19-year-old Wendy Wenk, a former automobile mechanic, it is a dream job.

At Palwaukee Airport in Prospect Heights, Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue, she parks airplanes and takes pilots' food and fuel orders. She is a stewardess of sorts at this small airport where the closest thing to a commercial airliner to land there was Arnold Palmer's Lear jet.

She is having the time of her life, and in just three years, Wendy has obtained a private pilot's license. She now is preparing to compete in cross-country air races.

THE SKY, FOR Wendy, is not just a place for clouds. It is a playground where she escapes in her plane to enjoy the view and soar through the air for the thrill of it.

But, it wasn't always that way. When George Priester, owner of Palwaukee Airport, asked her to take the job, Wendy was working as a gas station attendant.

"When I started here, I didn't like riding as a passenger in either of my parents' private planes. They have been private pilots for 15 years," she said.

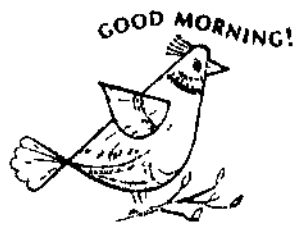

And then, flying got into her blood.

"I would meet with the visiting pilots for lunch and they'd tell me about their experiences in the air. I began to realize how much fun people had flying planes and thought I would give it a try," Wendy said.

SHE WAS TAKING flying lessons and was just about ready to take a test for her private pilot's license when Wendy had her first and only mishap.

"I was in a rented plane and coming in for a landing at Palwaukee when I lost it somehow and my nose gear collapsed when I hit the runway. I wasn't

Dist. 59 race contested as 2 more file

Incumbent Erwin Poklacki and newcomer Charles B. Canupp Jr. have filed for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board election in April, making it a contested race.

Incumbents Judith Zanca and Emil Bahnmaier filed nominating petitions in February. Three 3-year positions will be filled in the election April 10.

Poklacki, 1223 S. Fernandez Ave., Arlington Heights, was appointed to the board in July. He previously served on the board from 1971-74 and was president of the Dist. 59 School Community Council before accepting the board position last summer.

Canupp, 262 Greenbrir, Elk Grove Village, is a member of the Rupley School PTO where his two children attend. He has lived in the district four years.

Mrs. Zanca is the current board president and Bahnmaier is completing his first three-year term.

Last of 6 companies meets pollution rules

The last of six firms which had allegedly polluted the Elk Grove Township sewer system has taken steps to meet township pollution standards.

DeBruyne Enterprises, 2420 E. Oakton St., has acted to correct the pollution problems which township officials had said caused high levels of grease and oil to be discharged into the Oakton Industrial sanitary sewer system.

The township had threatened a lawsuit against the company when the firm's officials at first refused to meet with township representatives on the matter.

Nita Stamm, township environmental officer, said retesting of the system will be conducted Friday.

She said five other firms which had been cited for the pollution violations have complied or are in the process of complying with township standards.

The other firms are Cumberland Servicecenter, 2375 Oakton St.; Donlon Engineering Co, 125 Eilzabeth Dr; Nolden Steel Fabricators Inc., 105 Weiler Rd; Ronnie Kaplan Engineering Co., 115 Elizabeth Dr., and National Industrial Trucking 2225 E. Oakton St.

Boundaries stir debate in Dist. 54

Proposed boundaries for Schaumburg Township Dist. 54's two new schools, Enders-Salk and Nerge, raised controversy during a public hearing on the issue last week.

Some parents whose children are tentatively scheduled to attend Enders-Salk next year protested their children have attended several different schools in the past few years and said their children should remain at the schools they presently attend.

The proposed area for Enders-Salk for 1976-77 is the area west of Illinois Boulevard, Hoffman Estates, where children now attend Blackhawk school, and Interlude Apartments, Partridge Hill, Sheffield Estates and Sheffield Park, east of Braintree Drive.

PARENTS LIVING EAST of Braintree whose children now attend Hoover School in Schaumburg and are scheduled to attend Enders-Salk next year said their children have been shifted from school to school in the past few years and would prefer their children remain at Hoover.

Board member Edward Bedard said because of the district's growth, the board and administration "have to make the best use of classroom space throughout the district," and this can mean busing students from a crowded area to an area where there are empty classrooms.

"If we fix the boundary lines permanently we could avoid this type of thing, with students attending four schools in five years," Bedard said. "But then the average class size for some would be 35 and for others it would be 11. We're trying to maintain a reasonable balance in all the classrooms."

Walker looks down, but he may not be out

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Here is what a defeated Gov. Dan Walker did not say, but was thinking Wednesday when he had to force the words, "Congratulations to Mike Howlett" through his teeth.

He talked about reviewing his options, but refused to state them.

His options are:

- Staying neutral in the November general election fight between Howlett and James R. Thompson.
- Backing Thompson in the race against Howlett.
- Backing Howlett in the race against Thompson (Walker aides got a big laugh from that one).
- Forming a third party in Illinois to run against Howlett and Thompson.

Look at the 700,000 votes Gov. Daniel Walker says he piled up in Illinois Tuesday and then look at his aides. People in the highest levels of the Walker camp already have started to sound out the third party idea.

BESIDES REFUSING to explain his options, the governor also said there are several questions that must be answered before he makes a decision on his political future.

Those questions are:

- What did Howlett do for Sun Steel to earn $15,000 per year for the last 15 years?
- Why did Howlett pay income taxes on $100,000 in campaign contributions several years ago?
- Is it illegal for owners of stock in a harness racing organization to make a campaign loan to a political candidate?

If the answers to those questions, which will come from several on-going investigations, show Howlett did something wrong, the third party bid becomes more realistic.

In the aftermath of the apparent end of the Walker attack on Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization, an observer gets the impression that while the votes have been counted, Walker may be a long way from being out.

HE MAY JUST mount a third party movement, something that is legal in Illinois, just to give Daley one more battle royale. Walker needs 25,000 signatures on petitions and a full slate of candidates, including people running for trustee to the University of Illinois before Aug. 2 to start a third party.

He proved Tuesday he has a lot of friends who do not mind being thrashed at the polls, so it appears all he really needs is the signatures.

Walker probably could not win in a three-way race, but he could get enough Democratic votes to give Thompson a good chance at beating Howlett.

He also may need the third party ruse to give some way of avoiding the liabilities of being a lameduck governor for the next nine months.

WALKER, WHO MADE much sound and fury with the legislature in his first three years could be the lamest of the lame ducks in the eyes of the lawmakers who know Walker is on his way out soon.

Without the third party movement, Walker's anticipated thundering over the state budget and other legislative matters will sound very hollow.

And while the Walker-Howlett race might be the most interesting to ponder, there are some items of note to mention in other races around the area.

In the 10th Congressional District, Samuel H. Young and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, go into their "rubber match," in what has been a six-year campaign in the district.

YOUNG PROVED to be the top vote getter in three-way Republican race Tuesday. He showed, despite some claims by party regulars in the district, that he is the man the people want to face Mikva in November.

In the Republican presidential primary, Ronald Reagan supporters, even with strong name recognition in their favor, failed to win a single delegate-candidate in the 12th Congressional District. U.S. Rep. Philip M.

Howlett sues to stop Walker probe

by KURT BAER

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett filed suit Wednesday against Gov. Daniel Walker to stop an investigation of $100,000 in loans Howlett received in 1972 from a company owning race track stock.

The investigation is politically motivated and was ordered by Walker to discredit Howlett during the recent gubernatorial primary campaign, the suit charges.

The suit asks the Cook County Circuit Court to prevent the Walker administration from pursuing the probe.

Instead, it requests the court appoint "independent fact finders of unquestioned impartiality" to conduct the investigation.

THE LOANS ARE being investigated by Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano and others at Walker's request because Illinois law prohibits race track stockholders from contributing to political campaigns.

Howlett received the loans from the Nationwide Acceptance Corp., Chicago, which owns 6,844 shares of stock

Farmers profit from selling soil

by JUDIE BLACK

Back in the 1920s when Daniel Bergman bought his 200 acres of land along Ela and Algonquin roads he paid less than $200 an acre. Last year a neighbor sold some of his land for $6,000 an acre.

Farmers "simply can't afford not to sell at $3,000 to $10,000 an acre," Bergman's son, Harold, said. The younger Bergman farms 38 acres, that his 94-year-old father still owns.

Some of the elder Bergman's contemporaries have sold their farms in Palatine and surrounding townships for significant profits and then moved Downstate to retire or to buy cheaper land and begin farming again.

"THERE'S A TREMENDOUS pressure on farmers to convert their land from farm to commercial," said Bill Whiteside, farm adviser for Cook County extension office in Tinley Park. "There's just no way under the sun a farmer can resist a super fantastic deal like 600 per cent return on his initial investment."

Because of farmers' inability to resist and the continuing urban sprawl, the number of producing farm acres in Cook County has dwindled, Whiteside said. The county has 622,080 acres of land including public, private, commercial and agricultural.

In the three years from 1971 to 1974, the number of producing farm acres dwindled from 3,561 acres in Palatine Township to 3,000 acres in 1974, according to the Illinois Dept. of Agriculture.

During those same three years, 294 fewer acres produced corn in Palatine, 711 fewer acres produced soybeans and 78 fewer acres yielded alfalfa hay.

THE "SUPERFANTASTIC deal" Bergman's neighbor got represents farmland estimated not for its agricultural use in producing corn and soybeans but its commercial potential in apartment complexes and shopping centers.

That formula works well when a farmer is ready to sell, but it is also used in assessing estate tax liability. Most farmers think that's unfair.

If the younger Bergman were to inherit his father's 38 acres of land, he might have to sell the land to pay the federal estate tax. If the elder Bergman's estate were valued at the price his neighbor got last spring, the younger Bergman would face taxes on an estate valued at at least $168,000 ($228,000 less the $60,000 federal estate exemption).

Most farmers are "hoping and praying" that exemption will soon be increased, said Leonard W. Schultz, a Woodstock farmer and board member of the Illinois Agriculture Assn. (IAA). "And if inflation keeps going the way it has been, (who knows) what would be enough?"

SCHULTZ SAID THE IAA hasn't endorsed any of the 206 bills currently being considered in Congress which call for estate exemption increases ranging from $150,000 to $200,000.

One of the bills would value farm land at its current use rather than its market value. The bill, introduced by Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Tex., also would increase the estate exemption to $200,000 and make it available to all persons, not just farmers.

Burleson's bill also would raise the marital deduction of 50 per cent to 50 per cent plus $100,000. The Library of Congress estimates that if Burleson's bill were adopted and applied to everyone, the U.S. Treasury would lose as much as $2.52 billion a year in tax revenue.

President Ford has proposed raising the exemption to $150,000 and allowing the estates, inheritors 20 years to pay the tax at reduced interest rates.

Such proposals don't placate farmers contemplating the ultimate loss of their farmlands and the farming tradition fading from their families, Whiteside said. Progressive Farmer Magazine estimates from 200,000 to 400,000 farms will disappear during the next 20 years unless something is done to encourage young persons to enter farming and stay.

"It's very sad to think of succeeding generations who have a farming past but have no land they can afford to keep," Whiteside said. "Land is just something you can't create because you want it."

Officials probe Rte. 53 flood woes

Potential flooding problems caused by the extension of Ill. Rte. 53 into Lake County are being investigated by local and state officials.

Clarice Rech, Buffalo Grove trustee and Lawrence Oppenheimer, Wheeling director of public works, have expressed concern about drainage and flooding problems that may be caused by the extension.

The Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Soil Conservation Service of Lake County have sent letters indicating their concern to the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

PLANS FOR Ill. Rte. 53 call for the highway to continue north through Lake County to link up with an access road to Interstate 94. The route will become a major access road to northern recreation areas when completed.

Mrs. Rech said this week she was worried whether the road construction will disturb natural wetlands in Lake County, and said the elimination of natural retention could lead to flooding problems further downstream in Buffalo Creek.

Oppenheimer said last month he wrote a letter to the transportation department ,stating that Wheeling officials are "looking for a guarantee the construction of the freeway will not in any way" stymie efforts to control flooding in the village.

Oppenheimer said he wanted more information on provisions to control increased flooding caused by roadway drainage into Buffalo Creek and Indian Creek.

HE ALSO ASKED whether the state will help fund construction of a detention basin planned in the Checker Road area. He said a transportation department report on the freeway states the highway construction "may result in downstream flood hazards."

The transportation department has prepared a preliminary environmental impact statement on the effects of the roadway construction, but a statement indicating final construction plans has not yet come out, said Arnold Seaberg, Buffalo Grove village engineer.

Seaberg said the roadway will pass through the periphery of several low-lying areas, but said the project will have a "minimal impact" on flooding in Buffalo Grove.

Ron Gebhardt, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, said the preliminary construction plans showed a disturbance of the swamp areas and low marshes, causing a possible 50 per cent increase in the flow of water in Buffalo Creek.

He said he agreed with the Metropolitan Sanitary District's objections about possible increased flooding, and said he was concerned that filling in the low-lying areas would result in less storage for stormwater run-off.

Motz starts May 1 in Wheeling

New manager sees need for budget cuts

by LINDA PUNCH

Wheeling's new village manager Wednesday said village budget cuts will be necessary because "tax revenues are not enough to justify the whims and fancies of the people."

Named village manager Tuesday, Clarence Motz said he expects to reduce village expenditures as a solution to current financial problems. He takes over the post May 1.

"Local government is a business. We don't operate for profit, but we can't operate at a deficit," he said.

In January, Wheeling issued $100,000 in tax anticipation warrants to cover unexpected increases in village operating expenses.

Motz said industrial growth is one of his major concerns.

"I THINK THE area has terrific potential. I'm going to pursue it as much as I can, but be very selective. What the community gets is important, not only in the present but in the future," he said.

Motz said he will present no specific plans for the village until he is able to evaluate the current situation.

"There's going to be a study made of each individual department and there's going to be changes. I'm going to make evaluations and call the shots as I see them. I'm not a hatchet man but I expect a job well done," he said.

Motz, 55, currently city manager of Stanton, Calif., will replace George Passolt, who was fired by the board in October. Passolt has agreed to stay on the job until Motz takes over.

In announcing Motz' appointment, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said Motz "has a background of being a strong administrator who carefully scrutinizes all financial expenditures" including a "demonstrated record for turning deficits into surpluses."

Motz has more than 20 years of local government administrative experience, including 12 years in city manager positions. He has been city manager of Stanton since 1974. Prior to that he was manager in Blaine, Minn., for two years.

Village covers cost of installing signs

The Elk Grove Village Board has dipped into its federal revenue-sharing fund to provide enough money to install already approved traffic signs.

Trustee Michael A. Tosto's successful motion last week will provide $900 for 27 yield signs to be placed at T-intersections throughout the village, and $600 for 14 truck weight limit signs for Landmeier Road and Oakton Street.

The village did have enough to put up another 10 yield signs, authorized at the same time.

to build a school in the future, said a survey of the residents there shows a need for a school to be built in the next several years.

ASSISTANT SUPT. Ronald Ruble said "no plans are on the drawing board" for a Sheffield Estates school, but that the administration realizes a school will eventually be needed there. He said the district prefers to wait until it is certain a school population will be present in an area before a school is built.

Tom Kaspar, of Meadow Knolls, said residents of his subdivision are unhappy their attendance area is being divided between Nerge and Schaumburg schools. He asked that the 24 children living in the west end of the subdivision be allowed to attend Nerge school with the rest of the children.

Park district wrapup

Lewis gets contract for loader-tractor

The Elk Grove Park District will buy an industrial loader-tractor from Lewis International Inc, Wheeling, if all bid specifications have been met.

The park board made the same decision two weeks ago, but sought new bids when two other offers were rejected because they did not meet the required specifications.

Lewis International's bid remained the same, at $9,773 50. Three other bids were opened Thursday, but all were $10,300 or more. The board acted Thursday because a recent price hike might have increased the Lewis bid if there was a delay in awarding a contract.

Brochure cost approved

The park board approved spending $4,235.80 for its special Decade of Progress brochure, which will be mailed with the summer program schedule. The brochure features a poster on one side and an outline of park history on the other.

The sum will cover printing and folding of the brochure, envelopes and $300 each to the artist and writer. It does not cover postage.

Park officials hope to solicit contributions from businesses to help defray the brochure cost.

Bike safety to start March 22

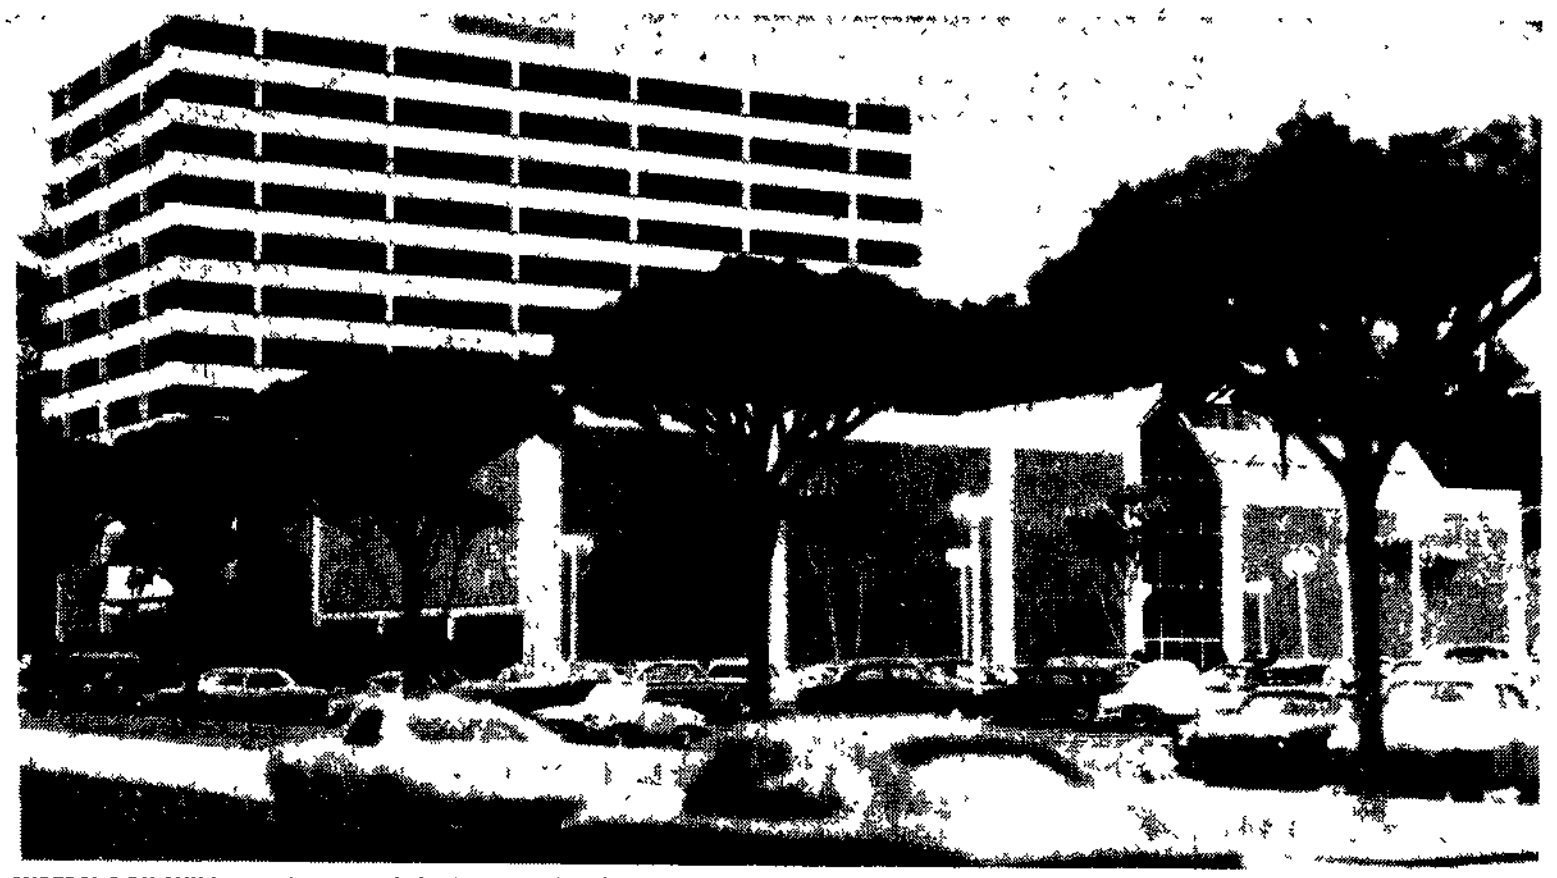

Park Comr. James L. Cashman said the bike safety program for elementary school children will begin again March 22. The program, which stresses road safety rules, is held on Disney Park land. Some 8,000 children are expected to participate this spring.

Cashman said the bike safety committee has drawn up a proposed $7,150 budget, which must be approved by Elk Grove Township. The township funds the program using revenue sharing monies

Arbor Day poster contest

The park district will sponsor a poster contest for Arbor Day in the village's elementary schools. The deadline for submitting posters is April 12. The grand prize winner will receive a bicycle.

Arbor Day will be April 25.

SUPERBLOCK WILL soon be part of the Des Plaines landscape now that developers of the downtown redevelopment project have obtained financing for the three-story enclosed shopping mall estimated to cost $3.8 million. Construction will begin in June.

Super mall work to begin June 1

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of a $3.8 million shopping mall, part of the Superblock redevelopment project in downtown Des Plaines, will begin June 1.

The three-story enclosed shopping mall is part of a $12 million joint venture by J. R. Gottlieb and Co., Chicago and Erikson and Stevens Inc, Des Plaines. Construction of a 10-story Superblock office building began last year.

Jerome Gottlieb, president of J. R. Gottlieb, said developers have obtained the $3.8 million loan from Salk, Ward and Salk Inc., Chicago, to pay for construction of the shopping mall.

THE 140,000-SQUARE-FOOT shopping mall will house about 40 stores, and is expected to be completed early next year, Gottlieb said.

Spiegler Department Store, Des Plaines, will be the primary tenant in the shopping center, occupying about 22,000 square-feet on all three floors.

Mel Helms, vice president of J. R. Gottlieb, said developers are talking to other businesses about renting the remaining space in the shopping center.

"We are negotiating with one major restaurant for a location in the mall as well as boutiques, a book store, a florist shop and several clothing stores," he said.

DENNIS STEVENS, project architect, said the shopping center will have two major atriums with natural skylights, stairs at each end of the corridors and escalators in the middle.

"The emphasis will be on natural light, natural woods and natural plants," Stevens said. "There will be smaller, more personal walkways and open glass store fronts wherever possible.

"It will be one of the most modern shopping center designs in the suburbs today," he said.

The office building, expected to be completed later this year, will house th First National Bank of Des Plaines as well as other businesses.

SUPERBLOCK, the first phase in the redevelopment of the downtown area, is bounded on the north by Ellinwood Street, on the south by Prairie Street, on the east by Pearson Street and on the west by Lee Street.

"What we're doing is relocating the prime corner of Des Plaines' downtown area," said Gottlieb. "The new mall should bring another $15 million to $20 million in business to the downtown area alone."

As part of an agreement with the Superblock developers, the city is planning to construct a $1.3 million parking deck to serve the shopping mall and office building. The city also plans to improve the Pearson Street parking lot as well as the streets surrounding Superblock.

Gottlieb said the Superblock developers are planning a second phase of redevelopment in downtown Des Plaines that will accommodate another 20 businesses Those plans, however, are not completed.

Day care zoning called 'unfair'

The owner of a day care center in Des Plaines has charged city officials with "unjust and unequal" application of city zoning laws.

Lorraine Angell, owner of Baby Town Day Care Center, 2329 Birch St., made the charge as a result of the city council's recent denial of a special-use permit with a variation to allow her to expand her operation.

In addition to denying the request, the city is involved in a Circuit Court battle with Mrs. Angell over whether her present operation should be allowed in a residential area.

IN A LETTER TO city officials, Mrs. Angell said she has been treated unfairly because the city is allowing a nursery school to operate without a special use permit in a former church at 1280 Algonquin Rd.

Mrs. Angell said the nursery school, Tender Love and Care, is located in a residential area and the building is "no longer a church in any way, shape or form. It should have to apply for a special-use permit if it is to continue operating."

Michael Richardson, city director of planning and zoning Wednesday said he believes Mrs. Angell's complaint is "groundless."

"The day care center on Algonquin Road is not a residential structure, it's a church," he said. "If she were to operate her day-care center out of a church or in a commercial area she could do it without a special-use permit."

IN ADDITION TO the complaint about the nursery school, Mrs. Angell has lodged complaints against Ald. Joseph Szabo, 1st, and Ald. Thomas Koplos, 1st.

She has charged that Szabo, a mason contractor, is in violation of city zoning ordinances because he operates his business out of a residence at 385 Graceland Ave.

Szabo was unavailable for comment Wednesday, but one city official said the use is legal since Szabo has operated out of the location for more than 20 years, long before a city ordinance prohibiting it was enacted.

Mrs. Angell said Koplos should have abstained from voting on her request for a special-use permit since he is the owner of a building at 1159 Algonquin Rd. that houses Miss Mary's Teeny Town, another day-care center.

KOPLOS SAID, however, he does not believe his action in voting against the Baby Town request was improper.

"I'm not going to lose any sleep over this because I talked with the city attorney before I did anything," he said. "He said it was all right if I owned the building as long as I had no interest in the business."

"I have nothing whatever to do with the business," he said. "All I do is collect the rent."

Mrs Angell said she will not drop the complaints until she is given an opportunity to publicly air her grievances at a city council meeting.

No fear of flying for Wendy

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A ground hostess?

What in the world is a ground hostess anyway?

For 19-year-old Wendy Wenk, a former automobile mechanic, it is a dream job.

At Palwaukee Airport in Prospect Heights, Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue, she parks airplanes and takes pilots' food and fuel orders. She is a stewardess of sorts at this small airport where the closest thing to a commercial airliner to land there was Arnold Palmer's Lear jet.

She is having the time of her life, and in just three years, Wendy has obtained a private pilot's license. She now is preparing to compete in cross-country air races.

THE SKY, FOR Wendy, is not just a place for clouds. It is a playground where she escapes in her plane to enjoy the view and soar through the air for the thrill of it.

But, it wasn't always that way. When George Priester, owner of Palwaukee Airport, asked her to take the job, Wendy was working as a gas station attendant.

"When I started here, I didn't like riding as a passenger in either of my parents' private planes. They have been private pilots for 15 years," she said.

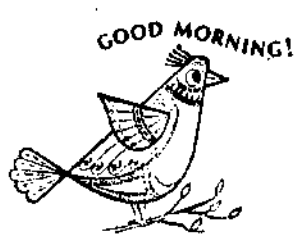

And then, flying got into her blood.

"I would meet with the visiting pilots for lunch and they'd tell me about their experiences in the air. I began to realize how much fun people had flying planes and thought I would give it a try," Wendy said.

SHE WAS TAKING flying lessons and was just about ready to take a test for her private pilot's license when Wendy had her first and only mishap.

"I was in a rented plane and coming in for a landing at Palwaukee when I lost it somehow and my nose gear collapsed when I hit the runway. I wasn't

THEY'D RATHER EAT them than glue them, but third graders at Hoover School, 315 N. Park district ends talk on merger

by DANN GIRE

The Hoffman Estates Park District has voted 2-1 to terminate park district-village merger talks.

The park district will continue, however, to cooperate with a special consultant team from the University of Illinois hired by the village to study the merger proposal.

Comr. Thomas Barber, who originally suggested the merger study in December, initiated the action Tuesday night. He was supported by Comr. Thomas McGuire, who has publicly criticized the study.

Board Pres. George Rush opposed the move, which ends the series of talks between the village and district to study benefits of a merger.

"IT IS FINE with me," Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said Wednesday of the park board vote. "Until we get the information we need (from the University consultants), there's really nothing to discuss," she said. "They run their show the way they see fit.

"All we need is their (the park board's) cooperation (with the consultants)," Mrs. Hayter said.

Rush said the action "at first glance looks like we're not in favor of continuing the park merger study. That is not our intent."

Rush said the merger talks will not be brought up again until the park district fills the two existing board vacancies.

HE SAID HE hoped the appointments will be official by the end of the month.

Until the appointments, however, Rush said Barber has control over the merger study because his vote is "the swing vote for this issue."

"MGuire has always voted against it (the merger) and I have always voted for it," Rush said. "Barber has the control. Why he wants to stop the talks now, I don't know."

Barber was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Mrs. Hayter characterized Rush as "most cooperative" in his negotiations with the village and said Barber "is making an honest and sincere attempt to find ways of saving money for taxpayers."

Tuesday's meeting marked the second time the merger talks have been called off since they began in January.

THE TALKS were first terminated Jan. 15, after Mrs. Hayter said Barber was using the merger discussion in an attempt to fire Park Director Allen Binder.

The talks were resumed Feb. 2 at the request of the village. Mrs. Hayter then suggested hiring an outside consultant.

The joint study committee last week selected a University of Illinois consulting staff to aid in the talks.

The college group will appear before the park board April 6.

Top cop tops on St. Patrick's Day

Every St. Patrick's Day for the last eight years has been something special for Schaumburg Police Chief Martin James Conroy. He says he has the luck of the Emerald Isle.

The cherubic-faced police chief spreads a steady dose of Irish cheer thrbugh the office, but quietly he waits for the annual visit.

This year, he received a large shamrock-shaped cake and a green carnation corsage from Kimberly Ann McGraw, a police reserve officer's daughter who has been bringing St. Patrick's Day treats to Conroy since she was in fifth grade.

Kimberly, now a senior at Schaumburg High School, said she was introduced to several policemen because of her father's involvement as communications officer and that when she met Conroy, she discovered he was a fellow Irishman and a "nice" guy.

"He's a super guy and super Irish," added Kimberly, who was wearing a bright Kelly green, polka dot dress.

Dick McGraw, father of Schaumburg Patrolman Terry McGraw, said his daughter kept him awake until 1:30 a.m. Wednesday while she baked the cake. In past years, Kimberly has given Conroy a leprechaun doll, a large green candle and bakery delights. McGraw said the project started after Conroy sponsored Kimberly's Girl Scout troop.

It is unknown if Conroy can expect the same surprises next year because Kimberly will be off to college. But he told her: "I guess I'll have to expect you to come back in the future."

Walker looks down, but he may not be out

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Here is what a defeated Gov. Dan Walker did not say, but was thinking Wednesday when he had to force the words, "Congratulations to Mike Howlett" through his teeth.

He talked about reviewing his options, but refused to state them.

His options are:

- Staying neutral in the November general election fight between Howlett and James R. Thompson.
- Backing Thompson in the race against Howlett.
- Backing Howlett in the race against Thompson (Walker aides got a big laugh from that one).
- Forming a third party in Illinois to run against Howlett and Thompson.

Look at the 700,000 votes Gov. Daniel Walker says he piled up in Illinois Tuesday and then look at his aides. People in the highest levels of the Walker camp already have started to sound out the third party idea.

BESIDES REFUSING to explain his options, the governor also said there are several questions that must be answered before he makes a decision on his political future.

Those questions are:

- What did Howlett do for Sun Steel to earn $15,000 per year for the last 15 years?
- Why did Howlett pay income taxes on $100,000 in campaign contributions several years ago?
- Is it illegal for owners of stock in a harness racing organization to make a campaign loan to a political candidate?

If the answers to those questions, which will come from several on-going investigations, show Howlett did something wrong, the third party bid becomes more realistic.

In the aftermath of the apparent end of the Walker attack on Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization, an observer gets the impression that while the votes have been counted, Walker may be a long way from being out.

HE MAY JUST mount a third party movement, something that is legal in Illinois, just to give Daley one more battle royale. Walker needs 25,000 signatures on petitions and a full slate of candidates, including people running for trustee to the University of Illinois before Aug. 2 to start a third party.

He proved Tuesday he has a lot of friends who do not mind being thrashed at the polls, so it appears all he really needs is the signatures.

Walker probably could not win in a three-way race, but he could get enough Democratic votes to give Thompson a good chance at beating Howlett.

He also may need the third party ruse to give some way of avoiding the liabilities of being a lameduck governor for the next nine months.

WALKER, WHO MADE much sound and fury with the legislature in his first three years could be the lamest of the lame ducks in the eyes of the lawmakers who know Walker is on his way out soon.

Without the third party movement, Walker's anticipated thundering over the state budget and other legislative matters will sound very hollow.

And while the Walker-Howlett race might be the most interesting to ponder, there are some items of note to mention in other races around the area.

In the 10th Congressional District, Samuel H. Young and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, go into their "rubber match," in what has been a six-year campaign in the district.

YOUNG PROVED to be the top vote getter in three-way Republican race Tuesday. He showed, despite some claims by party regulars in the district, that he is the man the people want to face Mikva in November.

In the Republican presidential primary, Ronald Reagan supporters, even with strong name recognition in their favor, failed to win a single delegate-candidate in the 12th Congressional District. U.S. Rep. Philip M.

Howlett sues to stop Walker probe

by KURT BAER

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett filed suit Wednesday against Gov. Daniel Walker to stop an investigation of $100,000 in loans Howlett received in 1972 from a company owning race track stock.

The investigation is politically motivated and was ordered by Walker to discredit Howlett during the recent gubernatorial primary campaign, the suit charges.

The suit asks the Cook County Circuit Court to prevent the Walker administration from pursuing the probe.

Instead, it requests the court appoint "independent fact finders of unquestioned impartiality" to conduct the investigation.

THE LOANS ARE being investigated by Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano and others at Walker's request because Illinois law prohibits race track stockholders from contributing to political campaigns.

Howlett received the loans from the Nationwide Acceptance Corp., Chicago, which owns 6,844 shares of stock

Farmers profit from selling soil

by JUDIE BLACK

Back in the 1920s when Daniel Bergman bought his 200 acres of land along Ela and Algonquin roads he paid less than $200 an acre. Last year a neighbor sold some of his land for $8,000 an acre.

Farmers "simply can't afford not to sell at $3,000 to $10,000 an acre," Bergman's son, Harold, said. The younger Bergman farms 38 acres, that his 94-year-old father still owns.

Some of the elder Bergman's contemporaries have sold their farms in Palatine and surrounding townships for significant profits and then moved Downstate to retire or to buy cheaper land and begin farming again.

"THERE'S A TREMENDOUS pressure on farmers to convert their land from farm to commercial," said Bill Whiteside, farm adviser for Cook County extension office in Tinley Park. "There's just no way under the sun a farmer can resist a super fantastic deal like 600 per cent return on his initial investment."

Because of farmers' inability to resist and the continuing urban sprawl, the number of producing farm acres in Cook County has dwindled, Whiteside said. The county has 622,000 acres of land including public, private, commercial and agricultural.

In the three years from 1971 to 1974, the number of producing farm acres dwindled from 3,561 acres in Palatine Township to 3,000 acres in 1974, according to the Illinois Dept. of Agriculture.

During those same three years, 294 fewer acres produced corn in Palatine, 711 fewer acres produced soybeans and 78 fewer acres yielded alfalfa hay.

THE "SUPERFANTASTIC deal" Bergman's neighbor got represents farmland estimated not for its agricultural use in producing corn and soybeans but its commercial potential in apartment complexes and shopping centers.

That formula works well when a farmer is ready to sell, but it is also used in assessing estate tax liability. Most farmers think that's unfair.

If the younger Bergman were to inherit his father's 38 acres of land, he might have to sell the land to pay the federal estate tax. If the elder Bergman's estate were valued at the price his neighbor got last spring, the younger Bergman would face taxes on an estate valued at at least $168,000 ($228,000 less the $60,000 federal estate exemption).

Most farmers are "hoping and praying" that exemption will soon be increased, said Leonard W. Schultz, a Woodstock farmer and board member of the Illinois Agriculture Assn. (IAA). "And if inflation keeps going the way it has been, (who knows) what would be enough?"

SCHULTZ SAID THE IAA hasn't endorsed any of the 206 bills currently being considered in Congress which call for estate exemption increases ranging from $150,000 to $200,000.

One of the bills would value farm land at its current use rather than its market value The bill, introduced by Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Tex., also would increase the estate exemption to $200,000 and make it available to all persons, not just farmers.

Burleson's bill also would raise the marital deduction of 50 per cent to 50 per cent plus $100,000. The Library of Congress estimates that if Burleson's bill were adopted and applied to everyone, the U.S. Treasury would lose as much as $2.52 billion a year in tax revenue.

President Ford has proposed raising the exemption to $150,000 and allowing the estates, inheritors 20 years to pay the tax at reduced interest rates

Such proposals don't placate farmers contemplating the ultimate loss of their farmlands and the farming tradition fading from their families, Whiteside said. Progressive Farmer Magazine estimates from 200,000 to 400,000 farms will disappear during the next 20 years unless something is done to encourage young persons to enter farming and stay.

"It's very sad to think of succeeding generations who have a farming past but have no land they can afford to keep," Whiteside said. "Land is just something you can't create because you want it."

Villages to air woes at Town Meet

Municipal problems in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg will be discussed Saturday at Town Meeting '76, a Bicentennial project.

The meeting, scheduled from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at Hoffman Estates High School, 1100 Higgins Rd , is a community forum with a format to be used in more than 5,000 communities nationwide.

The program consists of two basic workshops where citizens identify problems in the community, then discuss possible solutions.

Susan Hooker, cochairman of the event, said several issues already have been brought up for possible discussion, including vandalism, airport expansion, future development and the quality and proximity of schools.

While the regular meeting is being conducted, a special program for children of participants will be presented, she added.

"THE CHILDREN, kindergarten through eighth grade, also will prepare their own list of challenges and concerns for the community," Mrs. Hooker said. "There will also be Bicentennial films and cartoons. The older kids will iinterview adults at the meeting."

Lunch will be provided free for both adults and children, she said.

Registration will be at the door, with a $1 entrance fee. Children's admission is 50 cents.

The program has scheduled a welcoming statement from State Reps. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates.

Paul Derda, executive director of the Schaumburg Park District, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Motz starts May 1 in Wheeling

New manager sees need for budget cuts

by LINDA PUNCH

Wheeling's new village manager Wednesday said village budget cuts will be necessary because "tax revenues are not enough to justify the whims and fancies of the people."

Named village manager Tuesday, Clarence Motz said he expects to reduce village expenditures as a solution to current financial problems. He takes over the post May 1.

"Local government is a business. We don't operate for profit, but we can't operate at a deficit," he said.

In January, Wheeling issued $100,000 in tax anticipation warrants to cover unexpected increases in village operating expenses.

Motz said industrial growth is one of his major concerns.

"I THINK THE area has terrific potential. I'm going to pursue it as much as I can, but be very selective. What the community gets is important, not only in the present but in the future," he said.

Motz said he will present no specific plans for the village until he is able to evaluate the current situation.

"There's going to be a study made of each individual department and there's going to be changes. I'm going to make evaluations and call the shots as I see them. I'm not a hatchet man but I expect a job well done," he said.

Motz, 55, currently city manager of Stanton, Calif., will replace George Passolt, who was fired by the board in October. Passolt has agreed to stay on the job until Motz takes over.

In announcing Motz' appointment, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said Motz "has a background of being a strong administrator who carefully scrutinizes all financial expenditures" including a "demonstrated record for turning deficits into surpluses."

Motz has more than 20 years of local government administrative experience, including 12 years in city manager positions. He has been city manager of Stanton since 1974. Prior to that he was manager in Blaine, Minn., for two years.

Blood draw Sunday first of the year

The first blood drive of the year in Hoffman Estates is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday at the municipal building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

The blood drive is the first of the 1976 Four Per Cent Blood Program, which will ensure all residents emergency blood if 4 per cent of the population gives blood.

James Dernos, public health director, said more than 1,143 pints are needed for Hoffman Estates to qualify for the program.

For appointments, contact the health department, 882-9100.

Soloist Clark Terry in concert Saturday

Jazz trumpet soloist Clark Terry will appear in concert Saturday at Schaumburg High School, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg.

Also performing in the pops concert at 8 p.m. will be the Schaumburg High School wind ensemble, concert band and jazz band.

Zoners defer bid for funeral home

A proposal to establish a funeral home on Roselle Road north of Wise Road will be heard April 7 by the Schaumburg Zoning Board.

Zoning board members this week deferred consideration of the request from Richard Demnicki of Chicago because he failed to include plans for living quarters in the building.

Demnicki has refused to discuss details of the proposal until the zoning hearing. It is believed he plans to purchase and remodel a private home for the facility.

The hearing will begin at 8 p.m. in Schaumburg Civic Center. It is open to the public.

Transit agency asks FAA to review airport ruling

by PAT GERLACH

A Chicago Area Transportation Study official has asked the Federal Aviation Administration to reconsider a ruling limiting growth at Schaumburg Airport.

David A. NewMyer, CATS director of airport planning said Wednesday he is "disappointed" the FAA failed to directly inform his office of results of an airspace review of the 120-acre field at Wright Boulevard and Irving Park Road.

NewMyer said CATS earlier filed formal comments on the airspace study and "assumed" the agency would be advised when the project was completed. NewMyer said he learned results from a Herald reporter "some nine days after the release" of the FAA report.

"EVEN MORE CRITICAL than the lack of communication on this issue was the fact that we feel our comments were ignored in the results of the airspace review," NewMyer said.

George P. Grote, chief of airports for FAA's Great Lakes Region, could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

Grote recently said Schaumburg should review a proposal to purchase and improve the airport before proceeding to the second stage of a consultants study. Grote also recommended the airport be limited to the 123 currently based aircraft rather than expanding it to accommodate about 350 based planes by 1985 as recommended by the consultants.

Representatives of the Illinois Dept. of Aeronautics have said they do not agree with limiting the number of aircraft based at the field and said they will file a formal objection with the FAA.

CATS' formal comments on the airspace study included an updated estimate of the airport's total annual operations which conflicted with the 80,000 to 90,000 yearly takeoffs and landings projection used by consultants.

"GIVEN THE FACT that the operations count is already higher than was acknowledged by the FAA, a proportional raise in the number of based aircraft should be allowed," NewMyer continued. He said using "FAA logic" approximately 171 aircraft should be based at the field to account for the CATS annual operations estimate.

But, NewMyer said, CATS objects to the FAA's "artificial limitations" because of severe problems created by a lack of general aviation reliever airports in Northeastern Illinois.

As a remedy, NewMyer said CATS recommends:

to 171 based aircra

- Modifying the present limitation to 171 based aircraft with the option to adjust that figure based on demand when the airspace determination expires in 1977.
- Allow completion of the consultants study and permit the consultants, the FAA and CATS to perform additional operations counts.
- Modify the consultants study to further analyze financing options giving the village a more complete range of information with which to make a decision.
- Discuss possible limitation of "touch and go" operations with Schaumburg Airport management to cut down on air traffic congestion and noise problems.

Village adopts housing rules, inspection code

A new Schaumburg health department ordinance permitting inspection of apartments and other multiple-family units on complaint has been adopted by village officials.

The law sets standards for housing based, in part, on the number of occupants allowed per square foot of dwelling area, said Robert Grossmann, village director of public health.

Grossmann said the ordinance also sets standards for plumbing, heating and other facilities.

Trustee Herbert J. Aigner was the only village board member to vote against the law, explaining he believes it creates the type of restriction that "erodes the rights of people."

Aigner argued against the inclusion of single-family homes within the jurisdiction of the ordinance, adding he considers it "duplication" since the village has a building department. "My understanding is that this is their (building department) function," he said.

On Grossmann's recommendation, the village board will establish a five-member board to supervise hearings resulting from complaints.

Contest under way to name 10 parks in Schaumburg

Schaumburg Park District is sponsoring a Help Us Name Your Park contest to provide local identification for 10 parks.

Ten prizes will be awarded, with winners given a choice of an individual season swim pool pass or a season miniature golf pass.

Rules specify one entry per person. All entries must be received by May 1.

Names are being sought for Hoover School park; Aldrin School park; Cedarcrest-Sienna park; Albert Einstein School park; Levitt site, 40 acres with a lake near Walnut Lane; Weathersfield-Cedarcrest park, a 5-acre site now called Shapiro Park; and Salk School Park, a new site on North Salem Drive.

Also to be named is a lake park site west of Salem Drive and east of the new Schaumburg Road police and courts building; Nerge School park; and Collins School park.

For more information, contact the park district, 529-1005 or 894-4660.

Entries must be mailed to the park district, 220 E. Weathersfield Way. Entrants are asked to mark their envelopes "Park Name Contest".

'Friday Night Live' cuts membership fee

The Hoffman Estates Park District is sponsoring a half-price sale on new memberships to the "Friday Night Live" program for junior high students from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Friday at Eisenhower School, 800 W. Hassell Rd.

New memberships to the program will be 25 cents instead of 50 cents, and all replacement cards may be purchased at 50 cents instead of $1.

Program Supt. Ed Haag said he hopes the price reductions will encourage students to visit the recreation programs.

Cards may be purchased at the park district office, 650 W. Higgins Rd., during regular office hours.

Land use in area topic of meeting

The Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates League of Women Voters will discuss area land use at 7:30 p.m. today in the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

Members will be asked to name specific objectives they feel planners should study for future development in the communities.

Village, township agree to property transfer plan

An agreement has been reached which clears the way for the transfer of land from Elk Grove Village to Elk Grove Township for a mental health center.

Elk Grove Township Trustee Bernard F. Lee said last week the township will accept the two-acre donation at Rohlwing and Nerge roads at its April 5 meeting. The land is to be used for a new permanent facility for the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center.

Lee said the agreement guarantees use of the center by Schaumburg Township residents, even if the mental health organization splits. The proposed facility would be in Elk Grove Township, near the northeast corner of Rohlwing and Nerge roads.

Lee said the mental health center has only four weeks left in which to apply for federal funding. The center hopes to obtain a federal construction grant for between 40 to 60 per cent of the center's $660,000 cost.

Each township has pledged $100,000 with the remaining $100,000 to be raised locally by a fund-raising committee.

Lee said at least a draft of the agreement will be voted on by Schaumburg Township at its March 24 meeting and by the mental health center board at its March 25 meeting.

School site rezoned for commercial use

The Hoffman Estates Plan Commission has approved the rezoning of 8.4 acres in the Moon Lake Village complex from school site to commercial use.

In return for the rezoning, Moon Lake developer Eric Kant has agreed to dedicate a 1.7-acre farm site to the village to be used as an historical museum by the Poplar Creek Historical Society.

The commission recommendation, if approved by the village board, will eliminate one of two school sites in the Moon Lake development, at Higgins Road, south of the Hilldale subdivision.

The remaining school site, adjacent to the farm site, is located east of Vista Lane.

No fear of flying for Wendy

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A ground hostess?

What in the world is a ground hostess anyway?

For 19-year-old Wendy Wenk, a former automobile mechanic, it is a dream job.

At Palwaukee Airport in Prospect Heights, Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue, she parks airplanes and takes pilots' food and fuel orders. She is a stewardess of sorts at this small airport where the closest thing to a commercial airliner to land there was Arnold Palmer's Lear jet.

She is having the time of her life, and in just three years, Wendy has obtained a private pilot's license. She now is preparing to compete in cross-country air races.

THE SKY, FOR Wendy, is not just a place for clouds. It is a playground where she escapes in her plane to enjoy the view and soar through the air for the thrill of it.

But, it wasn't always that way. When George Priester, owner of Palwaukee Airport, asked her to take the job, Wendy was working as a gas station attendant.

"When I started here, I didn't like riding as a passenger in either of my parents' private planes. They have been private pilots for 15 years," she said.

And then, flying got into her blood.

"I would meet with the visiting pilots for lunch and they'd tell me about their experiences in the air. I began to realize how much fun people had flying planes and thought I would give it a try," Wendy said.

SHE WAS TAKING flying lessons and was just about ready to take a test for her private pilot's license when Wendy had her first and only mishap.

"I was in a rented plane and coming in for a landing at Palwaukee when I lost it somehow and my nose gear collapsed when I hit the runway. I wasn't

Volunteers seek 50% pay hike as firefighters

by JERRY THOMAS

Rolling Meadows paid-on-call volunteer firemen will ask the city for 50 per cent salary increases and extra compensation for those who work as drivers and pump operators.

The request is expected to be made to city officials tonight along with one from the full-time firemen who are asking for 10 per cent salary increases and a $1,500 incentive raise for paramedics.

The salary negotiations will be discussed at today's special city council budget meeting at 8 p.m.

The city's 25 volunteers currently are paid $5 per hour. Their new request seeks $7.50 per hour for a one-hour minimum or $5 per hour for a two-hour minimum.

IN ADDITION, they have requested an increase from $16 to $24 for night pay. They also are asking an increase in training pay, from the present $3 an hour to $7.50 an hour.

In their report, the volunteers questioned why a volunteer who gets paid for calls receives so much less than a full-time fireman.

The full timers' request for increases notes that the city department is below average in pay scale and benefits.

Full-time firemen represented by the Professional Fire Fighters Assn. submitted the raise request based on a survey that shows city firemen rank eighth in salary out of nine area towns. A beginning city fireman receives $11,497 yearly.

THE CITY'S 18 full-time firemen also want approval of a new vacation plan. They now receive 5 days off for 1 to 7 years of service, 7 days for 8 to 15 years, and 10 days off after 15 years.

Each day off is a 24-hour work shift. Firemen now work an average of 240 hours a month and a five-day vacation would equal 120 hours off or approximately half of the hours worked in a month.

In addition to the pay increases, the

Wilke Road water main completion within month

The DiPaolo Co. of Niles is expected to complete installation of a new water main along Wilke Road within a month.

William Bachem, of the Arlington Heights Engineering Dept., said installation of the 24-inch water main is about 60 per cent complete.

When completed, the transmission line will run north from the new well at Wilke and Kirchoff roads to Hawthorne Street opposite Arlington Park Race Track.

Cost of the project is $303,000.

Bachem said the new water transmission line will reinforce the water system in the village. It also is designed to improve water distribution.

The first segment of the main, from the new pumping station still under construction to Kirchoff Road, is needed for the operation of the new well. The second stretch, from Kirchoff Road along Wilke Road to Hawthorne Street, is needed to reinforce the water system in that area.

Walker looks down, but he may not be out

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Here is what a defeated Gov. Dan Walker did not say, but was thinking Wednesday when he had to force the words, "Congratulations to Mike Howlett" through his teeth.

He talked about reviewing his options, but refused to state them.

His options are:

- Staying neutral in the November general election fight between Howlett and James R. Thompson.
- Backing Thompson in the race against Howlett.
- Backing Howlett in the race against Thompson (Walker aides got a big laugh from that one).
- Forming a third party in Illinois to run against Howlett and Thompson.

Look at the 700,000 votes Gov. Daniel Walker says he piled up in Illinois Tuesday and then look at his aides. People in the highest levels of the Walker camp already have started to sound out the third party idea.

BESIDES REFUSING to explain his options, the governor also said there are several questions that must be answered before he makes a decision on his political future.

Those questions are:

- What did Howlett do for Sun Steel to earn $15,000 per year for the last 15 years?
- Why did Howlett pay income taxes on $100,000 in campaign contributions several years ago?
- Is it illegal for owners of stock in a harness racing organization to make a campaign loan to a political candidate?

If the answers to those questions, which will come from several on-going investigations, show Howlett did something wrong, the third party bid becomes more realistic.

In the aftermath of the apparent end of the Walker attack on Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization, an observer gets the impression that while the votes have been counted, Walker may be a long way from being out.

HE MAY JUST mount a third party movement, something that is legal in Illinois, just to give Daley one more battle royale. Walker needs 25,000 signatures on petitions and a full slate of candidates, including people running for trustee to the University of Illinois before Aug. 2 to start a third party.

He proved Tuesday he has a lot of friends who do not mind being thrashed at the polls, so it appears all he really needs is the signatures.

Walker probably could not win in a three-way race, but he could get enough Democratic votes to give Thompson a good chance at beating Howlett.

He also may need the third party ruse to give some way of avoiding the liabilities of being a lameduck governor for the next nine months.

WALKER, WHO MADE much sound and fury with the legislature in his first three years could be the lamest of the lame ducks in the eyes of the lawmakers who know Walker is on his way out soon.

Without the third party movement, Walker's anticipated thundering over the state budget and other legislative matters will sound very hollow.

And while the Walker-Howlett race might be the most interesting to ponder, there are some items of note to mention in other races around the area.

In the 10th Congressional District, Samuel H. Young and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, go into their "rubber match," in what has been a six-year campaign in the district.

YOUNG PROVED to be the top vote getter in three-way Republican race Tuesday. He showed, despite some claims by party regulars in the district, that he is the man the people want to face Mikva in November.

In the Republican presidential primary, Ronald Reagan supporters, even with strong name recognition in their favor, failed to win a single delegate-candidate in the 12th Congressional District. U.S. Rep. Philip M.

Howlett sues to stop Walker probe

by KURT BAER

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett filed suit Wednesday against Gov. Daniel Walker to stop an investigation of $100,000 in loans Howlett received in 1972 from a company owning race track stock.

The investigation is politically motivated and was ordered by Walker to discredit Howlett during the recent gubernatorial primary campaign; the suit charges.

The suit asks the Cook County Circuit Court to prevent the Walker administration from pursuing the probe.

Instead, it requests the court appoint "independent fact finders of unquestioned impartiality" to conduct the investigation.

THE LOANS ARE being investigated by Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano and others at Walker's request because Illinois law prohibits race track stockholders from contributing to political campaigns.

Howlett received the loans from the Nationwide Acceptance Corp., Chicago, which owns 6,844 shares of stock

by JUDIE BLACK

Back in the 1920s when Daniel Bergman bought his 200 acres of land along Ela and Algonquin roads he paid less than $200 an acre. Last year a neighbor sold some of his land for $8,000 an acre.

Farmers "simply can't afford not to sell at $3,000 to $10,000 an acre," Bergman's son, Harold, said. The younger Bergman farms 38 acres, that his 94-year-old father still owns.

Some of the elder Bergman's contemporaries have sold their farms in Palatine and surrounding townships for significant profits and then moved Downstate to retire or to buy cheaper land and begin farming again.

"THERE'S A TREMENDOUS pressure on farmers to convert their land from farm to commercial," said Bill Whiteside, farm adviser for Cook County extension office in Tinley Park. "There's just no way under the sun a farmer can resist a super fantastic deal like 600 per cent return on his initial investment."

Because of farmers' inability to resist and the continuing urban sprawl, the number of producing farm acres in Cook County has dwindled, Whiteside said. The county has 622,000 acres of land including public, private, commercial and agricultural.

In the three years from 1971 to 1974, the number of producing farm acres dwindled from 3,561 acres in Palatine Township to 3,000 acres in 1974, according to the Illinois Dept. of Agriculture.

During those same three years, 294 fewer acres produced corn in Palatine, 711 fewer acres produced soybeans and 78 fewer acres yielded alfalfa hay.

THE "SUPERFANTASTIC deal" Bergman's neighbor got represents farmland estimated not for its agricultural use in producing corn and soybeans but its commercial potential in apartment complexes and shopping centers.

That formula works well when a farmer is ready to sell, but it is also used in assessing estate tax liability. Most farmers think that's unfair.

If the younger Bergman were to inherit his father's 38 acres of land, he might have to sell the land to pay the federal estate tax. If the elder Bergman's estate were valued at the price his neighbor got last spring, the younger Bergman would face taxes on an estate valued at at least $168,000 ($228,000 less the $60,000 federal estate exemption).

Most farmers are "hoping and praying" that exemption will soon be increased, said Leonard W. Schultz, a Woodstock farmer and board member of the Illinois Agriculture Assn. (IAA). "And if inflation keeps going the way it has been, (who knows) what would be enough?"

SCHULTZ SAID THE IAA hasn't endorsed any of the 206 bills currently being considered in Congress which call for estate exemption increases ranging from $150,000 to $200,000.

One of the bills would value farm land at its current use rather than its market value. The bill, introduced by Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Tex., also would increase the estate exemption to $200,000 and make it available to all persons, not just farmers.

Burleson's bill also would raise the marital deduction of 50 per cent to 50 per cent plus $100,000. The Library of Congress estimates that if Burleson's bill were adopted and applied to everyone, the U.S. Treasury would lose as much as $2.52 billion a year in tax revenue.

President Ford has proposed raising the exemption to $150,000 and allowing the estates, inheritors 20 years to pay the tax at reduced interest rates.

Such proposals don't placate farmers contemplating the ultimate loss of their farmlands and the farming tradition fading from their families, Whiteside said. Progressive Farmer Magazine estimates from 200,000 to 400,000 farms will disappear during the next 20 years unless something is done to encourage young persons to enter farming and stay.

"It's very sad to think of succeeding generations who have a farming past but have no land they can afford to keep," Whiteside said. "Land is just something you can't create because you want it."

State to study flooding potential along Rte. 53

Potential flooding problems caused by the extension of Ill. Rte. 53 into Lake County are being investigated by local and state officials.

Clarice Rech, Buffalo Grove trustee and Lawrence Oppenheimer, Wheeling director of public works, have expressed concern about drainage and flooding problems that may be caused by the extension.

The Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Soil Conservation Service of Lake County have sent letters indicating their concern to the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

PLANS FOR Ill. Rte. 53 call for the highway to continue north through Lake County to link up with an access road to Interstate 94. The route will become a major access road to northern recreation areas when completed.

Mrs. Rech said this week she was worried whether the road construction will disturb natural wetlands in Lake County, and said the elimination of natural retention could lead to flooding problems further downstream in Buffalo Creek.

Oppenheimer said last month he wrote a letter to the transportation department ,stating that Wheeling officials are "looking for a guarantee the construction of the freeway will not in any way" stymie efforts to control flooding in the village.

Oppenheimer said he wanted more information on provisions to control increased flooding caused by roadway drainage into Buffalo Creek and Indian Creek.

HE ALSO ASKED whether the state will help fund construction of a detention basin planned in the Checker Road area. He said a transportation department report on the freeway states the highway construction "may result in downstream flood hazards."

The transportation department has prepared a preliminary environmental impact statement on the effects of the roadway construction, but a statement indicating final construction plans has not yet come out, said Arnold Seaberg, Buffalo Grove village engineer.

Seaberg said the roadway will pass through the periphery of several low-lying areas, but said the project will have a "minimal impact" on flooding in Buffalo Grove.

Ron Gebhardt, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, said the preliminary construction plans showed a disturbance of the swamp areas and low marshes, causing a possible 50 per cent increase in the flow of water in Buffalo Creek.

He said he agreed with the Metropolitan Sanitary District's objections about possible increased flooding, and said he was concerned that filling in the low-lying areas would result in less storage for stormwater run-off.

city council is expected to consider adding seven firemen to the department and approximately $99,000 in new equipment purchases.

Those recommendations were made in a recent professional consultants report on the department's present and future needs.

The fire department staff has remained at 18 full-time firemen since December 1972. Although six full-time firemen were to be added to the department in the last fiscal year, the city imposed a hiring freeze because of financial problems, putting off the new hirings.

Police urge owners to license their dogs

Rolling Meadows police are reminding residents that pet dogs must be licensed annually by the city. Police say an increase has occurred in recent weeks in the number of dogs running loose in the city.

In the last two days, 16 citations have been issued to persons whose pets were running loose in the city, police report. One case involved a collie being struck and injured by a car.

Fines of $3, $5 and $25 are charged for repeated violations of the pet laws. Police also have the authority to take the animal if more than three violations occur.

Dog licenses are available for $3 at the city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd. Pet laws also require that all dogs wear a collar and tags, and be leashed if off the owner's property.

Sitkowski killing, earlier attempt not related: cops

Rolling Meadows police said Wednesday there is no apparent link between the murder March 2 of a former city resident and a murder attempt on his life last October.

Police Chief Lewis Case said the bullets that killed Thomas Sitkowski, 35, in Chicago did not match with ones recovered from a shooting incident Oct. 21, 1975, which left him wounded in his Rolling Meadows apartment, 2310 Algonquin Rd.

He said local police have been unable to question a social worker charged with the murder. William Coughlin, 30, an Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services caseworker, was charged with murder in connection with Sitkowski's shooting death.

Sitkowski was shot to death and his Arlington Heights attorney, Daniel Wolff, was wounded when they were walking toward their auto parked on a Chicago street.

Police have said the murder stemmed from an argument between Sitkowski and Coughlin about reported mistreatment of Sitkowski's 15-year-old daughter, Tammy, who was living as a foster child in the Coughlin household.

In the October shooting spree, Sitkowski was shot twice in the back while he was watching television in his apartment. An unknown assailant fired five shots through a window while standing on the second-floor balcony.

13-year-old gets probation for school damage

A 13-year-old Mount Prospect youth has been ordered to serve one year on probation for his part in a $100,000 vandalism spree at Gregory School last December.

The youngster, a student of the school, 400 E. Gregory, was sentenced during an appearance Wednesday in Niles Juvenile Court.

Kenneth Zschach, juvenile investigator for the Mount Prospect police said two other youngsters, ages 13 and 14, entered guilty pleas to charges of damage to property in the Gregory school vandalism as well as causing $25,000 damage at Dunton School, 1200 S. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights the same weekend.

The two will be sentenced April 28 in juvenile court following a background investigation, Zschach said.

All three were arrested Dec 29 after Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights juvenile authorities traced their identities through students at both schools.

In the Gregory School attack, which occurred Dec 27, vandals smashed windows and broke and damaged several pieces of equipment.

Last of 6 companies meets pollution rules

The last of six firms which had allegedly polluted the Elk Grove Township sewer system has taken steps to meet township pollution standards.

DeBruyne Enterprises, 2420 E. Oakton St., has acted to correct the pollution problems which township officials had said caused high levels of grease and oil to be discharged into the Oakton Industrial sanitary sewer system.

The township had threatened a lawsuit against the company when the firm's officials at first refused to meet with township representatives on the matter.

Nita Stamm, township environmental officer, said retesting of the system will be conducted Friday.

She said five other firms which had been cited for the pollution violations have complied or are in the process of complying with township standards.

The other firms are Cumberland Servicecenter, 2375 Oakton St.; Donlon Engineering Co., 125 Elizabeth Dr.; Nolden Steel Fabricators Inc., 105 Weiler Rd ; Ronnie Kaplan Engineering Co., 115 Elizabeth Dr., and National Industrial Trucking 2225 E. Oakton St.

More petitions necessary for Heatherlea annex

Palatine Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said Tuesday that unless more annexation petitions are presented to the village from the unincorporated Heatherlea subdivision, he is doubtful incorporation of the subdivision will take place.

Harwig said petitions presented thus far have only barely enough names over the number required for the Cook County Circuit Court to approve such a move. He said unless more names are presented, he would recommend the area not spend its money to file the petitions in court.

In order to qualify for annexation, more than 50 per cent of the registered voters and property owners plus owners of 50 per cent of the property in the subdivision must sign a petition. The subdivision includes 268 homes.

HARWIG SAID THE village has not validated the names because this is up to the courts to do. He said with the current set of petitions, if one or two names are invalidated, the petitions would not meet the annexation percentage requirements.

Allan Finkelman, a leader in the annexation drive, said he has more petitions to present to the village but has not gotten around to sending them. He said he would do so within a week.

"I think the village would like us to have about 58 per cent to provide enough of a cushion," Finkelman said. He said he did not know if the petitions yet to be submitted to the village will provide that margin.

Proannexation residents in the subdivision, located north of Palatine, have been organizaing the drive since last fall. Petitions were presented to the village in January.

RESIDENTS OPPOSED to annexation have said they will file an objection to the annexation if petitions are filed in court.

Harwig said Heatherlea is the only subdivision among several located north of Palatine where residents have expressed an interest in annexation. Homeowner association officials in the Pepper Tree subdivision have said there is no annexation move under way there. Several residents in English Valley have discussed annexation but a petition drive has not yet begun.

The village recently moved to annex the unincorporated Palatine Park subdivision, located south of Northwest Highway and east of Quentin Road. The village was presented with signatures from 52 of 66 homeowners in the subdivision. The petitions will be forwarded to the circuit court for validation.

No fear of flying for Wendy

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A ground hostess?

What in the world is a ground hostess anyway?

For 19-year-old Wendy Wenk, a former automobile mechanic, it is a dream job.

At Palwaukee Airport in Prospect Heights, Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue, she parks airplanes and takes pilots' food and fuel orders. She is a stewardess of sorts at this small airport where the closest thing to a commercial airliner to land there was Arnold Palmer's Lear jet.

She is having the time of her life, and in just three years, Wendy has obtained a private pilot's license. She now is preparing to compete in cross-country air races.

THE SKY, FOR Wendy, is not just a place for clouds. It is a playground where she escapes in her plane to enjoy the view and soar through the air for the thrill of it.

But, it wasn't always that way. When George Priester, owner of Palwaukee Airport, asked her to take the job, Wendy was working as a gas station attendant.

"When I started here, I didn't like riding as a passenger in either of my parents' private planes. They have been private pilots for 15 years," she said.

And then, flying got into her blood.

"I would meet with the visiting pilots for lunch and they'd tell me about their experiences in the air. I began to realize how much fun people had flying planes and thought I would give it a try," Wendy said.

SHE WAS TAKING flying lessons and was just about ready to take a test for her private pilot's license when Wendy had her first and only mishap.

"I was in a rented plane and coming in for a landing at Palwaukee when I lost it somehow and my nose gear collapsed when I hit the runway. I wasn't

Farmers gain big profits selling soil, not tilling it

by JUDIE BLACK

Back in the 1920s when Daniel Bergman bought his 200 acres of land along Ela and Algonquin roads he paid less than $200 an acre. Last year a neighbor sold some of his land for $6,000 an acre.

Farmers "simply can't afford not to sell at $3,000 to $10,000 an acre," Bergman's son, Harold, said. The younger Bergman farms 38 acres, that his 94-year-old father still owns.

Some of the elder Bergman's contemporaries have sold their farms in Palatine and surrounding townships for significant profits and then moved Downstate to retire or to buy cheaper land and begin farming again

"THERE'S A TREMENDOUS pressure on farmers to convert their land from farm to commercial," said Bill Whiteside, farm adviser for Cook County extension office in Tinley Park. "There's just no way under the sun a farmer can resist a super fantastic deal like 600 per cent return on his initial investment."

Because of farmers' inability to resist and the continuing urban sprawl, the number of producing farm acres in Cook County has dwindled, Whiteside said. The county has 622,000 acres of land including public, private, commercial and agricultural.

In the three years from 1971 to 1974, the number of producing farm acres dwindled from 3,561 acres in Palatine Township to 3,000 acres in 1974, according to the Illinois Dept. of Agriculture.

During those same three years, 294 fewer acres produced corn in Palatine, 711 fewer acres produced soybeans and 78 fewer acres yielded alfalfa hay.

THE "SUPERFANTASTIC deal" Bergman's neighbor got represents farmland estimated not for its agricultural use in producing corn and soybeans but its commercial potential in apartment complexes and shopping centers.

That formula works well when a farmer is ready to sell, but it is also used in assessing estate tax liability. Most farmers think that's unfair.

If the younger Bergman were to inherit his father's 38 acres of land, he might have to sell the land to pay the federal estate tax. If the elder Bergman's estate were valued at the price his neighbor got last spring, the younger Bergman would face taxes on an estate valued at at least $168,000 ($228,000 less the $60,000 federal estate exemption).

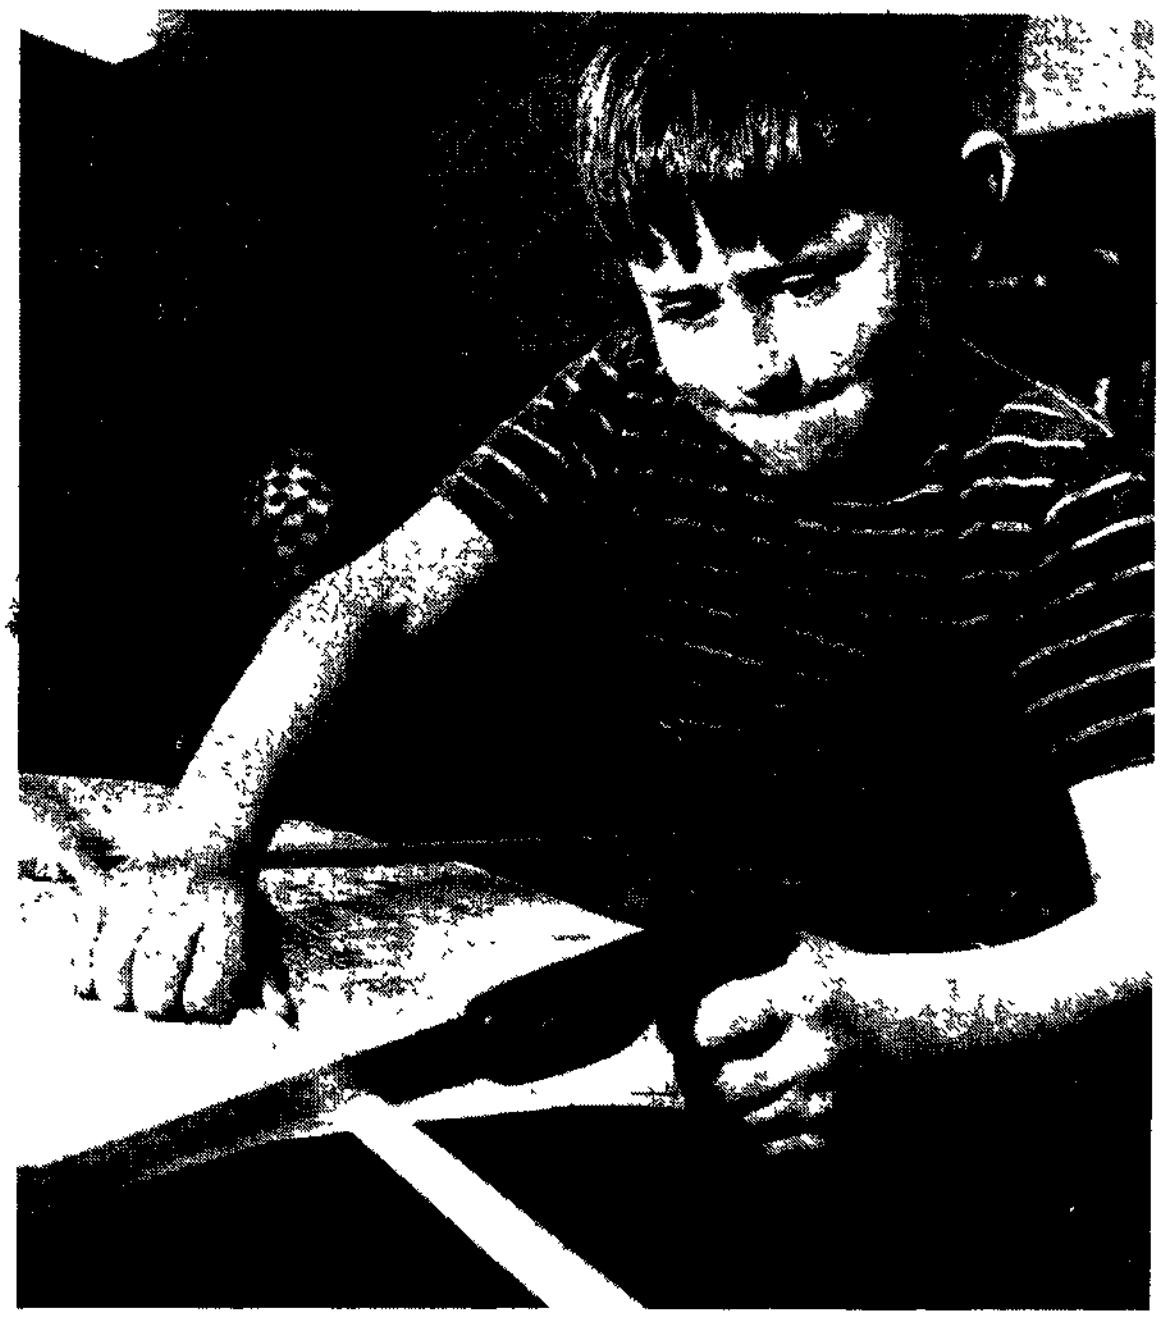

Most farmers are "hoping and praying" that exemption will soon be increased, said Leonard W. Schultz, a Woodstock farmer and board member of the Illinois Agriculture Assn. (IAA). "And if inflation keeps going the way it has been, (who knows) what would be enough?"

SCHULTZ SAID THE IAA hasn't endorsed any of the 206 bills currently being considered in Congress which call for estate exemption increases ranging from $150,000 to $200,000.

One of the bills would value farm land at its current use rather than its market value. The bill, introduced by Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Tex., also would increase the estate exemption to $200,000 and make it available to all persons, not just farmers.

Burleson's bill also would raise the marital deduction of 50 per cent to 50 per cent plus $100,000. The Library of Congress estimates that if Burleson's

Heatherlea annex bid in trouble?

Palatine Village Mgr. Anton H Harwig said Tuesday that unless more annexation petitions are presented to the village from the unincorporated Heatherlea subdivision, he is doubtful incorporation of the subdivision will take place.

Harwig said petitions presented thus far have only barely enough names over the number required for the Cook County Circuit Court to approve such a move He said unless more names are presented, he would recommend the area not spend its money to file the petitions in court.

In order to qualify for annexation, more than 50 per cent of the registered voters and property owners plus owners of 50 per cent of the property in the subdivision must sign a petition. The subdivision includes 268 homes.

HARWIG SAID THE village has not validated the names because this is up to the courts to do He said with the current set of petitions, if one or two names are invalidated, the petitions would not meet the annexation percentage requirements.

Allan Finkelman, a leader in the annexation drive, said he has more peti-

Walker looks down, but he may not be out

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Here is what a defeated Gov. Dan Walker did not say, but was thinking Wednesday when he had to force the words, "Congratulations to Mike Howlett" through his teeth.

He talked about reviewing his options, but refused to state them.

His options are:

- Staying neutral in the November general election fight between Howlett and James R. Thompson.
- Backing Thompson in the race against Howlett.
- Backing Howlett in the race against Thompson (Walker aides got a big laugh from that one).
- Forming a third party in Illinois to run against Howlett and Thompson.

Look at the 700,000 votes Gov. Daniel Walker says he piled up in Illinois Tuesday and then look at his aides. People in the highest levels of the Walker camp already have started to sound out the third party idea.

BESIDES REFUSING to explain his options, the governor also said there are several questions that must be answered before he makes a decision on his political future.

Those questions are:

- What did Howlett do for Sun Steel to earn $15,000 per year for the last 15 years?
- Why did Howlett pay income taxes on $100,000 in campaign contributions several years ago?
- Is it illegal for owners of stock in a harness racing organization to make a campaign loan to a political candidate?

If the answers to those questions, which will come from several on-going investigations, show Howlett did something wrong, the third party bid becomes more realistic.

In the aftermath of the apparent end of the Walker attack on Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization, an observer gets the impression that while the votes have been counted, Walker may be a long way from being out.

HE MAY JUST mount a third party movement, something that is legal in Illinois, just to give Daley one more battle royale. Walker needs 25,000 signatures on petitions and a full slate of candidates, including people running for trustee to the University of Illinois before Aug. 2 to start a third party.

He proved Tuesday he has a lot of friends who do not mind being thrashed at the polls, so it appears all he really needs is the signatures.

Walker probably could not win in a three-way race, but he could get enough Democratic votes to give Thompson a good chance at beating Howlett.

He also may need the third party ruse to give some way of avoiding the liabilities of being a lameduck governor for the next nine months.

WALKER, WHO MADE much sound and fury with the legislature in his first three years could be the lamest of the lame ducks in the eyes of the lawmakers who know Walker is on his way out soon.

Without the third party movement, Walker's anticipated thundering over the state budget and other legislative matters will sound very hollow.

And while the Walker-Howlett race might be the most interesting to ponder, there are some items of note to mention in other races around the area.

In the 10th Congressional District, Samuel H. Young and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, go into their "rubber match," in what has been a six-year campaign in the district.

YOUNG PROVED to be the top vote getter in three-way Republican race Tuesday. He showed, despite some claims by party regulars in the district, that he is the man the people want to face Mikva in November.

In the Republican presidential primary, Ronald Reagan supporters, even with strong name recognition in their favor, failed to win a single delegate-candidate in the 12th Congressional District. U.S. Rep. Philip M.

Howlett sues to stop Walker probe

by KURT BAER

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett filed suit Wednesday against Gov. Daniel Walker to stop an investigation of $100,000 in loans Howlett received in 1972 from a company owning race track stock.

The investigation is politically motivated and was ordered by Walker to discredit Howlett during the recent gubernatorial primary campaign, the suit charges.

The suit asks the Cook County Circuit Court to prevent the Walker administration from pursuing the probe.

Instead, it requests the court appoint "independent fact finders of unquestioned impartiality" to conduct the investigation.

THE LOANS ARE being investigated by Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano and others at Walker's request because Illinois law prohibits race track stockholders from contributing to political campaigns.

Howlett received the loans from the Nationwide Acceptance Corp., Chicago, which owns 6,844 shares of stock

Solution to financial problems

Motz sees need for budget cuts

by LINDA PUNCH

Wheeling's new village manager Wednesday said village budget cuts will be necessary because "tax revenues are not enough to justify the whims and fancies of the people."

Named village manager Tuesday, Clarence Motz said he expects to reduce village expenditures as a solution to current financial problems. He takes over the post May 1.

"Local government is a business. We don't operate for profit, but we can't operate at a deficit," he said.

In January, Wheeling issued $100,000 in tax anticipation warrants to cover unexpected increases in village operating expenses.

Motz said industrial growth is one of his major concerns.

"I THINK THE area has terrific potential. I'm going to pursue it as much as I can, but be very selective. What the community gets is important, not only in the present but in the future," he said.

Motz said he will present no specific plans for the village until he is able to evaluate the current situation.

"There's going to be a study made of each individual department and there's going to be changes. I'm going to make evaluations and call the shots as I see them, I'm not a hatchet man but I expect a job well done," he said.

Motz, 55, currently city manager of Stanton, Calif., will replace George Passott, who was fired by the board in October. Passolt has agreed to stay on the job until Motz takes over.

In announcing Motz' appointment, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said Motz "has a background of being a strong administrator who carefully scrutinizes all financial expenditures" including a "demonstrated record for turning deficits into surpluses."

Motz has more than 20 years of local government administrative experience, including 12 years in city manager positions. He has been city manager of Stanton since 1974. Prior to that he was manager in Blaine, Minn., for two years.

Heatherlea annex petitions needed

tions to present to the village but has not gotten around to sending them. He said he would do so within a week.

"I think the village would like us to have about 58 per cent to provide enough of a cushion," Finkelman said. He said he did not know if the petitions yet to be submitted to the village will provide that margin.

Proannexation residents in the subdivision, located north of Palatine, have been organizaing the drive since last fall. Petitions were presented to the village in January.

RESIDENTS OPPOSED to annexation have said they will file an objection to the annexation if petitions are filed in court.

Harwig said Heatherlea is the only subdivision among several located north of Palatine where residents have expressed an interest in annexation. Homeowner association officials in the Pepper Tree subdivision have said there is no annexation move under way there. Several residents in English Valley have discussed annexation but a petition drive has not yet begun.

The village recently moved to annex the unincorporated Palatine Park subdivision, located south of Northwest Highway and east of Quentin Road. The village was presented with signatures from 52 of 66 homeowners in the subdivision. The petitions will be forwarded to the circuit court for validation.

bill were adopted and applied to everyone, the U.S. Treasury would lose as much as $2.52 billion a year in tax revenue.

President Ford has proposed raising the exemption to $150,000 and allowing the estates, inheritors 20 years to pay the tax at reduced interest rates.

Such proposals don't placate farmers contemplating the ultimate loss of their farmlands and the farming tradition fading from their families, Whiteside said. Progressive Farmer Magazine estimates from 200,000 to 400,000 farms will disappear during the next 20 years unless something is done to encourage young persons to enter farming and stay.

"It's very sad to think of succeeding generations who have a farming past but have no land they can afford to keep," Whiteside said. "Land is just something you can't create because you want it."

Cancer fund nets $637

The Palatine Savings and Loan Assn., 100 W. Palatine Rd., raised more than $637 from its recent tropical plant sale to benefit the American Cancer Society.

The money was presented to the Northwest Division of the American Cancer Society.

Girl Scouts birthday fair

Palatine Girl Scouts will sponsor a communitywide fair Saturday at the Countryside Mall, Baldwin and Hicks roads, to celebrate their 64th birthday.

The fair will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Art exhibits will be on display for the Brownie Art Contest. Frank Feeley, Dist. 15 art teacher, will judge the contest.

Junior troop members will present ceramics, stitchery, badge work, hats and decorated eggs. A camping equipment demonstration also will be presented.

Bicentennial chief should quit: Cole

Wheeling Trustee John C. Cole is calling for the resignation of Kathi Bellwoar as chairman of the Wheeling Bicentennial Commission.

Cole asked for Mrs. Bellwoar's resignation at a Tuesday meeting between the commission and the village board. The two groups discussed the problems leading to the village's purchase of $7,000 worth of tickets to a Wheeling night performance of the Medinah Shrine Circus last week. Another meeting to resolve problems is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at the village hall, 256 W. Dundee Rd.

The commission agreed to sell about 4,000 circus tickets as a Bicentennial fund-raising project, but only half actually were sold. As a result, the village legally was obligated to purchase the remaining tickets and distribute them free to Wheeling residents.

COLE SAID Wednesday he is not asking for Mrs. Bellwoar's resignation because the village was committed to buying the unsold tickets.

"I've asked her to resign because of the procedures used in handling and accounting for the tickets. The methods used were not very businesslike for that kind of thing," he said.

Mrs. Bellwoar Wednesday said she would not resign.

Village officials said 353 tickets cannot be accounted for, and an additional 460 tickets mailed to village residents were neither purchased nor returned.

Trustee Gilbert Monoson said Cole has "raised some valid questions."

"I DON'T KNOW if I agree with his (Cole's) asking Mrs. Bellwoar to resign, but the tickets have to be accounted for. If the circus tickets were distributed in an irresponsible manner, then I will second his motion for her to resign," Monoson said.

Monoson said Mrs. Bellwoar should meet with village officials to find out "where the tickets are and make as full a report as possible as to the money expended."

"If inaccuracies and failure of communication do exist between the commission and the board, Mrs. Bellwoar should be given every chance to present her side. If it's the fault of the trustees, we should chalk it up to experience and set guidelines so it never happens again," he said.

Flood woes on Rte. 53 investigated

Potential flooding problems caused by the extension of Ill. Rte. 53 into Lake County are being investigated by local and state officials.

Clarice Rech, Buffalo Grove trustee and Lawrence Oppenheimer, Wheeling director of public works, have expressed concern about drainage and flooding problems that may be caused by the extension.

The Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Soil Conservation Service of Lake County have sent letters indicating their concern to the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

PLANS FOR Ill. Rte. 53 call for the highway to continue north through Lake County to link up with an access road to Interstate 94. The route will become a major access road to northern recreation areas when completed.

Mrs. Rech said this week she was worried whether the road construction will disturb natural wetlands in Lake County, and said the elimination of natural retention could lead to flooding problems further downstream in Buffalo Creek.

Oppenheimer said last month he wrote a letter to the transportation department ,stating that Wheeling officials are "looking for a guarantee the construction of the freeway will not in any way" stymie efforts to control flooding in the village.

Oppenheimer said he wanted more information on provisions to control increased flooding caused by roadway drainage into Buffalo Creek and Indian Creek.

HE ALSO ASKED whether the state will help fund construction of a detention basin planned in the Checker Road area. He said a transportation department report on the freeway states the highway construction "may result in downstream flood hazards."

The transportation department has prepared a preliminary environmental impact statement on the effects of the roadway construction, but a statement indicating final construction plans has not yet come out, said Arnold Seaberg, Buffalo Grove village engineer.

Work on mall to begin June 1 in Des Plaines

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of a $3 8 million shopping mall, part of the Superblock redevelopment project in downtown Des Plaines, will begin June 1.

The three-story enclosed shopping mall is part of a $12 million joint venture by J. R Gottlieb and Co., Chicago and Erikson and Stevens Inc., Des Plaines Construction of a 10-story Superblock office building began last year

Jerome Gottlieb, president of J. R. Gottlieb, said developers have obtained the $3 8 million loan from Salk, Ward and Salk Inc., Chicago, to pay for construction of the shopping mall.

THE 140,000-SQUARE-FOOT shopping mall will house about 40 stores, and is expected to be completed early next year, Gottlieb said.

Spiegler Department Store, Des Plaines, will be the primary tenant in the shopping center, occupying about 22,000 square-feet on all three floors.

Mel Helms, vice president of J. R. Gottlieb, said developers are talking to other businesses about renting the remaining space in the shopping center.

"We are negotiating with one major restaurant for a location in the mall as well as boutiques, a book store, a florist shop and several clothing stores," he said.

DENNIS STEVENS, project architect, said the shopping center will have two major atriums with natural skylights, stairs at each end of the corridors and escalators in the middle.

"The emphasis will be on natural plants," Stevens said "There will be light, natural woods and natural smaller, more personal walkways and open glass store fronts wherever possible

"It will be one of the most modern shopping center designs in the suburbs today," he said.

The office building, expected to be completed later this year, will house th First National Bank of Des Plaines as well as other businesses.

SUPERBLOCK, the first phase in the redevelopment of the downtown area, is bounded on the north by Elmwood Street, on the south by Prairie Street, on the east by Pearson Street and on the west by Lee Street.

"What we're doing is relocating the prime corner of Des Plaines' downtown area," said Gottlieb. "The new mall should bring another $15 million to $20 million in business to the downtown area alone."

As part of an agreement with the Superblock developers, the city is planning to construct a $1.3 million parking deck to serve the shopping mall and office building. The city also plans to improve the Pearson Street parking lot as well as the streets surrounding Superblock.

Gottlieb said the Superblock developers are planning a second phase of redevelopment in downtown Des Plaines that will accommodate another 20 businesses. Those plans, however, are not completed.

No fear of flying for Wendy

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A ground hostess?

What in the world is a ground hostess anyway?

For 19-year-old Wendy Wenk, a former automobile mechanic, it is a dream job.

At Palwaukee Airport in Prospect Heights, Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue, she parks airplanes and takes pilots' food and fuel orders. She is a stewardess of sorts at this small airport where the closest thing to a commercial airliner to land there was Arnold Palmer's Lear jet.

She is having the time of her life, and in just three years, Wendy has obtained a private pilot's license. She now is preparing to compete in cross-country air races.

THE SKY, FOR Wendy, is not just a place for clouds. It is a playground where she escapes in her plane to enjoy the view and soar through the air for the thrill of it.

But, it wasn't always that way. When George Priester, owner of Palwaukee Airport, asked her to take the job, Wendy was working as a gas station attendant.

"When I started here, I didn't like riding as a passenger in either of my parents' private planes. They have been private pilots for 15 years," she said.

And then, flying got into her blood.

"I would meet with the visiting pilots for lunch and they'd tell me about their experiences in the air. I began to realize how much fun people had flying planes and thought I would give it a try," Wendy said.

SHE WAS TAKING flying lessons and was just about ready to take a test for her private pilot's license when Wendy had her first and only mishap.

"I was in a rented plane and coming in for a landing at Palwaukee when I lost it somehow and my nose gear collapsed when I hit the runway. I wasn't

Dist. 26 picks Park View for possible closing

by DIANE GRANAT

Park View School, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, may be closed next fall to offset lower enrollments and decreased revenues in River Trails Dist. 26.

Supt. John Fridlund recommended closing Park View after it received the lowest ranking in an evaluation of the district's five elementary schools by a committee made up of administrators and a school board member.

In a report to the board of education Tuesday, Fridlund cited Park View's small box-like classrooms, poor storage areas, and inadequate learning center and kindergarten space as reasons for its low rating.

THE BOARD Tuesday approved an administration plan to close one elementary school, cut 21 teachers and increase class size from 20 to 26 pupils per class, saving the district about $300,000.

Dist. 26 will face bankruptcy by 1977-78 if spending remains at the current level and revenues are not increased. In addition, enrollment is expected to drop from 2,375 pupils this year to 2,257 for 1976-77, and to 2,023 by the 1980-81 school year.

The board will not make a final decision on which school will be shut down until April 6, Board Pres. Leora Rosen said. Mrs. Rosen said a public hearing will be held at the April 6 meeting before a decision is made.

The evaluation of which school to close was conducted by two central office administrators, a building administrator and one board member. The committee used a weighted ranking system prepared by Skokie Dist. 68.

BOARD MEMBER William Haase asked for another ranking of the schools by an independent committee. He suggested a five-person committee consisting of an architect, an education professor, and administrators and school board members from outside Dist. 26.

"While the board members in Dist. 26 are qualified to evaluate the schools, the public might argue that

Youth gets probation in school damage case

A 13-year-old Mount Prospect youth has been ordered to serve one year on probation for his part in a $100,000 vandalism spree at Gregory School last December.

The youngster, a student of the school, 400 E. Gregory, was sentenced during an appearance Wednesday in Niles Juvenile Court.

Kenneth Zschach, juvenile investigator for the Mount Prospect police said two other youngsters, ages 13 and 14, entered guilty pleas to charges of damage to property in the Gregory school vandalism as well as causing $25,000 damage at Dunton School, 1200 S. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights the same weekend.

The two will be sentenced April 28 in juvenile court following a background investigation, Zschach said.

All three were arrested Dec. 29 after Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights juvenile authorities traced their identities through students at both schools.

In the Gregory School attack, which occurred Dec. 27, vandals smashed windows and broke and damaged several pieces of equipment.

Walker looks down, but he may not be out

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Here is what a defeated Gov. Dan Walker did not say, but was thinking Wednesday when he had to force the words, "Congratulations to Mike Howlett" through his teeth.

He talked about reviewing his options, but refused to state them.

His options are:

- Staying neutral in the November general election fight between Howlett and James R. Thompson.
- Backing Thompson in the race against Howlett.
- Backing Howlett in the race against Thompson (Walker aides got a big laugh from that one).
- Forming a third party in Illinois to run against Howlett and Thompson.

Look at the 700,000 votes Gov. Daniel Walker says he piled up in Illinois Tuesday and then look at his aides. People in the highest levels of the Walker camp already have started to sound out the third party idea.

BESIDES REFUSING to explain his options, the governor also said there are several questions that must be answered before he makes a decision on his political future.

Those questions are:

- What did Howlett do for Sun Steel to earn $15,000 per year for the last 15 years?
- Why did Howlett pay income taxes on $100,000 in campaign contributions several years ago?
- Is it illegal for owners of stock in a harness racing organization to make a campaign loan to a political candidate?

If the answers to those questions, which will come from several on-going investigations, show Howlett did something wrong, the third party bid becomes more realistic.

In the aftermath of the apparent end of the Walker attack on Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization, an observer gets the impression that while the votes have been counted, Walker may be a long way from being out.

HE MAY JUST mount a third party movement, something that is legal in Illinois, just to give Daley one more battle royale. Walker needs 25,000 signatures on petitions and a full slate of candidates, including people running for trustee to the University of Illinois before Aug. 2 to start a third party.

He proved Tuesday he has a lot of friends who do not mind being thrashed at the polls, so it appears all he really needs is the signatures.

Walker probably could not win in a three-way race, but he could get enough Democratic votes to give Thompson a good chance at beating Howlett.

He also may need the third party ruse to give some way of avoiding the liabilities of being a lameduck governor for the next nine months.

WALKER, WHO MADE much sound and fury with the legislature in his first three years could be the lamest of the lame ducks in the eyes of the lawmakers who know Walker is on his way out soon.

Without the third party movement, Walker's anticipated thundering over the state budget and other legislative matters will sound very hollow.

And while the Walker-Howlett race might be the most interesting to ponder, there are some items of note to mention in other races around the area.

In the 10th Congressional District, Samuel H. Young and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, go into their "rubber match," in what has been a six-year campaign in the district.

YOUNG PROVED to be the top vote getter in three-way Republican race Tuesday. He showed, despite some claims by party regulars in the district, that he is the man the people want to face Mikva in November.

In the Republican presidential primary, Ronald Reagan supporters, even with strong name recognition in their favor, failed to win a single delegate-candidate in the 12th Congressional District. U.S. Rep. Philip M.

Howlett sues to stop Walker probe

by KURT BAER

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Howlett filed suit Wednesday against Gov. Daniel Walker to stop an investigation of $100,000 in loans Howlett received in 1972 from a company owning race track stock.

The investigation is politically motivated and was ordered by Walker to discredit Howlett during the recent gubernatorial primary campaign, the suit charges.

The suit asks the Cook County Circuit Court to prevent the Walker administration from pursuing the probe.

Instead, it requests the court appoint "independent fact finders of unquestioned impartiality" to conduct the investigation.

THE LOANS ARE being investigated by Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano and others at Walker's request because Illinois law prohibits race track stockholders from contributing to political campaigns.

Howlett received the loans from the Nationwide Acceptance Corp., Chicago, which owns 6,844 shares of stock

Tentative plan for downtown to village March 30

Tentative proposals for Mount Prospect's downtown redevelopment plan will be presented to the village board March 30.

Robert Bennett, downtown commission chairman, said the plan is scheduled for completion before the end of 1976. He said it will be based on the use of private money instead of village funds to finance redevelopment.

"The amount of money the village has to spend downtown is limited, and we just have to look to private capital In order to attract private capital, you have to be cognizant of the things that are attractive to private capital," Bennett said, noting his group has been working on such things as zoning and parking.

BENNETT SAID the purpose of meeting with the board is to get preliminary feedback on proposals now under study. He said the commission has identified possible locations for multiple-family housing, and wants to see "what they (the board) can live with."

Mayor Robert D. Teichert has called for completion of the downtown redevelopment plans by the end of 1976, and Bennett said this is not only feasible but necessary. The commission has been working on the plan since November 1974

Noting the availability of federal funds for such projects through the Housing and Community Development Act, Bennett said the village will have a better chance of getting these funds if it has a downtown plan.

"They (the federal government) are saying you really need to have a strong, well thought out plan for the downtown area," Bennett said

THE COMMISSION'S first project, beautification of the parking lot behind the village hall, is already under way. The village is expecting to receive $30,000 in community development funds for the project.

When completed, Bennett said, the project will be an important start towards redevelopment

"I think the parking project is important in that it certainly will serve to demonstrate that the village and private parties can work together," he said.

some people were biased," Haase said Wednesday. "Let's get people from outside the district to use the same criteria and come up with independent results."

Fridlund said he will appoint an independent committee and its findings will be used in the final evaluation of which school to close

"The first report was a dry run," Fridlund said. "If the five people use those guidelines and come up with different results we will present them to the board"

Board member Peggy Golden said she expected the independent committee to come up with the same results.

"I EXPECT THAT if we have a second group do an evaluation using our criteria, we will be able to reproduce similar results if the rating instrument is valid," Mrs. Golden said.

The method used to evaluate the schools consisted of nine criteria for building characteristics.

The schools were judged on their flexible and effective space for educational purposes and support services, adaptability to enrollment gain or loss, need for plant maintenance and improvements, traffic safety patterns and travel distance for pupils among others.

Park View received the lowest rating, followed by Bond School, 350 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect. Fridlund said he would prefer to keep Bond open because of its unique educational program and architectural design.

"IT HAS ALWAYS been obvious that the physical arrangement at Bond (six classrooms clustered around each of two Learning Centers) represented the latest in educational/architectural thought," Fridlund said in his report to the board.

"If a building must be closed and the first and most important consideration is what happens inside the school door and not the address of the school, then the building to keep open is Bond School," he said.

Park View has an enrollment of 376 pupils. The 18-classroom school was build in 1966.

Park View Principal Tomkins Barnhart said if Park View is closed next fall, students will attend Indian Grove, Bond and Feehanville schools.

Firdlund said it will cost at least $10,000 to transport Park View students to other schools.

Fridlund also said the district hopes to rent whichever school is vacated, which would provide additional revenue for the district.

Nontenured teachers fired in Dist. 26

Thirty nontenured teachers in River Trails Dist. 26 will receive dismissal notices for the 1976-77 school year.

The Dist. 26 Board of Education voted Tuesday to notify all the district's nontenured teachers that they will not be rehired for the coming school year in an attempt to offset declining enrollment and decreased revenues.

The cutbacks will reduce the district's teaching staff from 170 to 140.

Supt John Fridlund said unlike other school districts which send blanket dismissal notices to all nontinured teachers in the spring and rehire some teachers during the summer, none of the released Dist 26 teachers will be asked back next year.

The board Tuesday also approved an increase in class size from 20 to 26 pupils, which would result in the elimination of 21 teaching positions

Fridlund said the nine additional teachers will be released because of cutbacks in federally-funded programs and a reduction of the teaching force at Nipper School, 1101 E. Gregory St., Des Plaines. Nipper School serves children from Maryville Academy in Des Plaines, a facility for wards of the state.

George Chase, River Trails teachers' union president, had no comment Wednesday on the teacher cutbacks, but added the union will make a statement Friday after a meeting with teachers.

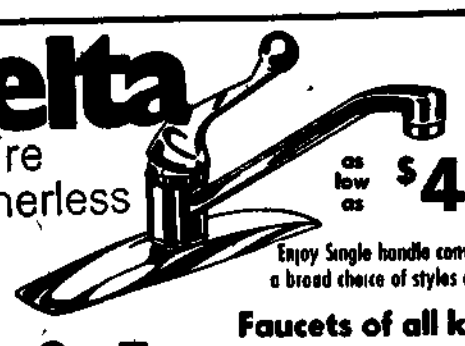

CB radio clinic offered by parks

The River Trails Park District will conduct the first of a two-part clinic on the use of citizens' band radios tonight at the community center, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

The free clinic will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. today and March 25.

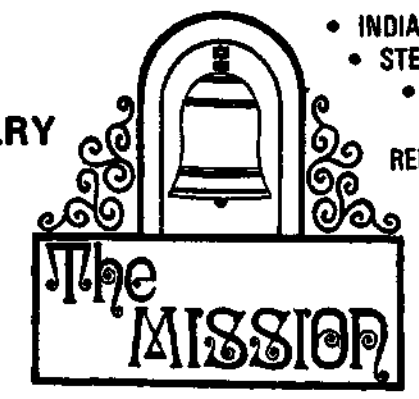

Glen Schroeder, a representative of Craig Corp., will demonstrate how to use the equipment and answer questions.

Voluntary plan to save water sought by trustee

Trustee Theodore J. Wattenberg of Mount Prospect tonight will call for development of a voluntary water conservation program at a meeting of the village's public works committee.

Saying that water conservation will soon become necessary, Wattenberg said he hopes voluntary steps can be taken to avoid passage of a mandatory conservation program.

"What I want is to reduce sprinkling and car washing rather than the village board passing an ordinance restricting lawn sprinkling," he said.

WATTENBERG HAS invited community leaders to tonight's meeting.

"Hopefully, Mount Prospect leaders will talk with us in order to agree on a course of action," he said.

Village officials began talking about water conservation last year when well water levels began dropping dramatically. Mount Prospect has been trying to get Lake Michigan water for 15 years. Estimates now are that the area wells will run dry as early as 1980.

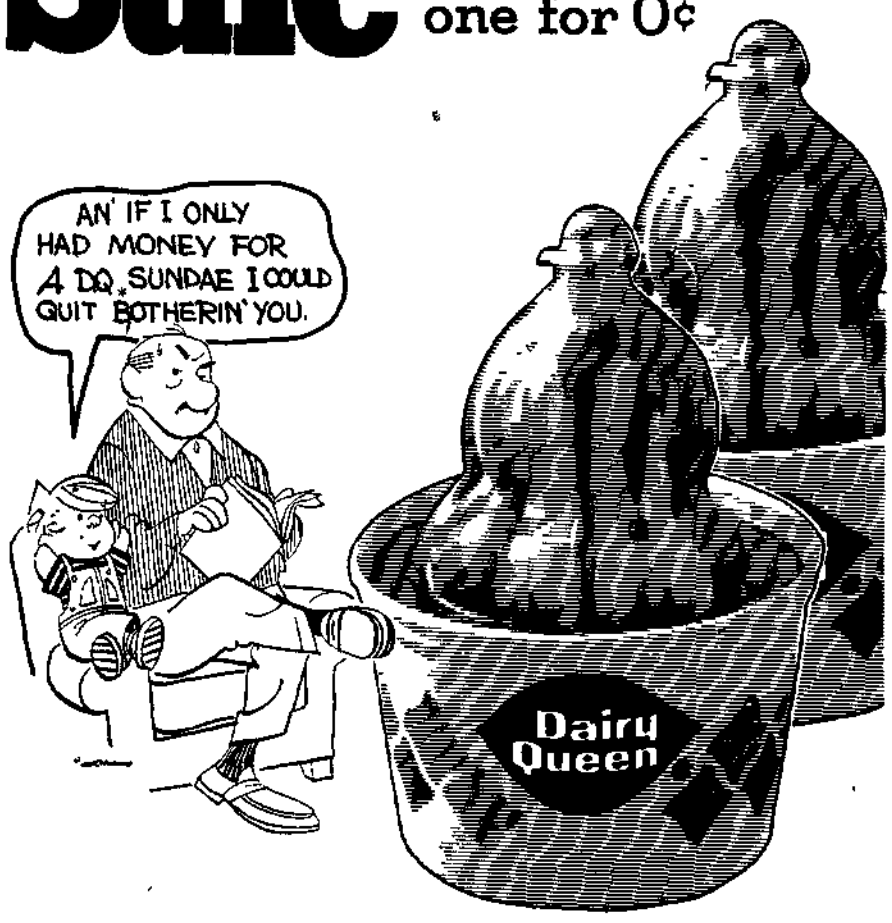

"Hopefully, Mount Prospect will assume leadership in conserving water to show the state that we mean business in carrying out our part," Wattenberg said, noting conservation must be shown to get an allocation of lake water.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 100 S. Emerson St. At 7 p.m., the village engineer will be available to discuss federal flood insurance maps.

Merger study given to Dist. 57

A study comparing enrollment, salaries, tax rates and programs in Mount Prospect Dist. 57 and River Trails Dist. 26 has been presented to the Dist. 57 Board of Education as part of an investigation into the merger of the two school districts.

The report, prepared by administrators in both districts, went to the Dist. 57 board Monday and will now go to the Dist 26 Board of Education for study. The boards then will have to decide whether a merger of the two districts would provide any significant relief to their common problems of declining enrollment and financial deficits.

Enrollment in Dist. 26 is projected to decline 13.4 per cent from 2,420 students this fall to 2,096 by the 1979-80 school year. In Dist. 57, enrollment is projected to decline 17.9 per cent from 2,637 to 2,164 students during the same period. If the districts were combined, the decline would be about 15.8 per cent.

THE DECLINE in students spells financial trouble for the districts because state aid revenue is lost as the student population diminishes. Dist. 26 could face bankruptcy as early as the 1977-78 school year, when it will arrive at its maximum allowable indebtedness of $900,000. Dist. 57 has projected a budget deficit of $2 million in 1981. Both districts are in the midst of considering budget cuts to reduce their deficits.

Dist. 26 has seven schools and serves the northern portion of Des Plaines and northeast Mount Prospect. Dist. 57 has six schools and serves the central Mount Prospect area.

According to the administrative report, if Dist. 26 were to annex to Dist. 57, residents of Dist. 26 would be subject to Dist. 57's higher tax rate in education and operating funds and Dist. 57 would be subject to Dist. 26's higher rate in the bond and interest fund. If Dist. 57 would annex to Dist. 26, residents would pay Dist 26's lower tax rate in the two funds. Since the districts are experiencing financial difficulties, the lower rate does not seem feasible, according to the report.

Other comparisons listed in the report included:

- Operating costs per student. Dist. 57 costs per student are $1,355 and Dist. 26 costs are $1,489 per student. Most of Dist. 26's higher costs are due to the construction of a new school and a lower student-teacher ratio.
- Hot lunch. Dist. 26 provides a hot lunch program for all its schools, while Dist. 57 does not. It is assumed that hot lunches would be provided in all schools if the districts are merged.
- Bus transportation. Dist. 26 transports students in kindergarten through eighth grade, while Dist. 57 transports only junior high school students It is assumed that Dist. 26's transportation rules and regulations would be applied in the new district, if the schools are merged.
- Teacher salaries. While the starting salary for teachers is about the same in both districts, Dist. 26's average teacher salary is $13,209 and the average level of experience is 8.87 years. In Dist. 57, the average salary is $15,388 and the average years of experience are 12.

If the two boards of education decide to proceed with a merger, the merger could be accomplished through consolidation of the two districts or the annexation of one district to the other.

Under consolidation, any group of citizens can file a petition with the county board of school trustees to request a referendum on consolidation. The trustees would then hold a hearing and if they determine that consolidation would be in the best interests of the districts, a referendum would be called. If consolidation is approved, an election would be held to form a new board of education.

Under annexation procedures, the two boards or voters in each district would petition the county trustees. The trustees would then hold a hearing on the petition and can approve or deny the annexation. A referendum would not be required. The board members of the annexing district would then take over the operation of the combined district.

Alternate school nixed in Dist. 59

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has voted against opening an alternative school this fall.

The board Monday also voted to table a resolution to form a committee composed of parents, administrators and board members to study all varieties of alternative schools.

The board has been considering using one of the district schools for a basic academic program that would stress rigid discipline. Board action Monday came in response to a series of public hearings where the majority of parents opposed the conservative alternative school

ALSO TABLED for further discussion was a resolution to place more emphasis on discipline in all of the schools. Board member Erwin Poklacki protested that passage of this resolution would be "telling principals what to do in their own schools," and said that was not the board's role.

School officials said there were very few residents who supported the alternative school at the public hearings, though in a survey more than 400 families had said they would send their children to a conservative school if it were offered.

Residents were concerned that the district was spending money on an alternative school while a deficit is looming next year, officials said. Other sentiments expressed at the hearings were that the district's schools are "good enough" and that if the schools need some changes, there should be more discipline at all the schools.

Some board members said residents would view the alternative school concept more favorably if alternative classes were established in each school, allowing the district to keep all its children at neighborhood schools

SABRA PATTERSON, a resident, said alternatives in education should not be in the district at random, "but at each school. The neighborhood school concept is important. Certainly it is feasible to offer one alternative class at each grade level" at all the schools.

Board member Lynn Helvie said:

"I can't ste the average- and below-average child in this (alternative) school. I think we should put the better things we see in this school into our present schools and all will benefit."

Poklacki, however, said he believes "there are still parents who would like this type of school.

"It surprised me that some parents would not allow such an alternative for other children in the district," he said. "I would like to give the parents time to organize themselves so they can be heard by the board. I am sorry the parents who thought their children would benefit by the school did not come out and support it"
